700 SHELLS HIT SMALL SECTOR IN 15 MINUTES

Intensify Efforts to Wipe Out Threat.

ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Italy, Feb. 7.—The Germans intensified their efforts today to wipe out this beachhead, increasing their artillery fire to the highest degree yet and resuming sneak air raids in the day time.

Last night the enemy bombed the beachhead several times, while maintaining a constant checker boarding of the 100 square mile area with shells. German probing patrols have been most active trying to discover the strength of the various spots of the beachhead in preparation for a counter-push.

From the mountain range between the beachhead forces and Rome the enemy stares down into every secret military spot. To put it facetiously, this beachhead army is living in a goldfish bowl.

The Germans are pouring many thousands of shells into the beachhead day and night, with some concentrations in a single small area receiving as many as 700 or 800 shells within 15 minutes.

AT THE 5TH ARMY BEACHHEAD, Feb. 7 (AP).—Tightly ringed by growing enemy forces on land and with their sea communications under air and artillery attack, allied beachhead troops checked and threw back two minor German attemps to break thru their outposts early today.

The Americans dealt quickly with one German sortie across No Man's land while British infantry, after a two hour engagement, wiped out an enemy penetration.

The enemy by now has had time to draw armored reserves even from the interior of Germany and may be expected to continue to build for a future all-out offensive against the fan-shaped coastal strip now held by allied troops under Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson's supreme command.

The shanty town of Campana, with 10,000 Italian civilian refugees, exists in the middle of this beachhead in a welter of air raids and artillery fire.

BATTLE INSIDE CASSINO

ALLIED HDQ., Italy, Feb. 7 (AP).—House to house fighting still was in progress today at Cassino on the main 5th army front 50 miles east of the Anzio beachhead. The Nazis, after six days, continued to fight fiercely from iron and concrete pillboxes, foxholes, and machine gun bunkers. Allied artillery pounded enemy positions all along the Monte Cairo heights and in Cassino in a daylong gun duel.

American troops battled 500 yards up the slopes of Mount Cassino, which overlooks highway and railway routes into Cassino from the north along which supplies must pass to the last ditch Nazi fighters in the town. Allied infantry also was pushing up a steep 1,600 foot crag a mile west of the town, on which is situated the centuries old Benedictine monastery.

British 8th army troops near the Adriatic sea drove into the villages of Pizzoferrato, two and a half miles northwest of Sant' Angelo, and Montenerodomo, four miles south of Torricella.

Important highways converging at Frascati on the Appian way nine miles southeast of Rome were heavily bombed. Thirteen allied planes were missing for the day, against 10 Nazi craft destroyed.

Claim 1,000 Prisoners.

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Nazi controled Rome radio said today that some allied troops in the Carroceto [Aprilia] area below the capital had been surrounded and wiped out and more than 1,000 prisoners had been taken. The claim was unconfirmed by any allied source.

Yanks' Death Toll 50 a Day in Jap Prison

The story of the late Lt.-Col. W. E. Dyess, hero of Bataan, today begins to detail the horrors of day by day life in the vile compounds in which American and Filipino prisoners were confined by their Japanese captors.

The long line of prisoners straggled thru the eastern portal of O'Donnell prison camp, between high towers from which floated the Japanese flag. Gates in the barbed wire barricade closed behind us. Our guards marched us up a hill just south of the gate and seated us in the blazing sun near Japanese military headquarters.

We were given to understand we shortly would be "welcomed" by the enemy captain commanding the prison. During the searing 45 minute wait I studied the dismal reservation which stretched to the south, west, and north of the hill upon which we were seated.

The camp covered a wide area, probably several hundred acres. The road by which we had entered bisected it in the center. Lesser roads branched off to the north and south. The main road was flanked by barbed wire entanglements. The reservation was divided by similar barricades into several large square compounds.

Section Set Aside for Flyers.

In these were the unfinished and already dilapidated buildings that had been intended for use as a Filipino military establishment. Work had been abandoned at the start of the war.

The northwestern section now had been set aside for air forces. Just east of this, prisoners from the tank corps were together.

The northeast section had been allotted to prisoners from the coast artillery. A sluggish, muddy stream snaked its way across the camp, entering from the east and wandering westward until it reached the tank corps compound, where it turned to flow in a southerly direction.

I was taking all this in when there arose a babble of high pitched voices from our Jap guards and we had to stand up for a search. On the march from Bataan all our personal possessions had been taken from us. We had nothing left except our United States army blankets, which we had carried from Mariveles. These now were taken away and we sat down again to wait for the Jap captain.

Finally he appeared: a gnarled, misshapen creature, as grotesque as anything supposedly human I ever have looked upon. We learned he had been retired, but had been called back to duty at the start of the war.

Roars at Prisoners.

He had squint eyes. He roared at us with a pomposity reminiscent of Mussolini's. But the loose lipped vacuity of his expression was like that of an idiot. The captain mounted a low platform and stood staring at

LAWYERS OPEN FIGHT TO KILL SEDITION CASE

Move for Dismissal on 3 Grounds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—The administration's charge that Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, Chicago, and 29 other persons scattered thruout the United States aided in a conspiracy to establish a Nazi form of government in the United States met its first challenge in federal District court here today.

Lloyd Lanham, Chicago attorney representing Mrs. Dilling, joined with counsel for three others of the defendants in a move to quash the so-called "sedition case" indictments. A demurrer asking that the indictment be quashed was filed in behalf of Mrs. Dilling and the three others, Gerald B. Winrod and Elmer J. Garner of Wichita, Kas., and Edward James Smythe of New York. Maximilian St. George, counsel for Joseph E. McWilliams, also of Chicago, did not argue on a demurrer but on a special plea to jurisdiction, challenging the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia court.

Charge Inconsistency.

The attorneys contended the defendants were indicted for allegedly distributing literature intended to undermine the morale of American soldiers and sailors, but declared that the justice department's indictments inferred the defendants were planning revolution. This "duplicity," the attorneys told the court, would make it impossible for the defendants to go to trial without fear the jury might be swayed by the inferred charges not specifically set forth in the indictment.

Counsel for the defendants also argued that the Washington court does not have jurisdiction in the case, for the indictments do not set forth any specific overt acts committed in the District of Columbia by any of the defendants. They contended their clients should be tried in court in their home districts and not in Washington.

Attack Indictment.

The third major argument charged the indictment is defective because it is barred by the statute of limitations. It was argued that the indictment specifically charges the defendants with conspiring as far back as 1933, yet the law under which they were indicted was not enacted until June, 1940.

This same argument was used against two previous indictments brought against some of the defendants and the court upheld it, emasculating the earlier indictments to such an extent that the justice department brought a third indictment before risking trial in the sedition case.

Arguments on the demurrers filed for Mrs. Dilling and the others were continued until tomorrow. The government will not present its arguments until all attorneys for the defense have had a chance to present their cases. Decision on the demurrers will be delayed until all arguments have been completed.

At today's session of the court six defendants were arraigned, five pleading not guilty. Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher directed a not guilty plea for the sixth, Robert Noble, Los Angeles, Cal., over Noble's objections after he had objected to the court's suggestion for an attorney to defend him.

The five who pleaded not guilty were Gerhard William Kunze,

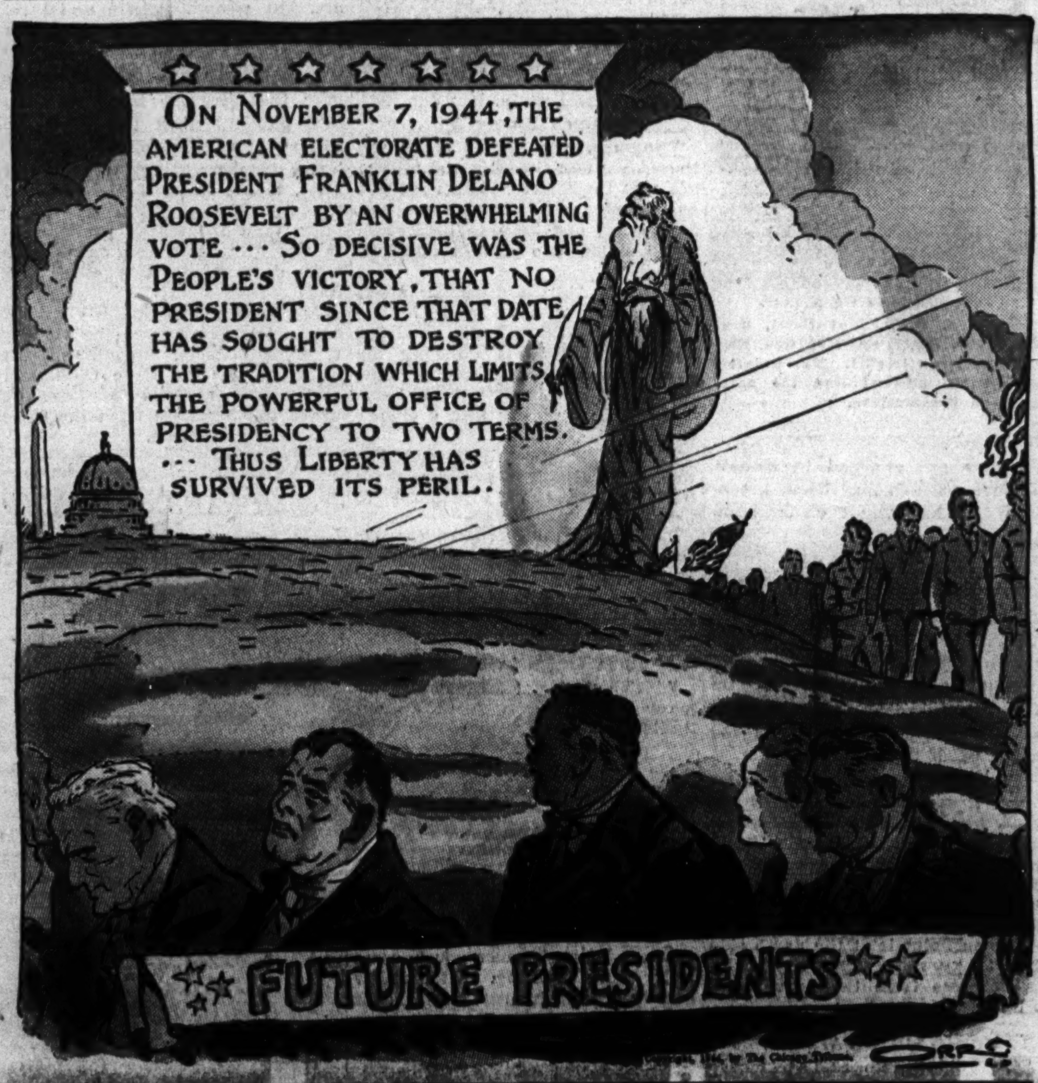
WHEN HISTORY LOOKS BACK ON OUR TIMES



URGES CHURCHES ASSIST TAVERNS

Minister Says Prohibition Is Not Solution.

Ministers who preach the use of strong arm methods to fight the liquor industry are not living in the 20th century and the liquor problem is not going to be solved by the return of prohibition, a hundred surprised tavern owners from six middle west states were told yesterday by the Rev. Edward W. Potts of Kansas City, Mo.

The Rev. Mr. Potts, pastor of a Methodist church and president of the Ministerial Alliance of Greater Kansas City, spoke before a conference of delegates representing tavern owners' associations in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, and Missouri in the Morrison hotel.

The Ministerial association of Kansas City is trying to eliminate evils of the liquor industry by cooperation with the tavern owners' association, the Rev. Mr. Potts explained, adding that he is eager to work with those interested in cooperation, control, and temperance to control liquor rather than prohibition.

Coöperate with Industry.

"The more intelligent ministers," said the Rev. Mr. Potts, "are trying to coöperate with the public relations departments of liquor industries to bring tavern owners around to complying with laws, thereby eliminating many evils of the industry."

After two years of working with the tavern owners, the pastor said, and by presenting a united front, Kansas City ministers have obtained legislative reforms and curbs have been placed on locations of taverns near schools and churches.

The Rev. Mr. Potts said a recent poll showed 43 per cent of the nation in favor of the return of prohibition and that a 4 per cent change would make prohibition a probability.

"We've tested prohibition," he added, "and it brought about conditions we do not want to see again. I do not believe the liquor industry needs to fear the return of prohibition. Rationing of liquor and war time use of distilleries for alcohol production will avert that catastrophe."

Protect Women and Home.

The Rev. Mr. Potts warned tavern men about strict compliance with the letter and spirit of all laws governing their business and especially about sales of liquor to women because, he said, he does not believe anything will cause "your walls to crumble more quickly than to allow the greatest institution in our Christian lives—the home—to be weakened thru use of alcoholic beverages."

In addition to the Rev. Mr. Potts, the tavern men heard Dr. J. C. Ross, William Devine, and Max Loeb of the Illinois liquor control commission; Clyde Tutten, chief of the Wisconsin beverage and tax division; Earl G. Hawkins of the Minnesota commission, and Tim Guiney, president of the national Tavern Owners' association.

CONSTITUENT HOPES DOWNEY WILL ROAST FOR INTRICATE TAX

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Many citizens who have tackled their 1944 income tax reports may have had ideas something like this, but Frank H. Warren, of San Diego, Cal., did something about.

He addressed the following post card to Sen. Downey [D., Cal.]:

"My dear Senator:

"I hope you roast a thousand years in hell for each minute I put in on this federal income tax report."

Downey read the communication into the congressional record.

"Mr. President," he said, "I cannot obey the injunction of Mr. Warren, but I can express sympathy for him. Millions of Americans will sympathize with Mr. Warren, and I hope that congress will soon move energetically to simplify income tax procedure."

KISSING O. K., BUT DON'T DO IT IN DARK, WACS TOLD

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ALGIERS, Feb. 7.—There is no reason why WACs should not kiss boy friends good night if they wish, a company commander said here, but it ought to be done inside the gates of the girls' school where the WACs live rather than in the darkness outside.

The reason is simple—Col. Oveta Hobby and Maj. Westray Battle Boyce, the WAC staff director in this theater, were recently driving past the school when Col. Hobby saw a couple in a long embrace behind a tree.

WIFE SAYS YOGA UPSET HER MATE

Asserts 'Priestess' Stood Him on Head.

New York, Feb. 7 [Special].—A 31 year old New York novelist was accused in an affidavit in the state Supreme court today of using her occult wiles as a high priestess of Yoga to charm a radio network executive into getting a Reno divorce after he had embraced the Yoga religion and learned to squat like a Buddha, stand on his head, and eat nothing but carrots.

The affidavit was made by Mrs. Florence Street, who says she is still the wife of the radio man, Robert A. Street, despite a Reno decree he obtained last year. She is seeking a legal separation with $200 a week alimony and $2,500 counsel fees.

Novelist at 16.

Carmen Dee Barnes, whose first novel, "School Girl," was published in 1929 when she was 16, is identified in the affidavit as the Yoga devotee. She wrote "School Girl" while at the exclusive Ward Belmont School for Girls in Nashville, Tenn., but subsequently shifted to the Gardner school in New York, from which she was expelled "for the peace of the school" when other girl pupils started reading the book.

Mrs. Street said that her husband's head standing and squatting began after he met Miss Barnes in 1942 and that he told her Miss Barnes had given him "new life, new love, new hope, and a complete new cycle."

Mrs. Street said she put up with her husband's antics, despite the fact that she found his Yoga life interfered with "his mentatl attitude and his sexual outlook on married life."

On March 10, 1943, he affectionately embraced her and then walked out and went to Reno, she said, and later told her he was in love with Miss Barnes and wanted to marry her.

Mrs. Street told of visiting Miss Barnes and asking her to give up Street, but said the novelist refused, telling Mrs. Street she should do whatever giving up was to be done.

The dictionary defines Yoga as mental discipline thru the direction of attention exclusively upon one object, abstract or concrete, with a view to identifying one's consciousness with the object. Practitioners of Yoga are called Yogi and they seek to attain union with the universal spirit by gaining control over natural forces and their own bodies.

286 YANKS KILLED, 1,148 WOUNDED, 82 MISSING

Ratio Is 29 to 1; 264 Enemy Troops Captured.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Feb. 7 (AP).—More than 8,000 Japanese were killed while the American dead totaled only 286 in the lightning United States capture of Kwajalein atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Casualty figures released today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed:

United States marine and army wounded totaled 1,148 and 82 men are missing.

Known Japanese casualties were 8,122 dead and 264 taken prisoner.

United States troops killed nearly 29 Japanese for each American lost.

Nimitz said he expected the final figures to vary only slightly from those announced today.

The 7th army division, which captured Kwajalen Island and adjacent islets in the southern part of the atoll, suffered the heaviest casualties: 157 dead, 712 wounded, and 17 missing. However, the largest number of Japanese, 4,650, were killed in this area. The army took 173 prisoners.

The 4th marine division, which captured Roi, Namur, and adjacent objectives to the north, lost 129 dead. Other marine casualties were 463 wounded and 65 missing. In the Roi-Namur area, 3,472 Japanese were killed and 91 taken prisoner.

Total United States casualties were 1,516 killed, wounded, and missing.

Yanks to Ogle Varga Honeys Walker or No

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 [Special].—The United States army has refused point-blank to have its morals fixed by the postoffice department. The doughboys, it seems, know what they want and consider themselves neither too young nor too old to have it.

An official of the war department disclosed their determination today in announcing that the army has a new morale building program. The principal morale builder in the program, he said, is Artist Alberto Varga.

"He is the man," the spokesman explained, "who draws those pictures of fine, outstanding American womanhood for Esquire magazine. It was principally because of Varga that Postmaster Gen. Walker held a trial recently and then did what he had decided to do in the first place—knock Esquire off the second class mailing list."

"No doubt the army is very glad that Walker saved the soldiers from corruption?" a reporter ventured.

"But the soldiers haven't been saved," the war department official shot back. "That is the distressing fact. The army, in fact, is now flying Varga around to various bombardment schools—flying him in a brand new army bomber."

At nearly all the camps Varga visited, it was said, he found huge 10 to 12 foot enlargements of his "lovely creatures" but not even so much as a small pinup of Walker.

U.S. Guns Leave No Living Thing on Island.

BY WILLIAM L. WORDEN.

KWAJALEIN, Marshall Islands, Feb. 7 (AP).—I have looked at both ends of one of the world's historic artillery bombardments. It's difficult to write of it without lapsing into superlatives. The simple fact is that American guns destroyed, as nearly as it is possible to destroy land itself, the northwest end of Kwajalein Island.

Nothing that was there when this blanket of hot steel fell is alive—no men, no trees, not even tiny crabs which were scuttling thru the coral nor minute devil fish which lived in holes in the reef. American gunsights pointed one way—toward a strip of coral beach 1,500 yards long and 300 yards deep.

The seagoing artillery and planes began working on this strip, increasing their battering steadily for three days until one battleship a mile offshore was firing its heaviest guns. At the range of a mile you can almost feel the muzzle blast of a 16 inch gun. Our dive bombers kept dropping lower and lower.

Guns Hub to Hub.

The pay-off came after army artillery pieces lined up on Enubuj Island, three-fourths of a mile long. In places there was only enough room between the hubs of the gun carriages to allow the crews to operate. Enubuj is only a little over two miles from Kwajalein. The range was so short that the guns hardly needed to be raised from the level position. But half of Enubuj Island had to be denuded of palm trees to give the guns space thru which to fire.

At a prearranged hour these guns began simultaneous blasting. Scores of missiles were in the air. For hours there was no second when several shells were not en route to this one tiny objective.

I sat on Enubuj with cotton in my ears and a helmet on my head to lessen the effects of the concussion. Behind us the tiny island quivered constantly. The remaining trees bent as if in a high wind. The wreckage of Japanese buildings shook. Smoke from powder charges swirled over the entire island. At times we could not see Kwajalein Island for the smoke.

Troops Move In.

Fire broke out, burned fiercely and died for lack of further fuel. When the smoke cleared away we could see occasional cascades of rock rising where the shells hit and pillars of flame and smoke where they blackened trees or destroyed frame structures.

Meanwhile the infantry moved in. This is an inadequate description of hundreds of amphibious landing vehicles and boats moving in from ships toward Kwajalein under the screeching roof of shells. Sometimes they were covered by smoke of their own shells bursting ahead of them.

As the barrage lifted enough to permit their landing, the guns continued to pound the area inland. The recurrent roar of landing craft motors reached us like the sound of a thousand airplane motors.

Not a Tree Standing.

After more than two hours of steady firing, the barrage was replaced by firing at small, specific targets.

At noon of that day [last Tuesday] I went to Kwajalein. There was literally nothing left of this beach. No tree was left standing, only barren stumps. Blockhouses are now only twisted blocks of concrete and steel. Those which had been made of coconut logs and dirt are hard even to find. If some monstrous plow had been pulled across this end of the island, furrow next to furrow, it could not have done a more complete job of turning the topsoil and bringing up the coral. The holes are so enormous they are being used as regimental headquarters.

Col. Mark Logie, commanding one regiment, estimated his men found 50 Japanese dead in their first 500 yard advance. The regiment on his flank reported about 100. Hundreds were buried under the rubble, never to be found.

No Americans were killed on the beaches which the artillery had worked over.

MANY JAP SUICIDES

BY ROBERT TRUMBULL.
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ROI ISLAND, Kwajalein Atoll, Feb. 3 [Delayed].—This island is ours today by virtue of the most magnificent naval support that ever accompanied an amphibious assault, according to our own observers and British officers with this task force who have seen similar operations in other theaters of the war.

The twin islands of Roi and Namur were subjected to the heaviest air and sea bombardment the world has ever seen. More than 5,000 tons of shells and 200 tons of bombs fell during the 53 hours preceding the main landings.

There was never more than a 15 minute respite between explosions on the island. No enemy installations were found undamaged when the marines landed. The fine air field on Roi is a level field of rubble and on adjacent Namur, where the Japanese garrison of 2,500 lived, there are only ruins to indicate that a sizable town of concrete buildings was there. There were 150 buildings on Namur alone.

Apparently it is still impossible to wipe out all entrenched ground troops with shells and bombs. When the marines landed there were Japanese left to fight, and they fought well until they found their battle hopeless. Then characteristically, many committed suicide by holding grenades to their bellies or pressing the muzzles of rifles to their chests and pulling the trigger with their big toes.

The two once beautiful islands are a stinking mess. When I went ashore from the flagship, I counted on Roi exactly six palm trees that still had fronds, and some of these had only one.

We improved our own tactics over Tarawa in this assault. We achieved a novel flanking effect by placing our land based artillery in advance on the smaller islands at both sides of Roi and Namur to support the later landings.

The Japanese allowed the first wave to advance inland, without opposition, then fired upon them from behind. However, our troops reached a line just short of the middle of the island, and halted there for reorganization.

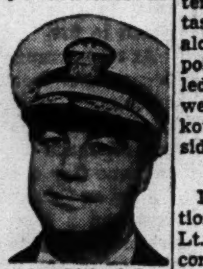
Tough Fight on Namur.

On Namur the going was tougher. The first objective was not reached until 3:50 p. m., and the first marines gained the beach on the opposite or ocean side of Namur at 6 p. m. They now held three quarters of Namur, leaving a pocket of stiff resistance at the northwest corner.

The marines made their advances behind aerial bombing and strafing, and field artillery support from the adjacent islands. Assault engineers with flame throwers and demolition devices accompanied each unit to demolish pillboxes, killing the occupants. Looking over the battlefield later it was impossible to tell how many of the Japanese in the dugouts had died in the preliminary bombing and shelling and how many had been slain by engineers and marines with grenades.

MOTHER PROUD OF MARSHALLS CHIEF'S VICTORY

Dispatches telling of Rear Adm. Richard L. Conolly's activities as commander of the task force which took marines to invade the Marshall Islands are being followed proudly by Mrs. Cora Carhart Conolly, the admiral's mother, who lives with her daughter, Harriet, at 509 Julian st., Waukegan.



Adm. Richard L. Conolly.

Adm. Conolly was born and reared in Waukegan. In 1914 he became the first Lake county man to be graduated from Annapolis. In the navy for 30 years, he saw overseas action in the first World war, and has had important assignments in this one.

He commanded the destroyer escort that took the aircraft carrier Hornet and Maj. Gen. Doolittle's flyers within range of Tokio. He led earlier task forces in the Marshalls and Gilberts, participated in the original shelling of Wake Island, and for seven months was busy aiding the landings in Sicily, North Africa, and Italy.

Adm. Conolly's wife and three children, Ann, Richard, and Robert, are in this country. A brother, Robert, lives in Gurnee, Lake county.

U.S. NAVY POURS SHELLS ON JAPS' KURILE ISLAND

Blasts Paramushiro for 20 Minutes.

BY NORMAN BELL.
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ABOARD A U. S. DESTROYER IN THE NORTH PACIFIC, Feb. 4—[Delayed].—The first United States naval force to attack Japanese home territory is steaming safely homeward, leaving the flustered enemy on Paramushiro Island firing harmlessly into the air and sea and along its own beaches.

Our task force poured shells for 20 minutes into harbor and land installations on the east and south sides of Kurabu point today, causing fires and explosions ashore, damaged a small merchant ship, and departed without suffering a scratch.

It seemed almost too easy, and as we left one sailor remarked, "Why, we ought to go ahead and take that place."

Planes Follow Up Attack.

The Japanese, unpleasantly accustomed to air attack, must have been looking skyward, for war ships in the task force commanded by Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker should have been visible as dark shadows as they steamed in bright moonlight within five miles of shore batteries.

To add to the Japs' confusion, planes of Commodore Leslie E. Gehres' fleet air wing four—the "Tokio Short Line Express"—hit Paramushiro and Shimushu tonight, striking in two sections shortly after the naval bombardment. All planes returned safely.

Comdr. Harry Smith, veteran of Coral sea and Midway battles, skippered the destroyer on which I rode as the only war correspondent accompanying the task force. A destroyer division under Comdr. Hunter Wood led heavier ships of the task force into shelling position along the eastern side of Kurabu point. The remainder of the force, led by Capt. H. L. Gearing, swung westward toward the sea of Okhotsk and struck from the southern side.

Star Shells Light Scene.

I stood on this destroyer's direction platform above the bridge with Lt. [j. g.] Eli Hill of Dawson, Ga., communications and assistant gunnery officer. At 2:30 a. m. [9:30 p. m. Japan time] Dawson said "here we go."

Instantly star shells illuminated the snow covered shore. The Japanese, obviously befuddled, began firing skyward. Our bombardment quickly began in earnest, centering on buildings ashore and on a merchant ship which star shells silhouetted against the shore.

The vessel got under way and dodged desperately, but suffered several hits and was left apparently beached and badly crippled.

The invasion-conscious Japanese wouldn't have been any happier had they known that aboard Adm. Baker's flagship as observers were Maj. Gen. Davenport Johnson, commander 11th air force, and Brig. Gen. E. D. Post, chief of staff to Lt. Gen. Simon B. Buckner of the Alaskan department, whose troops just now are engaged in assault maneuvers which may be in preparation for an assault on Paramushiro.

Shell East Coast, Too.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—The navy department, confirming the bombardment by American navy ships of Japanese installations at Kurabu Point on the southern tip of Paramushiro Island, also disclosed that an attack was made on the east coast of the island.

The few records here regarding that spot described it as a low lying point with shoal water extending eastward and northeastward. Reefs and rocks stretching nearly two miles off the point suggest that the ships approached their target no closer than that.

Kurabu Point is at the north side of a thirty mile strait separating Paramushiro from the next island to the south.

TOKIO SHOWS ALARM.

The Tokio radio said yesterday that "the enemy's raid on northern Chishima [Kurile Islands] must not be regarded lightly."

Asserting "the enemy's offensive thruout the entire Pacific area is about to be strengthened another step," the broadcast warned that the Marshall Islands are "only 11 hours to Tokio by the Flying Fortress of the enemy. The Pacific war situation is becoming more serious."

A Tokio dispatch broadcast by Berlin speculated that American forces might attempt a landing in the spring on the Kurile Islands. The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi said United States naval units in the Northern Pacific had "been reinforced lately," and the American forces include "strong formations of air borne troops."

17-JAP ACE FROM CHICAGO DEFERS TO HIS WINGMEN

ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, Feb. 7 (AP).—An ace, says one of them, is "only as good as his wingman."

Capt. Donald Aldrich

Marine Capt. Donald N. Aldrich, 1408 E. Marquette rd., Chicago, pointed to two of his tent mates and insisted "those two guys deserve as much credit as I do."

The freckled, 6 foot pilot, who is credited with 17 Jap planes, introduced Lt. Johnny Druke, San Francisco, and Lt. George Gilman, Idaho Falls, Idaho, who alternately fly wing on Aldrich.

"Johnny and George are the best for my money, or my neck," he added.

Aldrich is now second among South Pacific aces in active duty, topped only by Maj. Marion Carl of Hubbard, Ore., who has 18 enemy planes on his record. The former shot down four Japanese Zeros over Rabaul, New Britain, last Jan. 28.

Wingmen Rarely Aces.

Wingmen, who protect aerial virtuosos, get less shooting and seldom are aces themselves. You need five enemy planes to become an ace. Burke has one Zero to his credit, and Gilman, two certain and two probable.

Is Capt. Aldrich dreaming about breaking the 26 plane record?

"The only thing I am dreaming about right now is finishing my third tour with unpunctured skin, getting on that boat for some home duty, and giving my luck a chance to rest up," he said.

"Rabaul is no picnic and the way we've been losing aces up there isn't conducive to my peace of mind."

The flyer is due for that home leave in a few days. He is the only son of Mrs. Mary Aldrich, 6226 Ingleside, Chicago. His wife is the former Miss Marjorie Adams of Chicago.

Some Faults in Training.

Aldrich commented that there are many little things about Corsair fighter planes that new men coming into the South Pacific don't learn at training school.

"The boys coming out are well taught in all the important features, but they don't know the little tricks of the trade, the little oddities of planes which seem unimportant in training but on which their lives may depend in combat.

"It's the first couple of missions that are tough because you have to learn while fighting. If a fellow gets back from his first mission, his value and chances of survival go up tremendously."

2 CHICAGOLAND PILOTS DESTROY RABAUL ZEROS

VELLA LAVELLA, Solomon Islands, Jan. 23 [Delayed]—(AP).—Marine Lt. John B. Slingerland, 22, of 10555 S. La Salle st., Chicago, shot down a Zero over Rabaul, New Britain, today. His fighter squadron was credited on the same operation with blasting 21 Zeros from the sky.

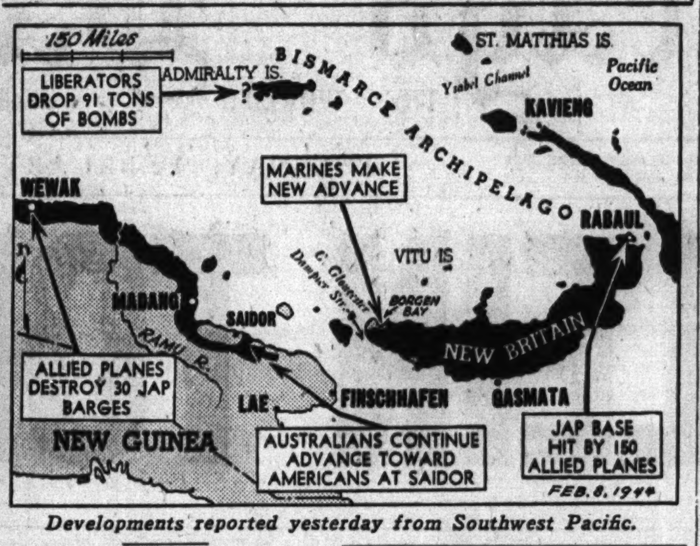
Putting on the Pressure in Pacific



Developments reported yesterday from Southwest Pacific.

11 Hits on Rabaul

ALLIED HDQ. IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 8 [Tuesday] (AP).—Allied fighters and bombers delivered two hard blows Sunday against Lakunai airdrome at Rabaul, meeting strong anti-aircraft fire, but weak Japanese aerial resistance, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

Torpedo and dive bombers went over the airdrome to deliver the first punch against gun positions, scoring 11 effective hits. Liberator heavy bombers struck the second blow, laying 39 tons of bombs on the runway and dispersal areas. More than 150 planes participated in the attacks. Seven Jap planes were shot down. The allies lost four.

American marine patrols ranged east of Borgen bay to the vicinity of Cape Gauffre, expanding their activities in the Cape Gloucester sector, where the leathernecks drove the Japanese from the Cape Gloucester airdrome.

Report Nazi Commandant in Warsaw Killed by Bomb

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 7.—The underground Polish radio station SWIT said yesterday that Maj. Gen. Kutschera, German commandant in Warsaw, and five other Germans were killed Feb. 1 on a Warsaw street by a bomb. As a reprisal, SWIT said, the Germans executed 100 hostages and left their bodies in the street. A fine of 100 million zloty also was imposed on the city and a 5 p. m. curfew was ordered.

KURILES BLOW HELD NO AUGUR OF AN INVASION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Ship bombardment of Japan's Paramushiro island appears to have been primarily a diversionary operation, intended to lead the Tokio admiralty into deeper confusion. While naval experts speculate on the question "Where is the Japanese fleet?" the Japanese naval command must ponder a somewhat similar question—"Where should it be?"

A Vichy radio broadcast quoted a Japanese bulletin as saying American forces had landed in the Kurile islands, but naval sources here quickly disclaimed knowledge of any such landing.

The description of the operation led to the general opinion that the assault was part of a series of major and minor blows all along the great Pacific arc, intended to distract the enemy. There must be a greater mustering of strength before so bold an attempt as a landing on Paramushiro is attempted.

Scouting Might Have Held Off War, F. D. Tells Boys

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—President Roosevelt today told the Boy Scouts of America on the eve of their 34th anniversary that "if the people of all countries had taken the basic philosophy of scouting to heart, perhaps there would never have been a second World war."

Hear Nazis Fear Missing Diplomat Joins Allies

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 7 (AP).—A high official in the German embassy here, who has been under investigation by the Gestapo, has disappeared and the Germans apparently fear he has gone over to the allies. German Ambassador Franz von Papen interrupted a vacation to return to Istanbul and direct an investigation.

PULLMAN SHOPS BUILDING NEW LANDING CRAFT

Lay First Keel Soon; 500 Women Needed.

The Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, already busy producing aircraft assemblies and escort vessels for convoy duty, late this month will lay the keel of the first ship in its "revenge fleet" of landing craft which may take American fighters to the shores of Japan itself.

The new ship—officially designated "LSM" by the navy—will be equipped to carry men, tanks, and guns thru the surf to enemy beaches. It has just been designed by the navy.

The Pullman shops will carry the work "from blueprint to salt water," and the company has contracted to deliver at least one a week at ocean ports, completely equipped, tested and ready for action. All resources of the huge shops which build railroad cars in peace time will be thrown into the new program, officials said.

Train 500 Women.

The LSM will be assembled entirely by welding—there will not be a rivet in it, officials said.

Five hundred women will have to be taught how to weld and take their places in the assembly plants at Pullman before the program can get under way, Roy Quinn, company public relations director, said.

"That's nothing new for us," Quinn said. "Twenty per cent of our 13,000 present employes are women, most of whom are expert at welding. The work is pretty hard but it seems to fascinate them. Under a special relaxation of the state law, our women employes work nine hours a day, six days a week—54 hours in all—and they ask for more.

Fit Parts in Shops.

"No other plant puts a ship together like we do. All cutting and fitting of small parts and assemblies is done in our car shops, and then the pieces are moved to the huge new assembly plant at 110th st. and Cottage Grove av.

In the assembly plant, a quarter of a mile long and more than half that wide, cranes 75 feet in the air lift the odd looking parts and set them down in steel jigs, where swarms of welders literally melt them together into ship sections. The LSM will be built just like the escort craft, with most of the assembly work done four miles from the launching yard!

Skilled welders help set the plates and assemblies on the jigs, and then put together a whole section of ship—hull, three decks, bunks, motors, compass, pipes, and nearly all other equipment except the engines and propellors.

Welded At Shipyard.

Then, by Pullman railroad, the sections are hauled four miles to the other side of Lake Calumet, where they are welded together at the shipyard. The middle pair of the 14 sections are seamed together by blazing torches, then others added until the hull is complete. While the outside is being painted the engines are installed. Then giant dollies are put under it and it is moved to the water's edge, where it slides sideways into the lake.

"We learned how to weld without leaving hidden stresses in the metal when making freight cars," Quinn said. "Each welder is taught the reasons behind everything she does. We believe not only all railroad cars, but houses and planes and even bridges will be made by welding after the war, and we are teaching all our workers a trade that should be useful thruout their lives."

Welder trainees, on full pay, are given a 30 day schooling. They are taught not only how to weld two sheets of metal together into a flat surface, but "positional welding," working on curved and angular surfaces overhead or to one side before they are put on the assembly lines.

Will Need 2,000 Workers.

"We are only going to need about 2,000 workers by the time we hit our production peak," Quinn said. "Most of them will have to be men, to replace those who go into uniform and to take care of normal turnover, which is very low. The real job of building the revenge fleet will fall on the women, who proved what they can do on the escort craft.

"These ships probably will be used in the final punch at our enemies. They represent an opportunity for us on the home front to help put over the sock that will knock the Japs right off their islands."

Mary Pickford as she arrived in Chicago yesterday on the 20th Century Limited.

Mary Pickford, first national chairman of the women's division for the Mile of Dimes campaign, stopped in Chicago between trains yesterday on her way to the west coast. She recently completed a tour of 14 cities in 15 days for the campaign, raising $7,000 during her appearance in Dallas, Tex.

Contributions to the Mile of Dimes aid in combatting infantile paralysis.

Miss Pickford arrived aboard the Century wearing an Adrian suit of beige wool, complemented with gold earrings and gold wings presented to her by her husband, Buddy Rogers, navy ferry pilot. She spent the day with friends and left aboard the Santa Fe in the evening for Olathe, Kas., where she will visit her mother-in-law, Mrs. B. H. Rogers.

CHARGE COLONEL TOOK BRIBES AT COAST AIR BASE

Freed on Bond; Hits a Photographer.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7 [Special]. — Col. J. J. Canella, quartermaster at the Santa Ana air base, was arraigned today on a federal complaint charging him with taking a bribe in connection with a civilian's acquisition of a job as assistant fire chief at the post.

The case was brought into court following extensive investigation by the FBI and army officials. The bribe program was alleged to have been carried over a period of many months and to have included the passing of money, jewels, and other considerations by supply contractors.

Freed on $2,500 Bond.

Col. Canella was taken before United States Commissioner Arthur Bradley on a complaint authorized by Asst. U. S. Atty. James M. Carter. The officer was released on $2,500 bail and his preliminary hearing set for next Monday. Carter said he planned to present the case to the federal grand jury.

He Gets Picture, Tho.

The doughty little photographer got up, retrieved his equipment, and snapped a picture of his assailant. Canella then chased him thru the downtown district until Johnson outdistanced him in the crowds.

Nearly two years ago the colonel won national recognition for his innovation in speeding up the outfitting of cadets at the air base.

WMC OFFICIAL BIDS EMPLOYERS STOP JOB SHIFTS

Statements of availablity being issued by Chicago area employers must be reduced in number to decrease the high rate of local labor turnover, William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, said yesterday. He declared that war workers were obtaining job releases much too easily, and that prompt and decisive community action by employers, as well as labor and civic leaders, was necessary to eliminate the area's man power problems.

Spencer's statement followed assertion by WMC Chairman McNutt in Washington, D. C., that excessive labor turnover in Chicago plants was seriously hampering war production. McNutt disclosed that an average of 9 per cent of the area's workers quit their jobs each month, compared with about 7 per cent for the nation and 6 per cent in Detroit, Mich., the No. 1 war production center. He criticized "shopping around" for new jobs.

The turnover analysis was conducted as part of the WMC survey of Chicago's man power shortage to determine if a No. 1, or acute shortage, classification must be ordered by March 1. McNutt assailed Chicago's high rate of job shifting as a symptom of ineffective community organization to mobilize its labor force for war production.

McNutt Charges Time Lost.

According to McNutt, reports indicate that applicants for jobs in Chicago are, for the most part, workers in other war plants "just shopping around for new jobs." He said that, in seeking releases from present work, they gave as principal reasons wages, transportation, or unsatisfactory working conditions. Constant hiring of new men to replace those who have shifted results in a loss of efficiency because time must be spent training other workers, he said.

War workers are permitted under WMC rules to change jobs at the same wage rate if their skills are not being used to the maximum, or if they have well-founded personal reasons. WMC officials admitted, however, that there are loopholes in the job freeze regulations and that there has been some evasion thru the collusion of employers seeking labor and workers seeking higher pay.

Heavy Job Shift Disclosed.

In conjunction with McNutt's disclosures, Lester Brown, Chicago area WMC director, released figures showing that in a two month period 110,000 workers were hired in Chicago war industry, but the net gain was only 13,000, indicating that 97,000 workers had quit their former jobs. A special study of 57 key industrial establishments employing 240,000 revealed that, altho these firms hired 33,000 workers, the net increase was only 3,000, he disclosed.

One of the highest turnover rates was shown by the manufacturers of sheet aluminum, with 17.4 per cent, Brown said. In the iron and steel industry the average was 8.1 per cent; steel and turbine castings, 13.4 per cent; other aluminum and magnesium products, 11.9 per cent; food processing, 11.3 per cent, and ordnance manufacturers, 9 per cent.

6½ OUNCE EGG SETS UP TARGET FOR MR. BENNY

The biggest egg laid in Lake county since Jack Benny left Waukegan was displayed yesterday by Nick Keller, state representative from the 8th district, who lives on a 10 acre farm on Sheridan rd. half a mile south of Zion.

The egg, weighing 6½ ounces, was laid by one of Keller's 150 Rhode Island Red hens. He doesn't know which one.

The normal weight of an egg is 2 ounces. Nick's overstuffed egg is 2⅝ inches in diameter crosswise, and 3⅜ inches long. It measures 8 inches around the middle.

Nick said he believes the hen was making an extra effort. Yesterday was his 10th wedding anniversary.

TEACHERS' UNION ADMITS HELPING CITIZENS' GROUP

$15,000 in Gifts Told by President.

Ira S. Turley, president of the Chicago Teachers' union [AFL], admitted yesterday that the union has contributed about $15,000 in five years to help finance the Citizens' Schools committee, which has been critical of the board of education and the policies of Superintendent of Schools Johnson.

Turley denied a report that the union is "just a front" for the committee, and has paid $20,000 into the committee's funds. He said the union's contributions have been about $3,000 a year. Amy Fahlgren, union secretary, estimated it pays one-fourth of the committee's budget.

Challenged by Federation.

Miss Lillian Lewis, president of the rival Chicago Federation of Teachers, announced that the federation will ask the Teachers' union to make a public answer to allegations that it is allied with the Citizens' committee and that it pays the salary of the committee's executive secretary.

Copies of the federation's letter to the union will be mailed today and tomorrow to 10,000 Chicago teachers, Miss Lewis said.

Criticizes Smear Campaigns.

"Effective teacher organizations need no one to front for them," she said. "Teachers should take care of their own business in a dignified way, thru coöperation and constructive criticism, not thru smear campaigns."

Dr. John A. Lapp is president of the Citizens Schools committee, which was formed in 1933. He has charged that the school board has "surrendered to President McCahey practically all of its powers."

NEW MAN POWER GROUP SET UP IN WAUKEGAN AREA

Organization of a management-labor man power committee to develop a man power program in the Waukegan area was disclosed yesterday by William H. Spencer, regional war man power commission director. Spencer presided at the group's first meeting shortly after he had addressed 150 employers and business men at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Waukegan Chamber of Commerce.

The activities of the new committee will be coördinated with those of the commerce organization's war mobilization committee, which was formed in December to relieve the area's shortage of war workers. Those attending yesterday's meeting empowered the commerce committee to raise funds to carry out its program.

In his address, Spencer told the employers to take action to bring the area out of the No. 1, or critical, labor shortage area classification it was given Feb. 1. He urged maximum utilization of all labor. Spencer said present demand and supply figures for the area indicate a deficit of 1,800 workers by May 1.

TAX BILL SENT TO WHITE HOUSE; ADDS 2.3 BILLION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—The senate completed congressional action today in the $2,315,200,000 tax bill, and sent it to the White House for President Roosevelt's action.

Action in the senate came swiftly after the house first approved the conference report. The senate action was routine, a unanimous voice vote, but the house argued at some length before it finally passed the measure.

Before the house voted, a Republican and a Democrat, Representatives Crawford [R., Mich.] and Voorhis [D., Cal.], raised the question whether the measure is adequate to deal with war financing problems. The bill embodies only about one-fifth the $10,500,000,000 added revenue requested by the administration.

Section Called Vicious.

Rep. Izac [D., Cal.], called the measure, revising the laws governing renegotiation of war contracts, "vicious," and said it will allow some contractors to make undue war profits.

Debate also swirled about the bill's provision freezing the social security tax at 1 per cent on pay rolls for both employer and employe, instead of the proposed 2 per cent.

There is considerable speculation that President Roosevelt, who has criticized the measure as unrealistic, may show his disapproval by letting it become law without his signature.

Where It Hits.

Here is where the additional taxes will bite:

Individual income and victory tax payers, $664,900,000.

Corporations, $502,100,000.

Higher excise tax rates, $1,051,300,000.

Postal rate increases, $96,900,000.

Effective in the 1944 tax year [altho not for 1943 returns due next month], individual income tax payers will no longer be allowed the 10 per cent earned income credit.

The victory tax, which has been a 5 per cent levy with certain credits varying with family status, becomes a straight 3 per cent tax on individual income above $624 a year.

The rate on hard liquor shoots up from $6 per 100-proof gallon to $9. Beer, now taxed $7 a barrel, will carry $8.

Levy on Furs Boosted.

Furs, jewelry [with a few exceptions], luggage, and toilet preparations come under a 20 per cent retail sales levy. The tax on admission to movies, ball games, and other places of entertainment goes up from a penny per dime to a penny per nickel.

The tax on railroad, bus, airline, and boat tickets rises to 15 per cent.

The new postal rates take effect 30 days after enactment. The charge for local first class mail will rise from 2 to 3 cents, air mail from 6 to 8 cents an ounce, and registered, insured, and C. O. D. charges will advance, along with money order fees.

Labor unions, farm coöperatives, and other organizations which do not have to pay income taxes nevertheless will have to file annual financial statements with the treasury under terms of the bill.

In the Good Old-Fashioned Way

Friendships and love seem to mean more to us all these days . . . wartime makes us realize more keenly than ever those things which matter most.

And nobody is ever too young or too old to enjoy receiving a Valentine. Especially if it's Martha Washington Candies . . . whose old-fashioned goodness is as traditional as St. Valentine's Day itself. We still have some red heart-shaped boxes to fill with our delicious candies . . . but we're sorry to say the supply is very limited. So please try to think of those whom you'd like to remember just a little earlier than usual this year.

RUSSIANS SEIZE TWO SUBURBS OF MANGANESE CITY

Tighten Rings on 175,000 Trapped Germans.

LONDON, Feb. 8 [Tuesday]—(AP).—The Red army crashed into the suburbs of manganese rich Nikopol in the eastern Dnieper bend area yesterday. The Russians also wiped out entire German garrisons in the Cherkasi pocket 200 miles to the northwest in a merciless extermination of 175,000 axis troops trapped in both areas, Moscow announced early today. Both battles were approaching a climax with the Russians effectively blocking the escape of five German divisions at Nikopol.

In the Cherkasi "death ring" where the Russians were beating down the savage resistance of the survivors of 10 German divisions, Moscow dispatches said the Red army's artillery now was within shelling range of axis air fields inside the pocket.

Pinned Within 40 Square Miles.

That development possibly accounted for the fact that the Russians did not mention the destruction of any more German transport planes in the area after destroying 112 of them in three days. The Germans had been trying to evacuate officers by transport plane.

At Nikopol the Russians smashed into its eastern outskirts, capturing five villages, two of them eight and three miles, respectively, from the heart of the city which the Germans held so long because of its manganese deposits so vitally needed for steel armor manufacture in Germany.

The Germans in the Cherkasi pocket have been hurled into a tight little knot of men fighting in an area reduced to 40 square miles. Continuing attempts by the German troops attacking outside the ring in an effort at rescue also have been smashed.

Capture 80 More Villages.

Moscow's bulletin did not mention the Estonian or old Polish fronts, but said Gen. Popov's 2d Baltic army had captured more than 80 villages north and northwest of Novosokolniki. One of these put the Russians about 50 miles from the Latvian border.

On the front south of Leningrad the bulletin said that Gen. Govorov's army had taken Pelkovo, 18 miles northeast of Luga junction on the Leningrad-Pskov railway.

Narva, eight miles inside the Estonian frontier, was menaced from three sides, but wet snow slowed soviet ski forces driving upon that bastion city. Reuters [British] news agency said the Russians had penetrated Narva's eastern suburbs.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN

Of fighting on the Russian front, Monday's German war bulletin, as broadcast by Berlin, said:

"In the Nikopol area [eastern Dnieper bend] the enemy continued his attacks with strong forces. Our troops repelled those attacks and in a counterthrust threw back some of the enemy fighting groups which had filtered in.

"In the area between Kirovograd and Belaya Tserkov numerous soviet attacks remained unsuccessful with the exceptions of local dents. Enemy attacks west of Polonoye were foiled. Two soviet battalions were wiped out by a German panzer division.

"At Vitebsk and south of the Berezina river, the soviets continued with superior forces their attempts to break thru. Our divisions in these two sectors after embittered fighting achieved another great defensive success.

"Fighting is still in progress north of Nevel where the soviets yesterday attacked with strong forces supported by tanks.

"Between Lake Ilmen and the Gulf of Finland German enterprises were successful after numerous enemy attacks had been repulsed."

ABBEY PEALS ITS FAITH AS ALLIES PLEDGE RESCUE

Benedictine Treasure to Be Restored.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Feb. 7.—With the battle at its height for the strategic town of Cassino and surrounding hills, it was disclosed today the allies have formulated plans to safeguard precious art and religious treasures as well as historic structures with which the region abounds when the German stronghold falls.

Most famous on this battered countryside is a famed abbey on towering Monte Cassino overlooking the town. Elaborate precautions are under way to avoid giving the Nazis an excuse to shell the ancient edifice on the pretext it is a military installation, according to officials of the allied military government [AMG].

To Safeguard Abbey's Contents.

The abbey, known the world over as the place where the Benedictine order was founded in the 6th century [520 A. D.], will be out of bounds to all military personnel except those with special passes to enter and inspect the premises on behalf of AMG, which will safeguard art and religious objects believed stored there.

Beside the valuable paintings and superb silver inlaid bronze doors, dating from the 11th century, the monastery contained a 90,000 volume library unmatched in unique examples of early printing, and had archives comprising many of the finest manuscripts dating from the 6th century. In addition, before the fall of Naples, the Germans moved 80 cases of art treasures from the Italian National museum, storing them in the monastery.

Will Restore Treasures.

Capt. Sidney Waugh of Amherst, Mass., who heads the fine arts and monuments section of the 5th army's AMG, said today it was not known whether all these objects are still there. He said it was reported recently everything was moved by enemy trucks farther north to an Italian castle in Spoleto.

"We plan to return everything to the museum with the help of the curators if they are stored in the abbey when recaptured," said Waugh, who is a sculptor. "The only others to be allowed inside are those assigned to guard the relics until the war moves on," he said.

Meanwhile the abbey, perched high above this valley, gleamed magnificently in the bright, winter afternoon sunlight and seemed unmindful of the tides of the war. There is a hole in the roof now for which the Americans are blaming the Germans, and the battle is drawing ever closer to its venerable threshold.

But soldiers returning from the front lines report that the abbey's chimes still are ringing thruout the day and evening, the same as when they first were heard weeks ago.

GERMANS RE-ENFORCE BOSNIA AS PARTISANS CUT SARAJEVO RAILS

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Germans were reported rushing reënforcements into eastern Bosnia today as fighting continued and Jugo-Slav Partisans scored again in their campaign of sabotage against Nazi communications.

Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz asserted his guerrillas at several points had broken the Sarajevo-Visegrad rail line serving southeastern Bosnia, which the Germans repaired recently. An enemy troop train was destroyed and the line west from Sarajevo to Mostar was cut, Tito's bulletin said.

Sharp fighting occurred in Croatia and at Perusac, 10 miles north of Gospic, 150 Germans were killed, it added.

ADMITS NAZIS HOLD INITIATIVE ON ANZIO FRONT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—A British military official said today that the British and American forces appear to be losing the initiative in the bridgehead south of Rome, but fears that they might be driven into the sea are unjustified.

The official, who declined to permit use of his name, said that in his opinion everything has not gone according to the books, but then it is not all lost either.

He said operations started splendidly and with complete surprise to the enemy. The objective was to cut the two main roads [via Appia and via Casilina], running from Rome to the enemy front lines to the south and southwest, but in this "there has been some disappointment, and the initiative tends now to pass to a certain extent to the Germans."

Question Early Hesitation.

Why the force in the bridgehead did not push on 30 to 40 miles inland will be answered when all the facts are known, he added.

He gave one hint, tho, by talking of the freedom with which Russian and German commanders may use their forces to take a long chance—and the lack of freedom available to British and American commanders when they may have to risk grave setbacks.

He said that Russian or German field commanders can be told to dispatch a force into a virtually hopeless position provided the objective to be gained is great enough, but that "we are not prepared to do that." He added that "public opinion must be ready for such things in this tough year ahead.

"It may be that in the months to come we shall have to show ability not to criticize the generals when they take risks for every great advantage even if they come to grief."

Weather Hampers Airmen.

Much of the difficulty encountered at the Italian beachhead was attributed to bad weather which has hampered aerial operations extremely, and it was said an improvement in the weather would bring a great improvement in allied chances to recoup the position.

[Ross Munro, Canadian press correspondent who covered earlier phases of the Italian campaign, wrote from London that "there is some concern here about the bridgehead battle south of Rome. The allied follow-up of the easy surprise landing at Nettuno appears to have been too slow. Failure to make full use of the advantage of the complete surprise achieved and thrust right to Rome or at least well over the Appian way now is causing difficulties. Some military observers here believe there was lack of daring during the first week after the landing, not by the troops but by the commanders. The whole operation does not seem to be going as well as anticipated and you get some worried looks in London when you ask about it."]

THOUSANDS FLEE FINNISH CAPITAL; FEAR NEW RAIDS

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Thousands of Finns fled from Helsingfors today, their capital still smoking from Russian bombings which wrote for their government a fiery notice to get out of the war now. The crisis for Finland appeared nearing a showdown.

Telephone communication between Stockholm and Helsingfors was disrupted early tonight, perhaps indicating another Russian attack.

A Moscow radio announcement said Reval [Tallinn] in Estonia also was bombed. This news aroused anxiety in Sweden, where planes patroled Stockholm in "training exercises," altho the weather was unfavorable for such routine.

The Swedish navy was reported taking measures to protect its Baltic shipping, and there was an air of renewed tenseness in Scandinavia.

They were accompanied by Naval Captains Henry Oster and C. E. Braine.

GERMANS WHISPERING OF SECRET GAS TO EXTINGUISH BRITISH

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 4 [Delayed].—Axis sources have begun a whispering campaign here about a German secret weapon which, one of them told me today, is an undetectable gas that can be ignited by bombs or shell fire after it has been laid down by aircraft.

My informant said the gas is tasteless, odorless, and colorless and is not intended to have a toxic effect. A heavy blanket of this gas would be distributed over London by aircraft, he said, then ignited by bombs, thus wiping out all life.

The gas is much heavier than air, according to the agent's story, and would spread. It would sink into all cellars and shelters and thus do a thoro job.

An Announcement of importance to every doctor in Chicago . . . .

In these days of food rationing, food shortages, harder work and longer hours multi-vitamins have gained a new importance. Doubtless you, doctor, are prescribing them more frequently, and that's why we'd like to draw your attention to Super-Kaps. For price, for purity, for potency, they are an ideal prophylactic supplement.

Q. What are Super-Kaps?

A. Super-Kaps are a new, potent, 8-vitamin dietary supplement, handled exclusively by Sears, Roebuck and Company.

Q. How does the formula measure up to medical standards?

A. Super-Kaps supply all the vitamins known to be essential in human nutrition—A, D, C, B_1, B_2, B_6, Niacin and Calcium Pantothenate. The potencies equal or exceed the minimum daily vitamin requirements established by the Government—a standard that was recently recognized as desirable in a dietary supplement by leading medical councils.

Q. What is the quality story of Super-Kaps?

A. Super-Kaps are regularly subjected to exacting chemical and biological assays—and are produced under the skilled supervision of America's largest capsulation laboratory. They bear the "Sears Approved" label—a label that is given only to those products that are, so far as we can determine, the best of their kind.

Q. How do Super-Kaps compare in price with other multi-vitamin products?

A. Super-Kaps cost only 3c a day—less (far less in most cases) than any comparable product we know. A 50-day supply is $1.69. A hundred-day supply is $2.98. A 200-day supply is $4.98.

Q. Where may Super-Kaps be bought?

A. In our own drug department. A vitamin consultant is always on hand to attend to your patients' needs.

Q. Does Sears handle other vitamin products?

A. Sears feels it has a right to call itself "Vitamin Headquarters." For not only are all the nationally known brands well represented, but we have an extensive line of our own—from Thiamin Chloride to Irradiated Ergosterol. Our policy is to supply people with the best in pharmaceuticals for the least money. And we will be glad to give you Super-Kap Vitamins, doctor, at any time, at a special professional discount of 10%.

SUPER-KAPS are laboratory-tested, and each box bears a control number as evidence of that fact.

This seal of approval means that Sears absolutely guarantees the potencies of Super-Kap Vitamins.

To prices quoted, approximately 2% will be added to cover Illinois Retailers' Occupational Tax

Know the Facts ON WHAT IT COSTS TO MAKE A Personal Loan

BANK CREDIT saves you half or more!

Know the facts.

A $100 loan plan that requires you to repay $10.07 a month for 12 months, means that you pay back a total of $120.84. Having borrowed only $100, the difference—$20.84—is the cost of your loan.

Save nearly two payments

The same loan amount would cost you only $8.00 at Merchandise Bank. That is our charge for a loan on your signature alone.

If you prefer to borrow with a co-maker, the cost would be only $5.50. Thus you can save at least $12.84—or as much as $15.34—depending on which plan you borrow.

In either case, the saving is nearly enough to make two monthly payments!

Arranged by phone

This example is typical of savings between most small loan plans and Merchandise Bank's extremely low charges.

If you are in need of a loan, or if you want to reduce present borrowing costs or monthly payments, it is to your advantage to use bank credit.

JAPS WILL FIGHT TILL U. S. IS WON, PRISONERS TOLD

Yank Death Toll 50 a Day, Col. Dyess Relates.

us. Be-des the dais stood a fat Filipino-Japanese boy, holding a straw hat in both his pudgy hands.

At length, the captain began to speak. After each long burst of gibberish the fat interpreter translated for us in a purring, lackadaisical monotone while the captain glared up and down our ranks.

"The captain, he say Nippon has capture Javver [sic], Sumatter, and New Guinyah," the fat boy said. "Captain, he say we soon have Austrayler and New Zealyer."

The interpreter stepped back while the Jap captain yelled at us again.

"The captain, he say America and Nippon enemies," the interpreter continued. "Always will be enemies. If Nippon do not defeat America this time, Nippon fight again and again until America defeated. Always will be war until America is Nippon's."

"Not Prisoners of War."

And now came the part of the "welcome" which was of most significance to us. The captain delivered it with particular violence, but it came to us in the interpreter's sibilant whisper:

"Captain, he say you not prisoners of war. You are sworn enemies of Japan. Therefore, you will not be treated like prisoners of honorable war. Captain, he say you will be treated like captives. He say you do not act like soldiers. You got no discipline. You do not stand at attention while he talk. Captain, he say you will have trouble from him."

It is true that in our state of hunger, thirst, and fatigue, many of us had paid little attention to the harangue. Some, indeed, actually had their backs turned toward this agent of the Son of Heaven. As to his threats of trouble, we figured he would have to be a genius to cause us any more trouble than we had had. The captain now was demanding that our commanding officer be pointed out. We didn't bother to answer.

The Captain Departs.

The interpreter spoke rapidly to the captain, explaining, as we later learned, that we were remnants of many organizations; that no officer was in charge. The captain glared at us a while longer, then stepped down and strutted away, followed by the waddling interpreter who still held his straw hat in both hands. The guards lined us up and we marched down the hill to the tumbledown buildings in the northernmost section of the camp.

Our first thoughts were of water, to drink and to bathe in. But there was very little. In our section of the camp there was only one faucet. The water was piped from a well across the road. The well's asthmatic gasoline pump broke down every hour or so.

We stood in line in the glare and heat, waiting to fill our canteens with tepid water. This eased our thirst somewhat, but we all were so dehydrated we could have drunk a gallon and still have felt need for more. Even our pores cried out for cool, clear water.

Given Messkit of Rice.

Soon afterward we each got one messkit of rice. There was no bread, meat, or fruit. Except for the ladle of rice at Orani and two bites of sugar on the road, this was my first food in six days of marching. It developed later that some of the American prisoners were kept on the road in the heat and dust as long as 12 days. Casualties among them were very high.

With 22 other officers of the air forces I was assigned to a tumbledown shack 14 feet wide and 20 feet long. The unfinished roof was open in the center, admitting the burning sunshine and the rain. There were neither cots nor mats. We pulled grass and weeds to lie on in dry weather. When it rained we crawled under the flooring.

There were no lights in the barracks, but there were plenty around the camp at night. Searchlights at Jap headquarters and atop the towers were trained along the barbed wire. Walking patrols were abroad at all times. Escape seemed impossible. A delirious soldier, who got out somehow, was flogged unmercifully and tied up by the wrists in the sun in front of headquarters.

Exposed to Sun Again.

The next day he was put into an open compound from which he also escaped. After the Japs seized him he was flogged within an inch of his life. Torn and bleeding, he again was exposed to the sun all day. He disappeared on the following day. We never saw him again, but we know he didn't escape.

When I began to get about the camp a little, I found that the quarters we had thought so miserable really were luxurious compared with those provided some of the men. Many had no shelter whatever.

When we had been at O'Donnell about a week, the daily death rate among the Americans was 20 a day. Filipinos were dying at a rate of 150 a day. In two weeks 50 Americans were dying each day. The Filipino death toll had soared to 350 each 24 hours.

The burial problem was serious. It was difficult to find men strong enough to dig graves. Regulation burial was unknown. Shallow trenches had to serve. Into these 10 or 12 bodies were dumped—often without identification tags—and covered by a thin layer of earth,

No Blankets for Patients.

Many new prisoners arrived daily. Most of them were sick and all were in varying stages of starvation. The ramshackle structure that passed as a hospital soon was packed. Men were laid shoulder to shoulder on the bare floor. There were no blankets. Many of the sick and dying were naked.

When all floor space had been taken, the patients were laid out on the ground beneath the floors. The stench of the place was beyond description.

The Japs provided no medicine. American doctors who were prisoners in the camp were given no instruments, medicines, or dressings. They were not allowed sufficient water to wash the human waste from the sick and dying men. When all "hospital" space was gone many American soldiers lay out in the open, near the latrines, until they died.

In the early days of our stay at O'Donnell there were no latrines or other sanitary facilities. There were flies by the millions. They droned all day long, settling alternately upon the filth, then upon the containers of gray rice the Japs issued to the prisoners. When the Japs at last issued shovels for digging latrines, most of the men were too weak to use them.

Prisoners Living Skeletons.

Starvation was everywhere. Men who had weighed 200 pounds or so now weighed 90 or less. Every rib was visible. They were living skeletons, without buttocks or muscle. On seeing a man lying asleep it was difficult to say whether he was alive or dead.

We hadn't the strength to move about much. My only walking was done on trips to the hospital to visit the men of the 21st pursuit squadron. I found one of my technical sergeants on the floor. He was naked and covered with defecation and flies. There were sores on his body—evidence of the violence he had done himself while delirious—and there was no antiseptic.

When I found him he was unable to drink water, eat rice, or recognize his friends. While on Bataan this man had weighed 185 pounds. When he died—soon after I came upon him—I doubt if he weighed 90.

Feeds Friend Fish and Rice.

Another man from the 21st had been stuffed beneath a building. His condition was about the same as that of the first. This time, however, I was able to buy for $5 a small, flat tin of fish from a Jap soldier and we thought we could save our friend. We stole water and washed him, then moved him into a building and covered him with a blanket.

We fed him the fish, mixed with rice. But it was too late. He died the next day.

The most common causes of death at O'Donnell were malaria, dysentery, and beri beri. Many of us were afflicted with all three of these at once. Mosquitoes descended upon us in clouds. Few of the prisoners had blankets, mosquito nets, or any other protection.

Fail to Deliver Medicine.

Frequently, when they were inspecting the wretched area, the Japs promised us medicines. They never delivered them, except on one occasion when the Red Cross was permitted to send in quinine from Manila for malaria patients. We never learned how much was sent. Tho thousands were sick and dying of malaria, the Japs issued just enough quinine to take care of about 10 cases.

Suffering was worst among the hundreds afflicted with beri beri, a disease resulting from a deficiency of vitamins in the diet. Feet, ankles, and legs were swollen almost double normal size. Faces were puffed up like balloons.

When the condition affected the heart, death followed quickly. There is no need here to describe the anguished deaths of the dysentery victims.

U. S. 'OUTRAGES' IN PHILIPPINES CHARGED BY JAP

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sadao Iguchi, spokesman for the Japanese board of information, sought yesterday to reply to American and British charges of atrocities committed by Japan against captive civilians and prisoners of war—by citing what he said was the record of "numerous outrages" against Japanese.

"The Anglo-American campaign to spread hatred against Japan has been motivated by the desire to cover up their own crimes," Iguchi declared in a statement broadcast by the Berlin radio.

He charged that "many of the 2,400 Japanese women who were confined at the Japanese primary school in Davao [in the Philippines] were raped."

56 "Murdered," Jap Charges.

He added that "on Jan. 20 [1942], as Japanese forces were about to land at Davao, Americans resorted to the most bestial treatment of 10 Japanese who were preparing food for their fellow internees. These men were bound with ropes, boiling water was poured upon them, their ears were cut off, their eyes gouged, their noses slashed, and their arms and legs amputated."

Iguchi listed these alleged incidents in California:

"Jugi Nano, an employe of the state garage in El Dorado st., Stockton, was assaulted and killed with a revolver in the early morning of Dec. 23, 1941.

"Shigemasa Yoshitoka, proprietor of the Sunrise hotel in Washington st., Stockton, was similarly murdered at his home on Feb. 20, 1942.

"Mr. and Mrs. Tanaka of El Centro and Mr. and Mrs. Shichiji Kikuchi of Brawley" were named as other victims.

Quarters Termed Inadequate.

Iguchi charged that Japanese internees were confined in dilapidated tents under adverse weather conditions at Fort Bliss, Tex., "in utter disregard of their suffering."

He declared Hatsuki Wakahp, suffering from tuberculosis, and Kota Isomura, suffering from a spinal disease, were shot to death by guards at Topaz relocation center in Utah on the pretext they were trying to escape.

Some 18,000 Japanese at Davao in the Philippines were forced to live under "abominable" conditions in a camp, he further charged, and 4,200 men, women, and children were "herded into the muddy grounds of the Central grammar school and kept there during a heavy rain for four days without proper shelter."

Food Described as Poor.

"No food was provided for them by the Americans for the first two days," he asserted, "and after that they were given only a handful of rice and a small amount of salt per day."

Japanese taken from Malaya and Burma by the British, he charged, were "thrown into holds of ships and sometimes into prisons and were almost completely robbed of their possessions."

Iguchi charged numerous instances of allied air attacks on Japanese hospital ships.

One Slain While Fleeing.

Topaz, Utah, Feb. 7 (AP).—Countering Japanese charges that two Japanese had been slain "on the pretext they were trying to escape" from the Topaz relocation center, Director Charles F. Ernst said today only one evacuee had been killed, and he was shot while fleeing from a sentry.

Slayings Remain Unsolved.

Stockton, Cal., Feb. 7 (AP).—The slayings of two Japanese here, which a spokesman for the Japanese board of information said were among "numerous outrages" against Japanese in the United States, remain unsolved mysteries because no tangible clews were left, records showed today.

Several Quizzed in Uprising.

El Centro, Cal., Feb. 7 (AP).—Sheriff's records disclose the arrest of several persons for questioning in the rise of anti-Japanese feeling in the Imperial valley soon after Pearl Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Shichiji Kikuchi of Brawley were shot to death Jan. 1, 1942, in their home.

Teiji Satomase, 28, of Salinas, and Iwao Tanaka, 24, were wounded in a clash Jan. 31, 1941, with Filipinos in El Centro.

JAPS RECAPTURE TOWN ON ARAKAN FRONT IN BURMA

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 7 (AP).—Japanese troops striking back on the Arakan front in southwestern Burma captured the town of Taung Bazaar on Feb. 4, an allied bulletin reported today. Enemy attempts to advance southwest of Taung Bazaar the next day were repulsed by the allies, who inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese and threw them back into the town.

Chinese troops held the initiative in northern Burma and routed several Japanese patrols east and west of Taipha Ga. Other Chinese forces operating west of Taro in the Hukawng valley defeated infiltrating Japanese units.

In the air R. A. F. fighter-bombers ranged over the Chin hills, blasting a Japanese camp and supply dump at Sitsawk, 30 miles east of Imphal, and an enemy headquarters unit at Falam. Other fighters patroled waterways on the Mayu peninsula and destroyed 11 small river boats.

CONGRESS GETS BILL TO FORCE JAPS TO SWEAR ALLEGIANCE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Legislation designed to rid the United States of all disloyal persons of Japanese origin or descent was introduced in the house today by Rep. Gearhart [R., Cal.].

The Californian's bill provides that every person born in Japan and now living in the United States and all those of Japanese descent must appear in a court of naturalization within 60 days and take an oath of allegiance or suffer loss of citizenship.

In the event the Japanese-American refuses to declare himself, he would be presumed to have expatriated himself wilfully and would be deported to Japan.

The oath a Japanese would be required to take under the Gearhart bill would declare his disbelief in the divine character and deific ancestry of the emperor of Japan or in any divine mission of the Japanese people or the emperor.

VATICAN CLAIMS FASCIST POLICE INVADE BASILICA

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Vatican's rights of extraterritoriality have been violated, the Vatican radio said tonight, by Fascist Italian police who forced entry into St. Paul's basilica in Rome. Thirteen buildings in Rome, outside Vatican city itself, enjoy the right of extraterritoriality, or freedom from jurisdiction by Roman or Italian authorities.

The Vatican radio, quoting Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, said armed guards under the command of Pietro Caruso, new prefect of police in Rome, forced entry into the basilica last Thursday night, "thus violating the right of extraterritoriality guaranteed by solemn treaties." A "formal strong protest" has been filed by the Vatican, the broadcast added.

The Basler Nachrichten of Basel, Switzerland, said today that Fascist police, despite protests of the rector, rushed into St. Paul's, searched it from the cellar to the roof and arrested 64 persons.

Advances reaching Goeteborg Sweden, meanwhile, said a German plane attempting a forced landing in Vatican city after an air battle with allied planes, dropped one bomb inside the Vatican and another a short distance outside. The plane crashed and its crew was killed.

BATAAN LEADER PAUSES HERE ON WAY TO CAPITAL

V. H. Spensley, national president of the Bataan Relief organization, paused yesterday in Chicago to reinforce his caravan of parents who are headed for Washington, D. C., to demand more aid for Gen. MacArthur and Japanese held prisoners of war.

V. H. Spensley.

Spensley, whose son died in a Japanese prison camp, was accompanied by the organization's secretary, Paul W. McCahon of Albuquerque, N. M., whose son is a Jap prisoner.

Spensley was met at the Dearborn street station by Chicago members of the organization, mothers and fathers whose sons are dead or prisoners in Japanese camps. They greeted him emotionally, and tearfully pleaded that he strive to bring aid to MacArthur and relief to their suffering sons.

Appeals Made by Mothers.

Demands were made by Mrs. Fred A. Witt, 3735 Bosworth av., Mrs. Catherine Aschenbrenner, 4134 N. Kilbourn av., Mrs. E. D. Kendall, 5445 N. Normandy av., Mrs. Virginia Sarno, 4111 W. Congress st., Mrs. Clarence Healy, 6543 S. Bishop st., and N. A. Bell of Oak Park. Their sons are all Japanese prisoners in the Philippines.

Mrs. Lucy Palermo, president of the Bataan Relief Organization of Illinois, and her daughter, Mrs. Julia Martoccio, left with Spensley for Washington to join in the nation-wide protest.

Spensley said that the two days of agitation are designed to make the administration aware of Gen. MacArthur's needs and an attempt to secure action. "We don't pretend to be military strategists," Spensley said, "but we think that Gen. MacArthur is, and when he says he needs men and supplies he should be given them without delay. That's what we're seeking."

Censorship Under Attack.

Spensley, whose organization and affiliates have a membership exceeding 150,000—all kin and friends of Japanese held prisoners in the Philippines—decried the administrative policy of withholding news from the American people until it suits its own purposes.

"News of the fate of Maj. Gen. Doolittle's flyers came during the second war loan," he said. "We learned about the atrocities in New Guinea during the third loan. And now come the Japanese horrors, during the fourth war loan. It's evident the news has been broken at this time to further the sale of war bonds. I don't think this strategy is necessary. The people will buy war bonds without it."

A. C. McArthur of Villa Park, president of the American Bataan clan, is also scheduled to attend tomorrow and Thursday's protests.

Mrs. Merian L. Tacy, 1209 N. Dearborn st., whose husband, Col. Lester J. Tacy, is a prisoner in the Philippines, also left for Washington yesterday. Representing the Filipino Guerrillas of Bataan, she said she would protest Japanese atrocities.

The city council committee on local transportation, headed by Ald. Quinn [50th], yesterday agreed to investigate complaints relayed by Ald. Sain [27th] that women are being rejected as fares by taxicab chauffeurs.

"I don't know whether the drivers are acting because of their traditional kick that 'women don't tip so well as men,' but many women have complained of inability to hire a cab," said Sain, "particularly at night."

Michael Sokol, president of the Checker Cab company, and Benjamin Samuels, vice president of the Yellow Cab company, promised the aldermen they would have women investigators make a survey.

Deputy Vehicle License Commissioner Gorman reported suspension of 157 drivers since September had reduced sharply the practice of overcharging.

BIG FIRMS NEAR THEIR GOAL IN BUYING OF BONDS

Sales of fourth war loan bonds to corporations were nearing their quota yesterday, but sales to individuals still lagged, with only 42 per cent of the goal reached in figures for sales thru last Saturday. Corporations sales of $407,012,000 equalled 87 per cent of the goal. Individual sales totaled $105,478,000.

The two sums combined equalled 71 per cent of the $721,818,400 sought in the drive, which closes next Tuesday for corporation sales, but has been extended to Feb. 26 for individual sales.

Yesterday was opening day and war bond day of the Radar-Radio industries week in Chicago. A queen of queens will be named Friday night in the Chicago stadium at a patriotic rally, which is expected to be attended by 18,000 radar-radio workers.

REVAMP TANKS AND BIG GUNS AT '2D FRONT' BASE

Job Speeded by Yanks from Chicago.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A U. S. ARMY SUPPLY BASE SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Feb. 7.—American tanks and artillery, newly arrived from the United States, are being modified before entering combat as a result of experience in Mediterranean campaigns.

Some changes entail many man hours of labor, but the men under Lt. Leslie J. Lange of 2476 Cullom av., Chicago, have been steadily cutting down on the time allowed for the jobs. One alteration, necessitating the removal and replacing of turrets from Sheridan [medium] tanks to provide more ammunition racks, was cut from 64 hours to 50 per tank. The men in this shop work from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. with one day off in eight.

Add Armor Plate.

An alteration has been made in Sherman M-4 tanks to permit the gunner to escape in case of fire.

Several points on the tanks which proved somewhat vulnerable in battle are being reënforced with armor plate welded to the outside.

These tanks had been constructed in America and made ready for shipment before the changes were decided upon. It is assumed they are now being incorporated by the manufacturers.

Changes in the guns include replacement of bushings and installation of grease connections in places where lubrication had proved inadequate.

Americans are using their own tools, but are working in a British built shop. The building has doors only on one side, which slows up operations somewhat, since it prevents the flow of equipment in from one side and out the other.

Recruited at International Plant.

The workmen are from a battalion recruited from the International Harvester company. Among them are Corp. Jack W. Firth of 11115 Edbrooke av., Chicago, who has charge of a five man crew, and Sgt. Fred Roudebush of Canton, Ill. Roudebush is a section chief in the general purpose vehicle department which repairs all types of army vehicles, British and Canadian, as well as American.

The hillsides surrounding this depot are covered with new American equipment awaiting use at the second front. There are tanks, scout cars, half tracks, armored cars, and artillery of all types. Not all these vehicles are awaiting modifications. Most are here pending assignment to units. Hub deep mud and churned-up hillsides tell the story of vehicles and weapons already moved to other points in this theater as the preparation for the new front goes on.

500 Missing as Jap Liner Founders Off Kagoshima

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Japanese liner Suisui Maru foundered with 700 persons aboard Sunday near Kagoshima and 500 are missing, the German agency DNB said tonight in a broadcast recorded by the United States intelligence service. Kagoshima is a major port of Kyushu, southernmost Japanese island. The ship might have struck a mine or been torpedoed.

JAILED FOR PURSE SNATCHING.

Judge McGarry in Felony court yesterday sentenced John T. Harris, 38, Negro, 305 E. 55th st., to one year in jail and fined him $200 for snatching two purses.

CHICAGO YANKS' CLUB IN BRITAIN ARRANGES FETE

Founder of Knapsack Library Honored.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Members of Chieto [Chicagoans in the European theater of operations] tonight decided to stage a "get-together" party for Chicago service men here within the next month. Between 300 and 400 Chicagoans are expected at the party, which will wind up with a show in which British stage, screen, and radio stars will take part.

The board of directors appointed a subcommittee consisting of Sgt. Abe Rosen of 1627 Trumbull av., Master Sgt. Russel Holt of 4736 Washington blvd., and Lt. Vincent d'Tolly of 7137 Luella av., to work out the details and fix the date and place.

3,350 Already Enrolled.

Lt. Col. Harry J. Dooley, who presided at the board meeting and was assisted by the club secretary, Miss Irene Schaffer of 1020 Lawrence av., said the total membership of the club is 3,350 and is increasing as more Chicagoans arrive in the European theater of operations. The Iceland branch of the club, he disclosed, has 40 members; Belfast, Northern Ireland, has 100 members, and Londonderry 75 members.

Dooley added that Ambassador William Phillips, personal representative of the President to India, and Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., ambassador to exiled governments in London, had expressed surprise at the success with which the Chicagoans had organized, and that Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers had said he had never before seen such coöperation among soldiers from any one city in America.

Industrialist Made Member.

Dooley announced that Edward J. Hurley Jr., president of the Hurley Machine company of Chicago, whose London offices now house the Chieto business headquarters, had been made an honorary member of the club.

Dooley also submitted the names of the lord mayor of London, Frank Newson-Smith, the mayoress, and Mrs. Maurice Marwick of 371 Woodlawn av., Glencoe, Ill., for honorary membership. Mrs. Marwick is the originator of the "knapsack" library. She and her co-workers have devoted much time, Dooley said, to forwarding books to Chicagoans and other American service men in every theater of operations.

TERMS OF ARMISTICE FOR GERMANY UNDER STUDY, HULL ADMITS

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP).—Secretary of State Hull said today that the state department is exploring armistice terms for Germany. He said he does not know whether information compiled has been submitted to the allied advisory commission in London.

Hull emphasized that it is the task of the council to study armistice terms.

Asked whether a final American draft on armistice arrangements has been drawn, Hull replied he would not undertake so ambitious a statement.

WE DON'T WANT A 'NEW' NATION, POLES HERE SAY

Protest Reds Are Moving to Sovietize Europe.

Chicago Polish Americans yesterday assailed the new Russian statement, envisioning a "new" Poland, and intimating plans to ignore the existing Polish government in London, as another move toward sovietizing Europe. They called on the United States, Great Britain, and other allied nations to prevent such a violation of the principles for which the war is being fought.

Janusz L. Stamirowski, director of the Polish information service, said there is no "new" Poland, any more than there is an "old" Poland. "The only Poland is represented by the government in London," he said.

Defends Government.

The Moscow radio said that with the liberation of the Polish people from the "Fascist" yoke, "a new democratic Poland" will arise. Stamirowski protested that patriotic Poles will recognize no government except that lodged in London, which, he said, is the representative of Polish political opinion. He said that the existing Polish government is democratic enough, "even for the soviets."

Sigmund Stefanowicz, head of the Polish Journalists' guild, described the Moscow comment as a step toward sovietizing Poland and the rest of Europe. "It's merely a continuation of the Stalin program to communize Europe," he said. "It's time the united nations demanded the end of this activity. It is certainly contrary to the aims of the war."

Polish opinion would be more than 99½ per cent against the setting up of a puppet Polish government, whether it was in Poland or Moscow, Karol Piatkiewicz, editor of the Polish Zgoda, said. He echoed Stefanowicz's words that the scheme was part of an organized plan to sovietize Europe.

Hits Red Dictatorship.

"It would be idle to pretend that there is no reason for the distrust of Russia in her aim to establish a new Polish state," said the Rev. Father Mitchell N. Starzynski, editor of the Polish Daily News, "for facts have disposed of the value of Russia's promises. We miss, therefore, the accents of conviction and high resolve in Russia's plan in regard to Poland's future.

"One can only experience a highly diverting delusion when he hears that Russia—a dictatorship as absolute as history has recorded—speaks of 'a new democratic Poland.'"

177 POLES SHOT DEAD IN WARSAW, AGENCY REPORTS

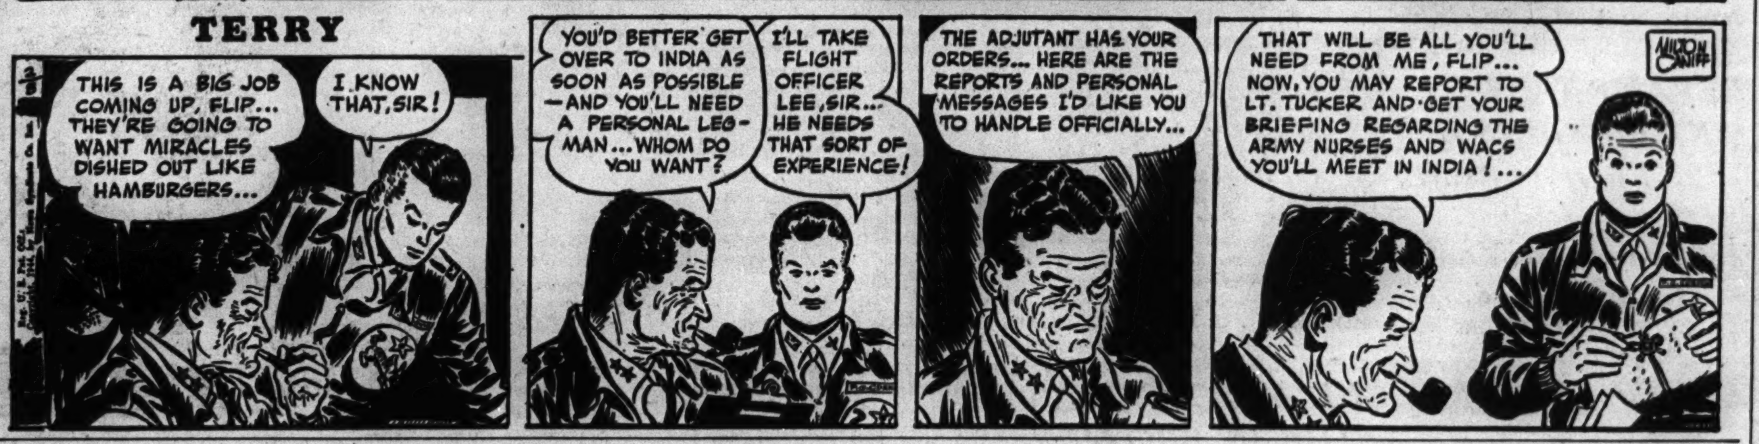
LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Polish telegraph agency said today 177 hostages were shot by the Germans in Warsaw the last two weeks in October. Details have just come from Poland, the agency listing Miss Janina Aszenazy, daughter of Dr. Simeon Aszenazy, Polish historian and delegate to the league of nations, as among those executed.

"The hostages were shot on Warsaw's main streets in bunches of 10, in view of the populace," the agency said. "The shootings were ordered by Hans Frank, governor general of the occupied country, as reprisals for guerrilla sabotage.

"Two women, who kneeled in prayer over the bodies of one group of victims, were also shot."

SHOT IN STOMACH.

William Wilbanks, 18, Negro, 19 W. 60th st., told police yesterday that a man whose name was unknown to him shot him in the stomach near 63d st. and South Park av.



BABY RAPED AND SLAIN, SEAMAN IS HELD; FEAR MOB

Officials Move Fast in Coast Mystery.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Feb. 7 [Special].—In this quiet town, where three men were lynched 23 years ago for their assault on a trio of girls, justice moved swiftly tonight against a young merchant seaman accused of beating to death a baby girl. She was Lani Maurine Sumners, 3½, the daughter of a woman with whom he had been living and of a navy man missing in action.

A special session of the Sonoma county grand jury was being considered by the district attorney, while arraignment of the sailor on a murder charge was scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Held in Prison Solitary.

The seaman, Allen B. Lembke, 22, was held in solitary confinement at San Quentin prison, where he was rushed Saturday to avoid possibility of mob violence after an autopsy showed the child had been raped. The victim died Friday.

According to officials, Lembke denied the sex crime and also repudiated a reported confession that he had beaten the child with his fist for five minutes "because she wouldn't mind me."

The child's mother, Mrs. Elaine Sumners, 25, was in the Sonoma county hospital here with her 6 weeks old baby, Diane. She is held as a witness and for further questioning.

Fell, Mother Asserts.

Beating of the child occurred at a Guerneville cottage, apparently last Wednesday, the day her mother, an attractive blonde, received word her husband, Roy, a torpedoman, was missing in action aboard a submarine. The mother, prosecutors said, attempted to cover up the fatal beating by saying the child fell down a flight of stairs at her home.

She admitted later, they said, that Lembke had beaten the infant in a fit of temper. Both Mrs. Sumners and Lembke denied any knowledge of rape.

Examining physicians reported the child had been beaten all over her body and said she had suffered rape and cerebral hemorrhages.

For the last 20 days Lembke had been staying with Mrs. Sumners at the Guerneville cottage the navy had obtained for her, according to the sheriff.

Meanwhile officials redoubled precautions to prevent violence—remembering the lynching of the three men in 1920. They were George Boyd, Terence Fitts, and Charles Valento, members of the old San Francisco Howard st. gang which assaulted three girls and killed three police officers.

DAVIS WINS OWI FEUD; 3 AIDS OF SHERWOOD QUIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—The "duel" between OWI Director Elmer Davis and Robert Sherwood, the President's ghost writer, over control of foreign propaganda policy has ended with these results, reported today:

James P. Warburg.

1. Three top executives in Sherwood's overseas division have suddenly resigned. Several weeks ago Davis ordered Sherwood to fire them, the latter refused and carried the dispute to President Roosevelt.

2. Davis will not resign his OWI post—at least for a while. He has asserted his supreme authority over the government's propaganda operations.

The officials in the New York OWI overseas office who were ousted were James P. Warburg, German born banker and director of OWI psychological warfare; Joseph Barnes, director of Atlantic operations, and Edd Johnson, chief of the overseas editorial board.

ROBERT SCOTT, HOLDUP KILLER, DIES IN PRISON

Brother's Battle for Life Rocked U.S.

Robert Scott, who with his brother, Russell, killed a clerk in a drug store holdup at Washington and La Salle sts. on April 2, 1924, and for the next three years figured in a series of sensational efforts to escape the noose, died last night in the state prison at Joliet.

Robert was 43 years old and had been in prison under a life sentence since July 13, 1926. Russell, who sought to throw full blame for the killing of the clerk, Joseph Maurer, on Robert, hanged himself Oct. 8, 1927, in his county jail cell. At the time he was awaiting a hearing to determine whether he was sane enough to be executed or insane enough to be returned to the Chester asylum.

Clubwomen Plead for Him.

The slaying of Maurer and the theft of $500 from the drug store—it was called the City Hall pharmacy and was a cross the street from the city hall—were routine crimes until the arrest of Russell Scott and the subsequent efforts to save him from execution. Detroit, Mich., clubwomen provided a $5,000 defense fund, national radio appeals were made to Robert to surrender and aid Russell, and a last minute telegram purportedly sent by Robert but subsequently proved a hoax, caused the late Gov. Len Small to grant a reprieve a few hours before the original date of execution. The late Clarence Darrow was asked to defend Russell, but he was busy fighting the Dayton, Tenn., "monkey case" with William Jennings Bryan, and declined. Even President Coolidge was asked to aid.

Product of Fabulous 20s.

Russell Scott was a product of the famous era of the 1920s. A year before the murder he was the head of a $30,000,000 financial sales corporation in Toronto with a dozen branch offices and 800 employes. Then he was sued for breach of promise—he was married and had three children—and he fled. The company went into receivership.

In the next few months Russell Scott became a vaudeville performer, ran with thieves and crooks, and became a stickup man. Robert, his younger brother, joined him, and Russell confessed they robbed 25 Chicago shops and stores before they killed Maurer.

JEWELRY STORE ROBBED.

Watches and jewelry valued at $947 were taken from the Wurtz Jewelry store at 6207 Broadway early yesterday, Paul Wurtz, proprietor, reported to police.

G. O. P. PETITIONS DOMINATE EARLY FILINGS IN STATE

Democrats Holding Back in Many Districts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 7.—The plight of the Democratic party in downstate Illinois was brought into sharp focus yesterday when it was disclosed that no Democrats had filed nominating petitions in 13 of the 15 congressional districts outside of Cook county on the first filing day.

In addition, Rep. Church [R., Evanston] was without opposition in either party for the time being in the 10th district, which takes in the northern part of Cook county as well as all of Lake county.

The Republican incumbents in nine of the downstate districts had no immediate opponents filing, while in two other districts no Republican was challenging their renomination.

Circulate Sumner Petitions.

The only district in the state without any candidate filed was the 18th, where Rep. Jessie Sumner, militant Republican, has yielded to pleas to run again. Petitions in her behalf are being circulated.

Observers noted the absence of Charles M. Thompson, until recently dean of the University of Illinois college of commerce, from the first day filings for the 18th [Champaign] district. He had announced he would run. Two other candidates already have filed.

G. O. P. Dominates Senate Race.

Contests for the state senate likewise were dominated by the Republicans in the early filings. In eight legislative districts the G. O. P. incumbents had entered the primary without immediate signs of opposition. In the Chicago north side 31st district, Rep. Saltiel [R.], running for a senate vacancy, was without opponents, but it is known that the Democrats will make a major effort to capture this seat.

Delay until last Saturday of State's Attorney Courtney's announcement of his candidacy for governor is believed to have caused many potential Democratic aspirants for congress and the state legislature to hold back.

Following are the first day's filings for congress and the legislature in the Chicago area, [*] denoting incumbent:

IOWA FARMER WAIVES OPA SALARY AS HEAD OF MIDWEST REGION

Rae E. Walters.

Rae E. Walters, new administrator of the office of price administration's seven state midwest region, disclosed yesterday that he is introducing to the job at least two innovations. He said that he will waive his $8,000 a year salary and serve without pay, and that he plans to be on the job daily at 7 or 8 a. m.

Walters, farmer and business man of Harlan, Ia., took over the regional administrator's office and held his first press conference in his headquarters in the W-r Agencies building, 226 Jackson st. He said he would concentrate the efforts of his regional and district staffs on strict enforcement of price control and rationing to combat inflation, and assure a fair share of scarce commodities to every one.

Walters entered the OPA program early in 1942 as chairman of the Harlan ration board. He became district director last June 7. He is 53 years old, owner of a rendering company and two farms, and also is in the wholesale and retail feed business.

FEDERAL COURT BATTLE OPENED BY STEPHENSON

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 7 [Special]. —All legal remedies available in the state courts in Indiana have been exhausted by D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, during his 18 year battle to win freedom from the Michigan City, Ind., state prison, his attorneys argued today in federal court here.

Stephenson, who is serving a life sentence for the murder in 1925 of Madge Oberholtzer, Indianapolis statehouse stenographer, is seeking for the third time to obtain nullification of the sentence thru a federal writ of habeas corpus. Today's arguments were on a state motion for dismissal of Stephenson's petition.

Atty. Oscar B. Thiel of Gary, representing Stephenson, told Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert that the Indiana Supreme court has blocked his client's efforts to obtain redress in the state courts by issuing a writ of prohibition suspendinga habeas corpus action filed in La Porte county.

Judge Swygert took the case under advisement.

SNARLED SENATE DELAYS VOTE ON SOLDIER BALLOT

BY JOHNSON KANADY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—The senate late today put off until tomorrow its decision on the soldier ballot bill after a demand by Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.], majority leader, that the language of the Green-Lucas bill be substituted for the bill already passed by the house. If the senate votes the substitution the controversial soldier vote question would be ironed out in conference committee.

Faced with a parliamentary snarl that threatened to stretch into the night, the senate determined to finish its work on the bill tomorrow, after greatly modifying the Green-Lucas legislation by requiring that votes be cast by name of candidate instead of by party designation.

Administration Has Strength.

Indications were that when the matter comes to a vote tomorrow the administration will have the strength to knock out the Rankin-Vursell-Eastland state ballot bill, already approved by the house, and substitute a federal ballot plan of some sort or other.

In a conference at the White House today, President Roosevelt issued orders to Democratic leaders to complete the soldier vote matter before taking up any of the serious problems which face this congress. With this order the administration majority tomorrow will probably wind up the senate's deliberations.

Several Courses Possible.

Several courses are open to the senate. It could approve the state ballot bill passed by the house; it could pass the Lucas-Green federal ballot bill; it could pass the bill sponsored by Sen. Taft [R., O.] for federal ballots only in cases where states had not passed suitable absentee voting laws; or it could adopt the plan of Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] providing for state ballots in response to a post card application from eligible service men.

Sen. Overton [D., La.] was unsuccessful once again today in his attempt to bring the senate to consideration of the state ballot bill passed by the house. He succeeded on a second attempt, however, after several who had been voting against his motion criticized the administration leadership for delay, and switched over to Overton's side. On the first vote on his motion, Overton lost, 44 to 42. He won the second vote, 50 to 38.

Barkley Balks Action.

This vote stalled the administration's attempt to pass the bill fostered by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] and Sen. Green [D., R. I.] who, when he was governor of Rhode Island, won notoriety by purging his state's Supreme court. Work then started on studying the house approved bill —a project that halted abruptly when Barkley moved to substitute the Green-Lucas bill.

The requirement that the federal ballot be voted by name instead of by party was the most important change in the federal ballot plan today. Sen. Ferguson attempted to make the change last week and was defeated, 45 to 39.

COUNTY BUDGET CREAKS ALONG OUT OF BALANCE

Revenue Is $700,000 Short of Costs.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Cook county's budget makers, after a series of delays, are preparing to figure out and advertise their appropriation bill for 1944. They are confronted with a chronic problem: How to make spending low enough to match estimated revenues.

The tentative budget, prepared by Commissioner Ryan and experts of the county staff, is to be considered sometime this week by the board. It is out of balance by more than $700,000—expenditures of $20,748,000 to be met with revenues of $20,032,000.

Old Debts a Budget Hurdle.

The figures quoted do not include old debts, amounting to 12⅛ million dollars, which must be cleared up before the county's credit will be reëstablished. Efforts to accomplish this are in a large degree responsible for delaying the budget.

Of the old debts, $8,346,000 were to have been paid by selling bonds authorized by the legislature. This issue was sold last fall to Seipp, Princell and company, subject to a legal opinion on its validity. No date has been set for completing the transaction. The creditors are not getting paid, altho their sales to the county were all made before Dec. 1, 1942. The county also has nearly 4 millions of debts contracted since December, 1942—a new deficit.

Assessor Comes to Rescue.

County revenue from taxation was pegged by the legislature at 9½ millions. That was more than the maximum that could be levied until Assessor Clark announced his assessment would be on a 100 per cent valuation instead of 37 per cent. Under the Clark plan, the county can levy up to 20 millions in taxes.

Clayton F. Smith, board president, has said that the intention is to get spending down to the pegged levy plus other revenue, and to top the peg for enough to cover the 1943 deficit.

The difficulty in cutting is great. Pressure for higher appropriations is strong. Some of the union help around county institutions have a higher scale than private employers pay; social work agencies have demanded hundreds of thousands more for the year; a $15 a month increase for employes earning less than $3,000 a year has been asked and apparently granted [cost $400,000].

Ryan has been insistent on a balance. "There is just so much money to spend," he said, "and we have to stay inside that figure."

The commissioners will meet at Smith's call tomorrow or Thursday.

At a board meeting yesterday, new bids for milk to county institutions, were opened and awarded.

DEMOCRATS EYE RUNNING MATES FOR COURTNEY

With State's Atty. Courtney in the race as a candidate for governor, Democrats today will turn their attention to the other vacant positions on the state ticket. The state central committee, augm-nted by other party leaders and members of the downstate draft-Courtney movement, will meet in St. Nicholas hotel in Springfield to talk candidates and party harmony.

Apparently leading in favor for the lieutenant governor's place on the ticket were W. E. C. Clifford of Champaign, former state senator, and William Vicars of Pontiac, minority leader of the house.

Richard J. Daley, senate minority leader, has been mentioned as a possibility for attorney general and as a candidate for state auditor.

Edward J. Barrett, former state auditor and state treasurer, now in the marines, may get the call as candidate for state auditor and also has been mentioned for secretary of state.

Local Democrats generally expressed approval yesterday of the selection of William J. Touhy to make the race for state's attorney against John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Republican county committee.

DEMANDS ICKES BE CALLED ON ARABIA OIL DEAL

Senator Says It's Treaty and Needs Approval.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] declared today the government's plan to build a 1,250 mile pipe line in Arabia is a "treaty" that needs approval of congress, and Interior Secretary Ickes should be called on the carpet to explain.

Ickes has announced that the Petroleum Reserves corporation plans to build the pipe line under an agreement with the Arabian-American Oil company and the Gulf Exploration company to tap Arabian and Kuwait oil reserves. Secretary of State Hull told his press conference the United States has not reached the point of actually making formal negotiations for rights of way, however.

Terms It a Treaty.

"Before that contract could be effected it would require the consent of the government of Saudi Arabia, and that's a treaty," Moore said in a statement.

"It's the commitment of the government to a large expense [estimated cost from 130 to 165 millions] without the approval of congress or any appropriation."

Demands Congress Act.

Moore said that he will "press as hard as I know how" for "legislative action" on his resolution to dissolve the PRC, and to "bring Ickes before congress."

Two days before Ickes announced the Arabian deal, Moore told congress that this government's participation in foreign oil operations would lead to international complications and "be the breeding places of future wars."

WOMAN ADMIRER OF HITLER HELD IN FBI ROUNDUP

A woman who became affiliated with the bund in hope she could win Hitler's favor after her repatriation, and an attorney who possessed Japanese government propaganda, were among four German born persons seized as enemy aliens over the week-end, Spencer J. Drayton, head of the FBI in Chicago, disclosed yesterday.

The woman, 22, arrested in the 4800 block on Lincoln av., said her cousin was a radio operator on the Graf Spee, German pocket battleship scuttled by her crew off South America. The attorney, 35, was described as a prosecutor for the reich before he emigrated to this country in 1932. He lived in the 5400 block on University av.

Another seized is a restaurateur, 38, who catered to a German-American clientele on Lincoln av., and sought to buy supplies for interned German sailors. He lived near Halsted st. and Wrightwood av. The fourth, 40, kept on display in his home in the 500 block in S. Bell av. a portrait of Hitler, a swastika flag, and Nazi propaganda booklets.

SAUDI ARABIA'S RULER EXPECTED TO O. K. OIL LINE

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 7 (AP).—Strong indication that Ibn Saud, ruler of Saudi Arabia, will approve the proposal to lay a pipe line from the Persian gulf to the eastern Mediterranean came from officials in Cairo today. A member of that country's legation said the king probably would base his consent on suitable returns in the form of goods for development of the country.

[Secretary Ickes has announced that the Petroleum Reserves corporation plans to build a 1,250 mile pipeline, under an agreement with the Arabian-American Oil company and the Gulf Exploration company. The cost is estimated at from 130 to 165 million dollars.]

Oil men in the middle east expressed the belief that the line could be completed in six months. The project would require a big quantity of special desert equipment as the line would cross an area seldom traversed by man.

G. O. P. ASPIRANT FOR SENATE HITS GREEN REGIMÈ

Deneen A. Watson, a Chicago lawyer, last night opened his radio campaign as an independent Republican candidate for United States senator by attacking Gov. Green and advocating an international army. Watson headed the defunct Republican Post-War Policy association.

Watson charged that Gov. Green has built a political machine. Persons desiring to do business with the state must first see Gilbert Keebler, formerly administrative auditor to the governor, Watson said. Green is responsible for this method of doing business, he said.

LAWYERS BEGIN BATTLE TO KILL SEDITION CASES

Move for a Dismissal on Three Grounds.

August Klapprott, and Peter Stahrenberg, all of New York; Ellis O. Jones, Los Angeles, and William Dudley Pelley, Noblesville, Ind. Today's arraignments brought the total arraigned to 26. The other four are en route to Washington. John Rogge, special assistant to Atty. Gen. Biddle, who is conducting the case for the government, said. Mrs. Dilling entered a plea of not guilty, by mail, on Jan. 26.

Mrs. Dilling appeared in court today after exhibiting to reporters a false nose and mustache and a badge bearing the words "I am a spy." She did not wear the disguise or badge in court, but told reporters she intended to wear them thruout the trial.

Wants Cushion for Chair.

Mrs. Dilling carried a sheaf of mimeographed reports giving her views on the indictments. She distributed these to reporters and others who would accept them.

Before entering the courtroom, she told reporters that she intended to petition the judge for a cushion for the chair she will occupy during the proceedings. She said the chairs are "too hard."

Judge Eicher called upon federal marshals to seat two of the defendants forcibly. The marshals were called upon after Jones and Noble refused to heed the admonition of Judge Eicher to "sit down!"

PRINCETON HEAD TELLS ISSUES FACING NATION

Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton university, said here yesterday that the greatest question to face the nation after the war is whether government should continue to be highly centralized and paternal, or whether the citizens would demand a return to democratic processes.

Dodds commended the idea of post-war education of war veterans, but said the plan would be successful only if both students and schools were allowed freedom in choosing curricula. Government control would be unfortunate, he said.

Wider education will help insure democracy, Dr. Dodds said. A democracy, more than any other form of government, needs an educated electorate, he added.

Dr. Dodds will be guest of Chicago alumni of Princeton at the Chicago club this noon and address a Princeton reunion tonight.

25,000 MECHANICS CALL ARMISTICE IN STRIKE AT 44 PLANTS

Cleveland, O., Feb. 7 (AP).—The national administrative committee of the Mechanics Educational Society of America temporarily ended a four day strike today, sending 25,000 members back to war jobs in 44 Ohio and Michigan plants.

The committee, a 110 member executive board, resolved 102 to 8 to call the armstice, saying the union "reserves the right to defend its interests by the full use of its economic strength."

The group named a delegation of 10 members, including President George White and Secretary Mathew Smith, to "wait on" the national labor relations board and the war labor board at Washington, D. C., tomorrow.

Army Takes Over.

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 7 (AP).—The army, acting speedily on a Presidential order, late today took over seven Fall River textile mills where labor trouble "is holding up the flow of material urgently needed by our men in combat areas."

The members of three independent unions have been on strike for nine weeks—a strike affecting 6,000 employes. Disagreement over a seniority clause in a new contract was the basis of the walkout.

Argentina Names Espil Ambassador to Brazil

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Argentine foreign ministry announced today that Felipe Espil had been appointed ambassador to Brazil, succeeding Gen. Arturo Rawson. Espil was a former ambassador to the United States. Rawson was leader of last summer's military revolution and president of Argentina for 48 hours.

WORKERS DEFY CIO PICKETS TO HELP THE NAVY

Patriotic workers of the Automatic Transportation company's plant at 101 W. 87th st., manufacturing equipment for the navy, kept production up to 80 per cent of capacity yesterday despite the attempt of a CIO union to picket the factory in what E. F. Twyman, general manager, described as a "damnable plot."

Lt. George Barnes, in charge of the police department's labor detail, had 40 policemen at the gates when the first shift reported at 7:30 a. m. "Every man who wants to work can go to work," he announced.

All Departments Operated.

Nearly every employe except the few identified by Twyman as "ringleaders" of the unauthorized strike went thru the gates. Production continued in every department.

The factory has 850 employes, including 650 in the production departments, making automatic ammunition handling devices that the navy said are needed urgently. Some of the workers are members of the United Automobile Workers union [CIO], others are in the AFL electrical workers' union, and some are members of an independent union. In April, 1942, when there were fewer employes, the CIO union won a representation election conducted by the national labor relations board, but the company did not give the union a contract.

CIO Takes Secret Action.

Twyman said a group of 18 members of the CIO union, headed by Edward Flaws, 609 E. 71st st., employed as a wireman, engineered yesterday's attempt to shut down production at a secret meeting held last Friday night.

"It is a damnable situation when a group like this can interfere with necessary war production," Twyman said. "The ringleaders are saboteurs, and should be treated as such. They will not work in this plant again, I'll guarantee that!"

Twyman had a statement distributed to all employes. It said: "CIO 'leaders' plan to form a picket line in front of our plant and to induce you to stop vital war production. There is no question in our minds what you will do about this plot. You can be sure that any one who tries to stop the vital war production will be met the way he should be met—the way the boys from the front would meet him if they were here."

Woman Admits Stealing 50 Letters to Get $150

New City police said last night that Mrs. Helen Zyblonricz, 18, of 4724 Bishop st., has admitted stealing more than 50 letters from apartment building mailboxes since Christmas. Detectives Joseph P. Galvin and James J. McCann, who arrested her while she was attending a gymnasium class in Davis Square park, said she collected about $150 as her share of stolen checks. Two other young women are being sought by the police.

STRIKES CLOSE 25 FOUNDRIES; 2,000 MEN IDLE

Twenty-five foundries in Chicago and suburban areas, engaged in vital war production, were shut tight yesterday as the result of a strike of nearly 2,000 workmen, members of local 233 of the Molders and Foundry Workers Union of North America [AFL].

Threatened walkouts at a dozen or more other plants did not materialize, but fears were expressed that sympathy strikes eventually might close them also, if the foundry strikes persisted. No violence was reported.

The strikes came as a protest against the refusal of the regional war labor board to affirm a wage boost of 6 cents an hour agreed upon by the union and the employers as represented by the Chicago Foundrymen's association. The disputed wage boost would give the strikers an average of $2.40 more a week in their individual pay envelopes.

Meanwhile, union officials, employers, Mayor Kelly, and others were making every effort to settle the dispute. The mayor wired William H. Davis, chairman of the war labor board in Washington, to step in as quickly as possible.

Challenge for Your Advertising

Today, a good half of American business is tearing pell mell down a dead end street...War Production Street. We're beginning to see the end of that street... getting braced for the four wheel brakes... getting set to shift gears.

Shorn of syllables and red tape—that shift must be: from producing to selling.

Here's the Reason:

Since 1939 American production has doubled. The war effort has taken the results of this increase. Yet, to shut down these new plants, to fire all of the new workers, to slam plant doors in the faces of returning soldiers, would dump a problem into the laps of Americans—too big to be solved.

Somehow, some way, those plants will be run—those people employed. Thoughtful, responsible, front page business men warn that if business can't do it, some other group must. But it will take, according to the Committee for Economic Development, some third again as many sales as in our last peacetime year.

This is obviously no "Saturday off" selling job. It's a job — at easiest—that calls for the smashing of precedents, the erection of new guide posts.

It Can Be Licked—Here's Why

Under the "overtime conditions" of war production, almost half the nation, the Wage Earners, have tasted the luxury of free choice. These millions of families, who for the past half generation have bought the bulk of goods by sheer virtue of numbers, are today outbuying most other kinds of families on a per capita basis as well. More than that—they are saving one-fourth of their wages. And these pent up dollars form the lion's share of the nation's backlog of war savings, already recorded at more than sixty billion dollars.

If your advertising, backed by bold planning, can keep these families buying—you can keep them earning. As you keep them earning, you keep "relief checks" a problem of the past.

Strangers in the Temple

Next to the war effort alone this is the biggest, toughest challenge your advertising ever faced. For these families are better known to industry's production department than to its marketing department.

To win these relative strangers as customers and partners—within the time limit—your advertising needs a better than average chance. Call it a "flying start" or the kind of hearing usually reserved for a "friend of the family".

And it's no trick of fate that Macfadden magazines have this kind of entree. It's the result of a time-proven editorial formula twenty-five years old (this week).

At the beginning of this quarter century of publishing there were no Wage Earner magazines—there was no "Wage Earner Market" for that matter—the very term was first applied by the Macfadden Company to describe its new millions of magazine buyers.

The Common Touch

Twenty-five years of talking their language, looking at their problems their way, reading and answering their mail (to the tune of some hundreds of thousands of pieces) have given Macfadden magazines a hold on their minds and hearts that is approached by no other magazines, no other business.

Pinned down to brass tacks this is evidenced in two main ways:

First, advertisements in Macfadden magazines are better read, on the average, than the advertisements in other magazines.

Second, the Macfadden Company sells more magazines, issue by issue on the nation's newsstands, than does any other publisher of adult magazines.

Yes, industry needs these Wage Earner families—needs them at the polls and at the cash registers.

And with its quarter century of single-purpose publishing behind it, this Company makes this pledge:

To furnish to Industry a means of communication with Wage Earning America through magazines which enjoy reader confidence, loyalty and respect. To maintain our service to Industry as the most authoritative private source of knowledge and understanding of these people upon whom Industry—and, indeed, our entire economic system as we presently know it—must depend.

The Common Man, well informed, working with good will, is America's greatest safeguard.

MacARTHUR'S TACTICS.

Both the establishment of the Anzio beachhead behind the German winter line south of Rome and the American operations in the Marshall Islands follow a tactical principle that has been used with frequent success by Gen. MacArthur in the Solomons and New Guinea.

Before Anzio, the Nazis face the hard choice of withdrawing from the Cassino front or having their troops there cut off from supplies in the event of further allied advances. The Germans have already pulled a large part of the strategic reserve that they were holding north of Rome southward in the effort to wipe out the beachhead. In the Marshalls the fleet bypassed the more easterly islands, with their Jap garrisons, to hit Kwajalein, where the enemy has been wiped out. The Japs to the east can be dealt with at leisure, since their offensive power already has been wiped out by bombing, and the concentration of American force between them and Japanese held bases prevents their being reënforced.

On several occasions Gen. MacArthur has left hostile establishments in his rear, their power to attack him destroyed by his airmen. There are still plenty of Japs on Bougainville Island, but the American assault wave now is beating against Rabaul, farther along on the road to Tokio. This isn't island hopping, as that term has been used to criticize the plan of advancing to Tokio by the reconquest of each Jap held island. It is island skipping.

The objective is not the islands, but bases from which to attack deeper into the Japanese empire. It is unnecessary to wipe out all the Japs along the road. Like a limb cut off from the body, they wither and die once their supply lines are cut. As Capt. Rickenbacker predicted the other day, it might take 20 years to hunt down all the little Jap murderers who have been left behind, but that is a job for a constabulary, not an army.

These tactics are not revolutionary. They are merely the result of applying the only absolutely first rate military mind developed by our side in this war to the conditions of warfare that obtain in the Pacific. Gen. MacArthur has used the severely limited forces available to him to produce the maximum results possible. He has been fortunate in having an air commander of Lt. Gen. Kenney's originality and in the coördination and coöperation of Vice Adm. Halsey's fleet. But the forces available to him are still comparatively small and his sphere of command is hardly more than a corner of the whole arena of the Pacific war.

In India the royal admiral, Mountbatten, has let half the season most suitable to warfare slide by without any serious effort to drive the Japs from Burma and Malaya. We are making great progress in the central Pacific. In the north the raid on Paramushiro has given the Japanese general staff another front to worry over. But our efforts are not fully coördinated. Gen. MacArthur, the originator of the winning tactics, should be given a command commensurate with his proved ability. With all of the allied forces following a single plan of campaign under his leadership, the war against Japan might well be brought to a close as quickly as that against Germany.

PAPER.

The war production board has issued an order restricting still further the quantity of wood pulp that can be devoted to the manufacture of newsprint paper by mills in this country. The WPB says that the shortage thus created will be overcome by shipments from Canada. The American Newspaper Publishers' association has protested in a letter to Congressman Boren, saying that the order if carried out may work a permanent injury to an important American industry.

It seems pretty clear that the WPB is concerned chiefly to find a justification for its previous order restricting the consumption of newsprint in this country below the supply which American and Canadian mills can provide. When the hardship boys' proposal of a government stockpile of paper was exposed in all its absurdity, they had to find another excuse. They have at length come up with one.

A lot of newspapers in this country share responsibility for the mismanagement of the paper supply. They truckled to the administration and approved its shenanigans, with the result that all newspapers today are finding it increasingly difficult to get enough paper to maintain a free and independent press.

THEY CAN NEVER STOP.

The war food administration is drafting an order restricting the amount of fancy cheeses that the cheesemakers of the country can turn out. The purpose is to encourage greater production of the common cheddar, or mousetrap, types which the army and lend-lease are buying.

In a free market no such restrictions would be necessary. Most of the pre-war output of cheese was of the cheddar type because that was the cheese most American housewives bought. The war did give a certain impetus to the making of fancy cheeses because it cut off the supply of French, Swiss, and Italian cheese which we bought from abroad because the imported products were often superior to their domestic parallels. American cheesemakers had a chance to corral this market after 1940 and for a time made considerable progress. At present, probably because the demand for their products causes them to shorten the ageing period, the fancy cheeses, with one or two notable exceptions, are execrable. Some seem to have become entangled in the synthetic rubber program.

So it is not demand for a superior product that is causing fancy cheeses to be manufactured to the neglect of cheddar. Under meat rationing, housewives are seeking to replace meat with cheese, and in consequence any kind of cheese can be sold. The increase in fancy cheeses is traceable to the OPA price ceilings, which permit larger profits on these types. You can buy the worst imitation roquefort that ever brought a 35 cent table d'hote to its dyspeptic climax, but try and find a piece of Herkimer in Chicago today.

The cheese order is a typical demonstration that once the little men in Washington get their hooks into an industry they can't stop their regulation half way. They couldn't if they wanted to, and besides, they don't want to. They sit back and wait for the disruptions they have caused to give them an excuse to intervene with new disruptions.

This is a lesson to be kept in mind after the war, when there is undoubtedly going to be violent propaganda to keep some of this government regulation in the name of "orderly marketing" and "price stabilization." There can't be such a thing as a little interference with a free price system. That goes for the trade associations with price fixing programs, too. The New Dealers wouldn't have got as far as they have if it hadn't been for the business men who thought free enterprise was a great thing for every one but themselves.

NEVER AGAIN.

As the American landing forces took Kwajalein, Adm. Nimitz at Pearl Harbor proclaimed the rule of Hirohito at an end and put the Marshalls under the laws and military administration of the United States. The natives were invited to continue in their customary ways. They were also hired, by contract with their chiefs, to bury the Japanese dead and were reported to be cheerful at their work.

Adm. Nimitz is not a policy making official of the United States, but with or without suggestion from Washington he is off to a good start. When the Gilberts to the south were taken at a heavy cost to our marines a British resident commissioner who seems to have been an appendage of the expedition was put ashore and ran up his flag. The Gilberts had been British before the Japs moved in on them. The Marshalls, taken from Germany, went to Japan by mandate from the league of nations after the other war. Great Britain and Japan were then allies.

If Woodrow Wilson, wiser here than usual in his conception of post-war arrangements, had not been blocked by Australia and Japan and by the concealed pre-arrangements of Great Britain and France, the Japanese would not have been allowed to spread thruout the Pacific as far east as the Marshalls. It is not much satisfaction now to know that Australia, Britain, and France were victims of their trust in Japan and of their furtherance of its long program of imperialist conquest.

In June, 1921, at the imperial conference in London the United Kingdom representatives, Lloyd George, Curzon, and Balfour with the support of India and of all the dominions except Canada, decided to renew the alliance and accept Japan as a companion in arms in the Pacific. Premier Meighen of Canada denounced the arrangement and was himself denounced by Hughes of Australia as the puppet voice of the United States, which "had broken all commitments" and "could not be relied on to do anything."

To break the British-Japanese alliance the United States was led into desperate and humiliating measures. At the Washington conference our government, under pressure from our own pacifists, placated Great Britain by scrapping the warships which would have given us dominating sea power. Trust was placed in treaties which were broken and disregarded when the United States appealed to them to stop the aggressions of Japan, described by Britain and by Hughes of Australia as "a faithful ally."

That description of the Japs might be entertaining now to the British prisoners taken in Hongkong, Malaya, Singapore, and Burma—to such of them as may be alive. Our tragic mistake lay in not ignoring the decision of the imperial conference and not keeping our ships. Conceivably, Canada's choice might have been to turn from the empire to the United States. Certainly Lloyd George, Curzon, and Balfour would have been in a hot spot justifying an attack on the ally which had turned defeat into victory in France in favor of a "faithful ally" which used the war only for encroachments, bad faith, and the extension of empire.

Altho the gentlemen of the British government were in an untenable position our government was pliant when it should have been defiant and timid when it should have been courageous. The double dealing Japs got everything they wanted. They thereupon violated every agreement they had made. They fortified their mandates in spite of their word of honor. Contrary to their pledged word they began the conquest of China.

It cost the United States over a thousand marines killed in one landing to return the Gilberts to Mr. Churchill. With better operational direction we are taking the Marshalls at much less cost, but there are oceans of water ahead in which the British-Japanese alliance planted Jap island fortifications to use in the Japanese war against this country. We are just approaching the major obstacles.

There never was another folly so saturated with the blood of the people who had to pay the consequences. Misguided self-interest created the situation. Unlimited self-sacrifice must retrieve it. The self-interest and the self-sacrifice were not and are not, unfortunately, in the same quarter. Adm. Nimitz recognizes that the operations in his area are not conducted by a force of allied commands. The victors are Americans. If Nimitz is sustained there will be no mixed controls as one after another of the Jap islands come under the American flag.

The United States is not seeking imperialist expansion. It is, however, entitled to protection. We are liquidating a great folly with the lives of our men. Never again.

OUR LUCKY NUMBER.

This column has it, from a higher authority than Hitler's numerologist, that 13 is an unlucky number for the Nazis. The Society for the Suppression of Superstitions Regarding 13, which has been active in Chicago, should give this matter studious consideration. Our authority, who knows as much about petroleum products as any man in the United States, submits the following facts:

During the air battle of Britain in 1940, Nazi planes crossed the channel in flights of 2,000 a day, using 87 octane gasoline. The R. A. F. knocked them down at the rate of 200 a day, using 100 octane gasoline. The difference between 100 and 87 is 13. So here is cold science, without an atom of superstition in its noggin, hanging up 13 as the Nazis' unlucky number.

Furthermore the Germans, under present conditions, cannot do better than 87 octane gas. Our side has gone past the 100 mark in airplane fuel, but is not saying how much. We are keeping the 13 octane hex on the Nazis.

* * *

This expert's knowledge of the fuels that drive This War's machines should give value to his opinion as to its duration. He is not setting himself up as a prophet, but we gathered, from one of his remarks between commas, that he thought 1946 would be about the right time to expect the finale.

* * *

On this evidence 13 is a lucky number for anti-Nazis, and we hope that these remarks will tend to dissipate the most stubborn superstition that has ever infested the mind of man. The 13 hoodoo is believed to antedate the Last Supper, to which it is usually attributed, because the mythology of the northern barbarians of Europe held its counterpart. At a banquet in Valhalla a mischief maker named Loki intruded, making 13 at table, and a quarrel ensued in which Balder, the god of light, was killed.

AND NOW IN CORSICA!

A boy's room seems to need exciting things,
And so one birthday brought a study lamp,
Based on a globe, to coax the evenings
When all outdoors intrigued a youthful scamp.
Perhaps its gay blue seas and yellow lands
Beguiled his mind when facts and figures palled,
And fancy's wings flew over waves and sands
To ancient cities, iron barred and walled.
We never dreamed that war might guide his way
To those far lands and seas, from isle to isle,
Where now with millions more he earns the day
Of our bright victory, and helps compile
For our time's history a lustrous page
To vex the schoolboys of a coming age!

Quizzicuss.

History of the Gold Coast—LVIII.

Nineteen hundred and nineteen! The war over, the native returned. Outwardly important changes had been made in the neighborhood. There were new hotels on the drive and apartments in Streeterville. The link boulevard had been completed. In place of narrow Lincoln Park boulevard and its counterpart across the river was a fine, wide street, the new North Michigan avenue, but like most public improvements, it had not been thought thru to a logical conclusion.

Instead of simply extending Michigan avenue due north across the river between Rush street and the old boulevard, and so eliminating a lot of dirty old barns and stables and providing for the use of those streets as auxiliary traffic lanes as the traffic grew, it had been offset to the east at the river. There was a crook in it there. South of the river, the east side of Michigan avenue had been cut off. North of the river, 80 feet of the west side of Lincoln Park boulevard had been sliced off as far as Chicago avenue, much to the annoyance of the housewives, who for months fought the clouds of dust arising from the razing of a half mile of buildings. Many of them were fine old homes. Parts of their rear walls still stood and on them were the old wallpapers and marks showing where partitions, staircases and fireplaces had been.

At the river was a high, two-level, jackknife bridge too narrow even then for the traffic that was using it. Alongside of it was the old Rush street bridge, still carrying on, and preferred by truck drivers to the tricky, badly lighted, gloomy lower level of the new one. With its removal a short time later the decay of the immediate neighborhood set in. While the new avenue pierced the heart of the section, it had little effect on it, as the traffic rolled by without stopping. Inwardly the neighborhood remained the same.

SONG IN A FOXHOLE.

There's a golden gap in my homeland hills,
And into it all day long
The blue sea shines, and sunlight spills,
And the winds weave a merry song.

Merrily, too, move the waves, and the wind
Moves merrily with their motion—
Now up, now down, in ripples thinned
By their race from the open ocean.

And who wouldn't wander afar from men
To the seashine and the sun
Of those homeland hills, and be gay again
Where beauty and joy are one?

Always Good for a Laugh in England.

A woman rapped sharply on the closed wicket of the ticket seller's window in a London railway station. She wished to purchase passage for herself and her mother to a little town named Looe.

The wicket was raised and the questioning face of the agent appeared.

"Two to Looe," said the woman.

"Pip pip," replied the agent and closed the wicket.

Alec.

[There is a town in England named Looe. Moreover, 40 years ago there was a variant of this gag in a Chicago musical show, worked up in a song with the refrain, "'Two to Duluth,' said the lady to the youth."]

SLUGGISH BOWELS IN INFANTS.

The unkindest thing we can do with our little ones is to get them into the practice of requiring laxatives at an early age. A toneless bowel in childhood may be responsible for numerous upsets, including headache, nervousness, digestive disorders, etc.

In fact, the chief rule in hygiene which follows the taking of good food is that elimination must be adequate. Any youngster who fails to exhibit a normal movement at least once in 48 hours may be said to be the victim of a sluggish condition.

First of all, the physician can investigate the alimentary tract. If the rectum is tightly constricted, if there is a spasm at the outlet of the stomach, hygienic measures will not help. These are basic disturbances which must be corrected. Again, if there is a crack in the mucous membrane near the outlet, the distress which accompanies evacuation will eventually hold it back. In other words, the family doctor will make certain that there are no mechanical or physical causes.

Habit is important. Many an infant who will encounter the greatest difficulty when lying on his back will respond if held upright over the toilet. If the baby is breast-fed, insufficient nourishment may be responsible. Adding supplementary feedings may prove helpful. In many cases the tissues lack fluids, and providing plenty of drinking water will bring relief.

During the winter, when our houses are hot and dry, an enormous amount of evaporation occurs from the skin. This takes liquids out of circulation and withdraws them from the digestive tube. The contents of the intestine then become more solid. In fact, the contractions of this structure may be on such firm material that actual pain will ensue.

When it comes to food, we know that starches exhibit a laxative influence. High protein, on the other hand, plays an opposing rôle. With the tot who receives artificial mixtures, we cannot rely upon orange juice as it has no loosening effect in the average quantity. Prune juice, on the other hand, is useful; while applesauce and apricot pulp are desirable. Coarse cereals are more valuable than those which are finely ground. For example, well cooked oatmeal is better than preparations of white flour.

Finally, we should not forget that the so-called nervous disposition must be taken into account. The child may learn that he can frighten mother by making his body behave in an abnormal fashion. This is merely a type of disobedience by means of which he hopes to secure attention and become the subject of solicitude.

Sometimes this tendency is carried over with older boys and girls, which emphasizes again the necessity of establishing the custom of going to stool once or twice daily. The best time is one-half hour or so after breakfast. Instructions are to remain there long enough. The demands on the part of playmates and of school all too frequently are allowed to upset a well established routine.

NO SUN IN T. B.

F. G. S. writes: Can a patient with an arrested tuberculosis become active again after a sunburn which caused blisters and peeling?

REPLY.

Yes. Closed or recovered cases will remain that way only with excellent care. Old Sol stimulates the circulation to the point where healed lesions may break down.

GIVES HEAT.

R. S. writes: What is the short wave used for?

REPLY.

Any condition wherein penetrating heat is desired—diathermy. Thus sprains, arthritis, bursitis, etc. are benefited.

X-RAY REPORT.

M. U. writes: An X-ray of the chest shows "pathology in left base." What does this refer to?

REPLY.

Disease of some sort. It may be a cavity, an area of softening, or merely emphysema—dilated air sacs.

FALLEN.

F. G. H. writes: What is meant by "ptosis of the kidney?"

REPLY.

The same as dropped or floating kidney. As a rule, the condition is not serious unless the ureter becomes kinked.

INFECTION IN PLEURA.

F. D. S. writes: What is empyema?

REPLY.

A collection of pus within the pleural cavity. This condition may follow an infection of the membrane which houses the lungs—for example, as a complication of pneumonia in children.

THE GIRL HE'S FIGHTING FOR

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

No Priority on Telepathy.

In a world at war only thoughts travel with ease. Two weeks ago a young Chicago girl sent an identification bracelet to a marine in the South Pacific. Not being particularly sentimental, she struggled over the inscription and at last came up with an abrupt: "Hands off—he's mine." A day or two after the package had been mailed she received a letter from the marine saying he had made a silver bracelet for her. He asked her not to be upset over his choice of an inscription and not to think he was taking too possessive an attitude. Last week a small box arrived. She opened it with trembling fingers. Inside was the bracelet he had made. On it were the words: "Hands off—she's mine."

Breath of Meat.

The customers have become very tractable in recent months. Most of them look at the menu, say to the waiter: "What don't you have," and order something in a creamed disguise or the safe vegetable plate. Then, in five minutes, they are up and on their way, leaving plates so polished even the cats won't look up from their fur licking to lay a tongue to them. Consequently, this customer's words, drifting back thru the restaurant, came as a shock.

His tone was petulant, his voice almost frightened. "That steak," he was protesting, "was so thin a draft blew it away." The waiter looked benignly down at him and smiled. "Don't fret, sir," he soothed him. "I'll order another and close the window."

Sign of the Time.

Sign on a south side barber shop window:

Hospitality.

Word has just come of the Glen Ellyn couple who checked in at a Milwaukee hotel last Sunday. Everything in their room seemed to be in order, but when the maid arrived with additional towels she also carried a stack of bedding. The wife looked at her inquiringly, and she murmured apologetically, "I'll have to tear the beds up, mum. I thought them two sailors wuz goin' to stay agin tonight, so I jes' left the beds the way they made them!'

Fashion Forecast.

All the dear ladies who are about 5 feet 4, weigh between 120 and 140, and own short Persian lamb coats and hats with red feathers [or flowers] may come out of hiding about June 15. By that time the weather will be too hot for Persian lamb, and the police will have tabled the Williams murder.

Egg Farmer's Lament.

Burocrat A issues a decree,
"We need umph-million eggs," quoth he.
Burocrat B, hearing the tweet,
Puts up the price of corn and wheat.
Whereupon C, who was never one
To let other burocrats hog the fun,
Lowers those helpful little pegs
Supporting the market price of eggs.
And it's as plain as plain can be
The aforesaid A and B and C
Will soon make bums of the hen and me.

Full Fledged.

Excerpt from a letter of a 12 year old boy:

"You should be proud of your kid brother now. I'm a three letter man at St. Kilian's [Chicago grammar school]. I play first base, full back, and the clarinet."

Man Bites Dog.

You'll say it can't be true with the domestic help market what it is, but a Tampa, Fla., woman hired a Negro laundress whose education and bearing were so superior that one day she questioned her about it. "Estelle," she said, "you haven't always been doing this kind of work, have you?" "No, ma'am," Estelle replied emphatically. "I used to teach school." Her employer was properly amazed and inquisitive. "Whatever made you give it up for this?" she persisted. "O, ma'am, I like this better," Estelle said with a wide grin. "Teachin' is too confinin'."

THE VOTE STEALERS.

Mattoon, Ill., Feb. 2.—The voters of Illinois owe our Sen. Lucas a big vote of thanks. And the voters of America owe a rousing cheer to Mr. Roosevelt, too.

Sen. Lucas has been very active for his bills to extend votes to our men and women overseas. His voice, as he speaks on this subject, is so full of earnestness—one would think he has the rights and welfare of our soldiers completely at heart. But I have watched his actions also when any bill or plan is suggested that does not toss this entire 10 million votes into the hands of his New Deal gang, to handle as they find necessary. Our senator is very eager to have votes for our soldiers—provided he and his crowd can steal these votes. So we voters of Illinois earnestly ought to thank Sen. Lucas for so fully exposing his purposes—especially when he must ask us for our votes for his own return to Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt, too, has been clumsy enough to expose his own hand in this game. He has been very eager for any bill that will toss this great block of votes into the hands of his own flunkies. But he is "shocked" when any plan is proposed that his gang cannot report and count as they please.

Mr. Roosevelt has made another clumsy error—if his purpose is to fool American voters. He is so determined to steal the fourth term that he has selected a new national chairman for his party—a man who has had experience in dirty politics—who has experience in stealing a governorship—trying to, at least.

Will our President really stoop so low as to welcome this kind of support? Well, tell me of any single time in all of his political history when he failed to welcome the dirty political aid offered—I cannot think of a single time when he frowned at all on the most questionable support he could obtain.

WHEN A TAX IS NOT A TAX.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—I think that a little explanation of the method of charging the Illinois retailers' occupation tax may be helpful to your correspondents who, in complete misunderstanding, complain about this charge and envision vast profits accruing to the merchant.

This so-called sales tax is a part of the overhead cost of operations the same as licenses, real estate tax, personal property tax, etc. Obviously to cover this 2 per cent by an additional markup would be impractical and would be impossible in the case of products having an advertised selling price.

The amount is not assessed as a tax but as an addition to the marked prices of the merchandise. In other words, the prices at which goods are offered for sale are the marked prices plus an additional amount in accordance with the notice and schedule which is prominently posted in most stores. As for the "profit of material proportions" I will revert to the vernacular—nuts.

C. M. Marquiss.

WHAT HAS HE GOT, ETC?

Chicago, Jan. 27.—My husband is 36 year old, is in the army and has two perforated ear drums. Can you please tell me why my husband is in and Frank Sinatra is out, when he has only one perforated ear drum? I surely don't think that is right. My husband is doing more important job than crooning. Why aren't we all treated as equals?

Mrs. E. Frenden.

JAPS THINK WE'RE SOFT.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—I mention the following incident in hopes that it will help to prevent our people from forgiving or forgetting too soon the inhuman treatment which the Japs have inflicted upon our people.

Quite a while before Pearl Harbor, I met a very intelligent Japanese young woman at a reception at the Drake hotel.

I warned her that it would be extremely unwise for Japan to engage in a war against the United States because Japan's progress and power had largely been built up by its trade with the United States and if Japan should lose the good will and its silk trade with the United States it might be a severe setback to her country.

She replied, "We have nothing to fear. If we win a war with you, we will not need your good will. If we lose a war to you, you will forgive us in a short time as you forgave Germany. Back in 1917 your people were very bitter against Germany and many of your people refused to buy or use German goods but in a few years you were trading with Germany. You will do the same with us."

Another Jap said, "We are willing to lose 10,000,000 of our men to accomplish what we want to do by this war. How many men is your country willing to lose?"

John B. Sardy.

WOULD CHANGE TO A HORSE.

Westchester, Ill., Jan. 29.—After reading of the atrocities perpetrated by the Japs, we can blame no one but our officials in Washington. When the Dies committee, before Pearl Harbor, picked up 600 Japs off of fishing schooners for alleged spying on our Pacific fleet our officials in Washington said, "Release them; they are a friendly nation."

With warnings from different agencies we continued to ship aviation gasoline and boatload after boatload of scrap iron. A little foresight and wariness would have saved a lot of sorrow and anxiety thruout the nation today.

Perhaps a change to a horse would not be a bad idea at this time, especially when the jackass can't pull himself out of the mud.

MENTAL ARITHMETIC.

Chicago, Feb. 1. — Newspaper headline—WFA Predicts Leaner Butter Rations in 1944; Russia Will Receive 100 Million Pounds.

One hundred million pounds of butter cost approximately $25,000,000 more than 100,000,000 pounds of oleo. Thus 1,330,000 more $25 war bonds will have to be sold to pay for butter instead of oleo.

The $64 question: $25,000,000 would buy how many planes for Gen. MacArthur to be used to help free American prisoners of Japan?

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. Because a landlord cannot raise the rent, is he under no obligation to clean for his tenants? Ours says, no raise, no cleaning.

H. W.

The fact that OPA prevents a rent increase does not alter the landlord's obligations, but if he formerly did the cleaning then his refusal would amount to a rent increase.

WOUNDED VETS DRAFTED AGAIN AFTER RECOVERY

Army Restores Old Ranks of 2d Term Men.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Men wounded in action who were discharged and who then recovered, are being drafted again, it was disclosed today, and the war department took cognizance of the situation by ordering restoration of their old ranks.

It was said some sergeants and corporals had found themselves back in uniforms as privates after the reasons for their discharge no longer existed.

Tunisian Vets Recalled.

Draft regulations permit redrafting of veterans who qualify again. Some men wounded at Attu and at Faid pass in the Tunisian campaign have been recalled by their local boards, the army said.

Lowering of physical standards also prompted the war department to order commanding officers to exhaust all possibilities before discharging enlisted men. It was said thousands have been released for physical disabilities that now would not stand in the way of induction.

Required to Report to Board.

Draft rules require a veteran to report his status to his draft board upon discharge. In some cases the whole draft process begins again.

An army spokesman said "many such cases have come up" but gave no figures. He said men who had been overseas and had been discharged and reinducted probably would not be sent to foreign assignments.

Norman Angell Is Speaker at Luncheon Here

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE ballroom of the Blackstone hotel had all of the aspects of a leisurely pre-war luncheon meeting yesterday when members of the English Speaking union gathered to hear Nobel Peace Prize Winner Norman Angell speak on "British Imperialism and the Future." Those who gathered to hear him, however, were for the most part taking a couple of hours away from concerns and problems of their own, and after the meeting hurried back to duties completely apart from pre-war days.

Guests at the table at which Mrs. Jacob Baur was seated heard an impromptu speech from her on the spring session of the A B C School of Politics, which the Woman's National Republican club of Chicago is starting at 2:30 p. m. today in the La Salle hotel. Wearing her famed "elephants" hat and carrying a large red alligator skin purse crammed with literature on the school, Mrs. Baur might as well have given a second talk on war bonds, for she was bound for the treasury and her work there selling bonds when the meeting closed.

Mrs. Edward V. L. Brown was headed for a meeting of the mothers of the fraternity to which her son, Corp. Donald A. K. Brown of the army air forces belongs, taking with her letters from him telling of Christmas eve in England and of a 20 minute talk he had with Foreign Secretary Eden at the London home of mutual English friends. Young Mrs. Brown and their baby daughter departed last Friday for Santa Barbara, Cal., with Mrs. Brown's parents, the Joseph T. Rysons, and Mrs. Ryerson's mother, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney. At the same table with Mrs. Brown were Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, who leaves next week for Carmel, Cal., and Mrs. Benyuard B. Wygant, whose daughter, Miss Barbara Wygant, has had a war job in Chicago since September.

Among others who heard Economist Angell tell of the gradual de-imperialization of the British empire were Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Robert G. Peck, Whipple Jacobs, Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr., and Miss Frances Whedon. Clark J. Lawrence spoke briefly of the union's drive for new members, of which 167 have been enrolled since August, and of plans to entertain members of the services at the clubrooms.

Today's Events.

Following Dr. Gerald T. Wendt's talk on "Science and the War" at 11:30 a. m. today at the Woman's Athletic club, Mrs. Freemont Chandler will entertain him at luncheon at the speaker's table. Others with luncheon reservations include Mrs. John Orb, Mrs. Allan T. Gilbert, Mrs. James Snitzler, Mrs. John Wheeler, Mrs. John Quincy Adams, Mrs. Melvin Veeder, Mrs. Allen Clement, and Mrs. Arthur W. Cutten.

The club will serve dinner Feb. 29 before the Northwestern University settlement benefit, the opening night of the "Ice-Capades" at the Chicago Arena.

A painting by Julio de Diego, chosen by Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill II., and a painting by the late Leon Garland, chosen by the Philip W. Moores, are among those that will be hanging in Gallery 52 of the Art institute tonight at the annual meeting of the Society for Contemporary American Art. From the paintings and sculptures chosen by members of the society, one will be selected by the institute's painting and sculpture committee for the institute's permanent collection. Following a business meeting at 8 o'clock art critics from Chicago newspapers will discuss informally the art objects on view in the gallery.

Princeton alumni will gather at the University club tonight for a midwinter reunion at which President Harold W. Dodds of the university will speak. The event will be the one large Princeton gathering this year. During the evening Jack Warfield, Louis Tilden, and Cyrus H. Adams III. will keep the piano going as long as the voices hold out.

Members of the woman's board of Travelers Aid will take box luncheons to their monthly meeting at 10:30 a. m. today in the home of Mrs. John Alden Morgan. The board's president, Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr., and Mr. Sims have just returned from a two week visit to New York, where they saw Mrs. Sims' brother, William Croft.

Cut This Out and Save It as a Practical Guide to Rationing

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Feminine First.

Not so long ago she was working in the educational toys division of a State-st. store—a white collar girl with a yen to see the world. She saved her money for a vacation, took a trip to Panama, liked it, and returned to Chicago fully determined to go to Panama again when the first opportunity presented itself. Panama, she said, was her favorite spot.

The opportunity did present itself but not at all in the manner she had anticipated. For the war came . . . military recruiting . . . war training courses for women. The United States office of education began calling for young women for its engineering and war training program. It was natural that Bette Chrisman's name was among those enrolled in a drafting course at Illinois Institute of Technology. After all, she decided, she could be spared from her State-st. job and, with a background of art study at Drake university, in Mexico and in Chicago, easily could learn drafting.

The day she went to her first class she had no idea that her course of study would take her again to Panama, this time as the first girl draftsman to work on the locks.

Panama Bette.

At present Bette is home on leave from her job in Panama, where she was assigned to the special engineering division. Most of her work was original design and topography.

"Nobody, including me, had any idea I'd actually get down to Panama when I applied for the government assignment," she says. "I am crazy about my work and about the country. The houses in which we live and the office where we work are practically out of doors, so open and airy. I didn't miss a single day of work and gained 10 pounds!"

"There was no nervous strain—the whole atmosphere is tropical and pleasant. We worked in pinafores and sports dresses. During the time I was in Panama I almost forgot what hats, stockings, purses, and gloves were. I didn't use any of them. And, my apartment was two minutes from where I worked."

No Rationing.

In her small apartment Bette did her own cooking and "there was no rationing." Her family here in Chicago now listens with envy while she describes filet mignon an inch and a quarter thick [10 cents apiece!] and South American beef, thick, juicy round steak, with tropical fruits, pineapples, bananas, mangoes, and papayas.

And here is something to think about if any white collar girl has her eye out for a prospective husband. "All the American men in Panama have grown to be very good cooks, in fact, wonderful cooks," Bette reports.

Between drafting and cooking she found time to do some painting, which she expects to continue when she returns to Latin America, for she has sold her paintings and sculpture. One thing is certain—she intends to return to Panama—this five foot, blue eyed, feminine first, ready to go places.

U. S. Will Keep Its Sovereignty, Says Educator

The Protestant churches of America were warned against wasting their energies "on a fruitless crusade for a world order based on serious modifications of national sovereignty," in an address made here last night before the International Council of Religious Education by Dr. Liston Pope of Yale university divinity school, New Haven, Conn.

Dr. Pope, speaking at the Chicago temple, 77 W. Washington st., reminded 1,500 religious education leaders of 42 denominations in the United States and Canada that since the turn of the century the Protestant church had wasted its strength on two lost causes, prohibition and the avoidance of war. He predicted that those "who foresee a brave new world only a little short of Utopia" after this war likewise are doomed to disappointment.

The world will be divided into armed camps, he predicted, in which each of the three great victorious nations, Russia, Britain, and the United States, will reign supreme in its separate sphere of influence. He envisioned this situation from contemporary events, which he said demonstrate that the allied nations are playing power politics which in practice exploit principles far wide of the idealistic sentiments enunciated in the Atlantic charter.

"Whatever the relations between them may be, the great victorious powers are likely to remain garrison states for some decades," Dr. Pope said. "A Carthaginian peace is not necessarily in prospect, but an Augustan peace seems likely, and several Romes probably will prevail in the world, perhaps with Moscow the greatest.

"Doubtless there will be some kind of international clearing house, but it is not likely to be the force for equality and democracy which many hopes envisage, and . . . it probably will fill a relatively minor role rather than exercising jurisdiction over the major decisions of nations."

As proof of the statement that the allied nations are ignoring the Atlantic charter, Dr. Pope pointed out that "immediately after the conferences at Moscow and Teheran, Russia entered into a pact with Czecho-Slovakia which clearly pointed to a sphere of Russian influence, and she more recently has reinforced the latter policy by her attitude toward the role of Great Britain and the United States in settling the Polish boundary.

"Russia is not alone, however, in pursuing this dual foreign policy," he continued. "The concern of the United States for Latin America might easily be interpreted as somewhat inconsistent with her profession of desire for a family of nations, and Mr. Churchill's statements about the future of the British empire might be adduced as evidence pointing toward similar duality.

"Strategies predicated on imminent modification of national sovereignty seemed doomed to failure in the decades just ahead and may succeed only in stirring seeds of deeper disillusionment."

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Gloria Foote (left) and Lorraine Pascavis, 16 year old high school girls who work as nurses' helpers at Henrotin hospital.

They're known at Henrotin hospital as "brownies," but there is nothing elfin about their work. In brown and white checked uniforms, with brown chambray aprons, they're the nurses' helpers who do all hospital duties except actual nursing. Thus they relieve student and regular nurses and Red Cross nurses' aids for the vital jobs they have to perform in a major hospital during war time.

The "brownies" are school girls, whose minimum age is 15. They work, under the supervision of Mrs. Harriet R. Stoutimore, executive housekeeping director, with permits granted by the Chicago board of education following contacts with parents, school principals, and hospital personnel.

Each girl must take a health examination before she is permitted to work. During the school year the nurses' helpers staff numbers 12, but it increases to 20 in the summer months. "Brownies" work three hours a day and six on Saturdays and Sundays and are paid according to ability.

Assigned to all departments and floors, the nurses' helpers distribute sterile dressings, trays, and other supplies, arrange flowers, serve meals, dust, help to clean rooms, and perform numerous other tasks which they take over after a brief course of instruction.

Nurses' helpers also help to staff several other Chicago hospitals.

A survey made by the newly established volunteer service at St. Luke's hospital reveals that 20,000 hours were donated to the institution by volunteers last year. Red Cross nurses' aids donated 14,000 of those hours. Red Cross Gray Ladies, members of the hospital and recreation corps, contributed more than 4,000 hours of service.

The remainder of volunteer time, given to the hospital during a critical war time year, with its problems of understaffing, was donated by unaffiliated workers assisting the staff in various capacities.

The new schedule of home nursing classes to be held at Red Cross headquarters, room 404, 529 S. Wabash av., is as follows: Monday afternoons, 2 to 4 o'clock, Feb. 14 thru April 17; Monday evenings, 6:30 to 9, Feb. 14 thru April 17; Wednesday afternoons, 2 to 4:30, Feb. 16 thru April 19; Wednesday evenings, 6:30 to 9, Feb. 16 thru April 19; Thursday evenings, 6:30 to 9, Feb. 17 thru April 20; Friday evenings, 6:30 to 9, Feb. 18 thru April 21.

Women interested in learning how to care for their families during the war time nurse and doctor shortage are urged to enroll. Applicants for the classes, which are free, may register by telephone, Wabash 7850, or in writing.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

St. Valentine's Devotees Jam Shops for Gifts

BY REA SEEGER.

Sentimental doodads around the shops and stores reflect a spurt of valentine shopping. Gifts frivolous and not so frivolous are taking easy money, for the shoppers resemble the Christmas crowds in their zeal to remember some one else. There is a flurry of buying around the handkerchief displays, for a dainty whiff of sheer tucks nicely inside the envelope with - -cardboard valentine. A box of six or a dozen, of course, rivals a floral gesture, especially if the hankies are in a satin container or padded and perfumed satin handkerchief case.

Bracelets, clips, pins, and the newest gigantic earrings provide another valentine gesture. There are modestly priced bits, jeweled pieces, and the stunning all-silver bijoutie from Mexico. The most spectacular earrings are large square blobs of simulated topaz, emerald, sapphire or ruby, mounted in gold or silver metal, but extremely effective in shell pink ears, to show under drifts of colored veilings and the gay little first spring hats.

Silver bracelets worn by the dozen and half dozen are visible tribute from the "boys." The very thin affairs pile up a little more slowly than the wider bands but are less offensive than the rattlers. And it's a banner year for good neighbor work in the jewelry coming from Mexico. Every clip and pin, bracelet, and earring is effective, decorative, and has the charm of hand work, from the exquisitely lacy pieces to the massive, chunky stuff for distinctive contrast with daytime clothes.

Outstanding Job Done by Women Marines, Says Gen. Vandegrift

New River, N. C., Feb. 7 [Special].—Women marines have done such outstanding work in more than 200 capacities since the marine corps women's reserve was organized there is an increasing demand for them at all marine posts, Lt. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, marine corps commandant, told 80 women officers today in a graduating class at Camp Lejeune. He has been on a four day inspection tour of this reservation.

The commandant praised the loyalty and efficiency of the marine women and declared they represent a vital part of the war, relieving many men for combat duty overseas. In the audience for his first formal address to women marines since his recent return from the Pacific was Col. Ruth C. Streeter, women marines director.

Gen. Vandegrift was honor guest at a regimental review given by 1,000 women boots. Music was provided by the newly organized 42 piece band, first women's band in the history of the marine corps.

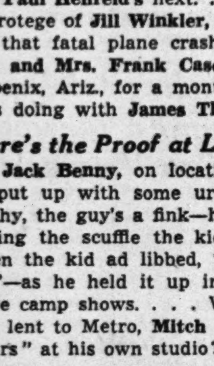
Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

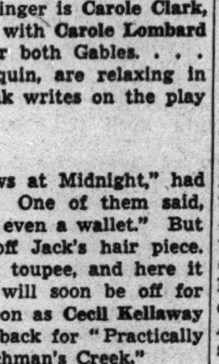
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 7.—Metro's talking about Walter Pidgeon and Lana Turner for the life of Richard Harding Davis, Lana doing the Bessie McCoy "Yama-Yama girl." She was a female Ray Bolger, but on the pixie side. Richard adored her and went to the theater nightly to watch her performance. Their daughter arrives next month to set the story in the right groove. . . . Now that Clarence Brown is well into "National Velvet," I can tell you it's been kicked around plenty. Once owned by Paramount, a big producer there said, "It's the story of a race horse to end all racing yarns!" When, as a matter of fact, it's the story of a child's faith in a race horse. Elizabeth Taylor, who plays that child, has to wear braces on her perfect teeth and have her hair short. When she was told she was a star she looked at her dressing room and said, "Can't be! No star—no red carpet." But after she came back from lunch they were both there.

He Can Dream, Can't He?

Eddie Sherman would like to do a movie based on the career of Bernard M. Baruch, as who wouldn't? I know Mr. Baruch's answer would be "No." Bernie doesn't think he's important enough to write the story of his own life. . . . Helen Walker got the lead in "Thunderbolt" with Chester Morris and Robert Lowery. Helen is the girl Buddy de Sylva says is like Bette Davis when Bette first came to pictures. . . . Oliver Thorndyke, under personal contract to C. B. de Mille, has been tested by both Metro and Twentieth. Smart business—letting other studios build him up into star rating. . . . The thing that's holding up the sale of "Oklahoma!" isn't the price, but conditions. The film couldn't be released for another three years. Frank Capra made "Arsenic and Old Lace" two years ago. Our boys overseas rave about it, but it can't be shown in our theaters until after the stage play runs its course.



Helen Walker.



Chester Morris.

Not Fair to the Fair.

New York actresses Beverly Roberts, Sue Ryan, and Janet Fox, among others, went to Washington as delegates for a soldiers' vote. First thing they were asked to do was pose for pictures. . . . Dame May Whitty is terribly disappointed she couldn't go to Washington to present a $240,000 check to President Roosevelt—profits from the picture "Forever and a Day." She had to remain in Hollywood for retakes of "Gaslight." On her recent trip east after many attempts she finally got a train reservation from New York to Washington. When she reached the drawing room her ticket called for, it was occupied by Eleanor Roosevelt, but she managed to get one near by, and Mrs. R. never knew about the mixup.

Listening In on a Deal.

When Louis B. Mayer and Jack Warner dined at Romanoff's, ear trumpets appeared from all corners to catch what was going on. Hedy Lamarr's name was heard. It's well known Jack wants to borrow her for Paul Henreid's next. . . . Charles Foy's new singer is Carole Clark, a protege of Jill Winkler, widow of Otto, who was with Carole Lombard on that fatal plane crash. So Jill named her for both Gables. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frank Case, of New York's Algonquin, are relaxing in Phoenix, Ariz., for a month's sunshine, while Frank writes on the play he's doing with James Thurber.

Here's the Proof at Last.

Jack Benny, on location for "The Horn Blows at Midnight," had to put up with some urchins roughing him up. One of them said, "Why, the guy's a fink—he ain't got a watch, not even a wallet." But during the scuffle the kid accidentally knocked off Jack's hair piece. Then the kid ad libbed, "But the guy has got a toupee, and here it is!"—as he held it up in his hand! . . . Jack will soon be off for more camp shows. . . . Wouldn't you know as soon as Cecil Kellaway was lent to Metro, Mitch Leisen would want him back for "Practically Yours" at his own studio? He had him in "Frenchman's Creek."

Memories of the Profile.

Lucile Watson tells me Jack Barrymore made his first appearance on any stage with her in "Glad of It." He was 21. They both went from that into "The Dictator" with Willie Collier. In those days Jack used to come to rehearsal in top hat, white tie, and tails and thought it great fun to chase her all over the stage. She was new in the theater, too, and thought if she made an outcry it might affect her career. Once she let go and landed one on his chin. After that he seemed to lose interest. . . . Patricia and Cappella will dance in "Moon Over Las Vegas." . . . Dennis O'Keefe was notified he'd have to move out of his Beverly Hills house because the owner wanted to move in. To get out of moving, Dennis turned around and bought the house.

Yank Overseas Finds Ex-Wife His Best Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The man is overseas and over the usual service man age. He has been divorced and has remarried. His second wife is much younger. Altho apart for some years now, the first wife is doing her patriotic duty by writing him letters, while the second one rarely sends a letter. The children of his first marriage, two girls in their early twenties, write their father, and a younger son sends him a note now and then.

The man admits having made a mistake to have given up his first wife, as she has turned out to be a true friend. He sees from his children's letters that she has never prejudiced the children against him and, he says, "a guy gets to thinking away off here thousands of miles from home."

He doesn't know whether his first wife is working or how she is being supported, but she never mentions money in her letters to him. She tells what the girls and his young son are doing and what goes on among their old acquaintances.

"That's the kind of woman she always was, kind, sweet, and self-effacing, but it took a war to make me realize it. While I got what was coming to me with my second marriage, that one turned out to be a stinker, and she is the one who is getting the allotments.

"I'm not expecting you, Miss Blake, to take a hand in trying to straighten out my affairs. I know that will have to wait until I get back, but I was just thinking there must be a lot of fellows like myself who are deeply regretting their way of life, especially walking out on a real woman for a poor counterfeit. I don't expect my experience will influence any others. I'm only hoping it might, and that's my sole reason for writing you."

GASOLINE ALLEY

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

Perhaps the most difficult of all plays for the average player to understand and apply are the so-called safety plays. The following deal contains a notable example of this important family.

South, dealer.

NORTH
♥ A 7
♦ Q 6 5 3

WEST
♠ A K 9 7 4

EAST

♥ 9 8 5
♦ K 10 9 2

SOUTH
♠ Q
♥ K 10 6
♦ A J 8 7 4
♣ A Q 6 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 spade	2 diamonds	2 spades
3 clubs	3 hearts	4 clubs	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
Pass	Pass

West led the king and ace of spades. Declarer ruffed, entered dummy with a heart, and then led a low diamond to the jack. The finesse held all right, but since East had not been foolish enough to put in the nine or 10 of diamonds on this play, declarer now faced the certain loss of two trump tricks, and his contract.

South loudly bewailed the horrible luck that had put all four missing diamonds in one hand, and in truth this was a bad break, but the pertinent fact remains that South had not "taken out insurance," as he could have, against this possible thrust of fate. One thing was sure: if either defender happened to be void of diamonds, it was bound to be West, who had bid two other suits. Declarer could well afford to lose one diamond trick; that being so, he should have led, not the low diamond, but the queen from dummy. Consider: If East covered the queen, South would win and [a] if West followed suit, the break could be no worse than 3-1. Now the jack would draw another trump, and at the worst declarer would lose one trick in the suit. [b] If West did not follow suit, declarer could reënter dummy easily and lead a second trump toward the J-8-7, thus forcing East to play the 10 or nine. Finally, if the diamond queen was not covered at all, it would, of course, be allowed to ride, and if West had the king, that would be the last trick for his side.

INSTALMENT XXVI.

FURTHER QUESTIONING.

Miss Paradine drew a long breath.

"My brother was a very remarkable man. He liked to do things in his own way. I suppose you have been given an account of what happened at dinner last night. It is most painful to us all that the police are placing a quite unwarrantable construction on what was said. I do ask you to believe that the whole thing has been grossly exaggerated. Something had vexed him, or rather some one, and he took this way of letting us all know about it. It was, I assure you, quite in his character. I thought so little of it myself that when the superintendent questioned me this morning I really didn't mention it at all."

"I really made nothing of it at all. As I told Col. Bostock this afternoon—he is the chief constable—it had quite gone out of my mind. The shock of my brother's accident—I still believe that it was an accident——" She broke off, held her hands tightly clasped together for a moment, and half closed her eyes. Then she got up. "Forgive me—I should not have tried to speak of it—it is too soon. Perhaps you would like to talk to my niece, Mrs. Ambrose, for a little, or to Miss Ambrose."

"I should like very much to talk to Miss Ambrose, if I may."

When Brenda, stolidly reluctant, was seated beside her, Miss Silvers smiled affably and said,

"I asked to see you, Miss Ambrose, because I want some one observant and methodical to tell me just what happened after you came into the drawing room last night."

"Well, I don't know. We came in, and I said my stepfather must have gone mad. I suppose you've heard what he said at dinner?"

"O, yes."

"Well, I said he must have gone mad to get us all here to a party and then say a thing like that. I said it was the limit, and my sister-in-law Irene—that's her on the left of the fire—well, she burst out crying and said that she knew Mr. Paradine was talking at her."

"Dear me—did she say why?"

"No, she didn't. She made an exhibition of herself and kept on saying she hadn't done anything, and why should he think it was her. She's an hysterical girl—no self-control at all. I don't know what she'd been up to, but if you ask me, I should say she'd got something on her mind—otherwise why go to bits like that? If it hadn't been for Miss Paradine we'd never have got her quiet. Of course, I'm no good, because she can't stand me."

"Dear me," said Miss Silver, "that is very interesting." She gazed mildly at Brenda Ambrose. "Pray continue. You were telling me what happened after dinner last night. Miss Paradine quieted your sister-in-law——"

"O, yes. She's clever—knows how to manage people. She had presents for us all. She went and got them. She didn't want Lane to notice anything when he came in with the coffee."

"That was a happy thought of Miss Paradine's. You said she went and got the presents. Do you mean she went out of the room?"

"Of course. They were upstairs."

"And how long was she away, Miss Ambrose?"

"O, no time at all. Just long enough to get the parcels."

"Not long enough to have had a word with her brother?"

"No, of course not. He hadn't come out of the dining room."

"You are sure of that?"

"Of course I am. I don't say things unless I'm sure about them. The men were still in the dining room. They came in after she had given us our presents. I had a torch, Phyllida had handkerchiefs, Lydia got bath salts, and Irene had snapshots of the children. The men came in after that."

"And did they have presents, too?"

"Elliot Wray didn't. Of course he wasn't expected. He and Phyllida had been dead cuts for a year. She wouldn't have given him anything anyhow—she's always loathed him. She gave the others a pocket diary each."

"A diary is always useful. Had Miss Paradine managed to get them in different colors?"

"Yes, she had. She's clever at that sort of thing—takes a lot of trouble."

"She must do so. What colors did she manage to get?"

"O, brown, red, blue, purple."

Brenda was becoming bored. She thought Miss Silver a futile old maid.

"Blue would be my preference. I wonder if it was Miss Paradine's. To whom did she give the blue diary, Miss Ambrose?"

Brenda turned back. She felt she was being clever as she said:

"I'm afraid you can't make anything of that. Mark got the blue diary. Richard is Aunt Grace's blue-eyed boy. He got the red. Some people prefer red, you know. Miss Paradine does."

In the course of the evening Miss Silver managed to converse with most of the members of the Paradine family. She found Mrs. Ambrose deeply interested in little Roger's leggings. Irene became quite animated and told her all about not being able to wake Rena last night, and going out to find Dr. Horton, and how angry Frank had been—"men are so unreasonable."

Miss Silver replied that they could not be expected to understand a mother's feelings. After which there was no ice left to break and she was told just how difficult Brenda was, and what a pity Lydia didn't make up her mind to marry Dicky and settle down in Birleton.

With a little tactful prompting Irene's tongue flowed on. Miss Paradine was wonderful—"Look how she's keeping everything together. You wouldn't think anything dreadful had happened. She has such self-control—I don't know how she does it. I do envy people who have a lot of self-control. Aunt Grace is wonderful that way. I remember at Phyllida's wedding, nobody would have guessed that she was simply broken hearted, only of course she was. I don't think she would have liked Phyllida marrying any one, but of course if it had been any one in Birleton it wouldn't have been so bad. We used to think it would be so nice if she married Mark. He's a distant cousin really—Phyllida is adopted, you know—so it would have been quite all right. But marrying Elliot Wray meant a complete separation for poor Aunt Grace—I don't wonder she felt dreadful about it."

learned of the birth of his second son, William Richter, Jan. 25, in the Evanston hospital. During Ensign Onderdonk's absence his wife and baby and 2 year old J. Lawrence Onderdonk will be staying with the children's paternal grandparents, the J. Lawrence Onderdonks, in Winnetka. Young Mrs. Onderdonk's parents are Judge and Mrs. Theodore Richter of Detroit.

Mrs. Carroll Dean Murphy of Winnetka has returned from a trip to New York to see her newest grandchild, the daughter born Dec. 14 to Mr. and Mrs. Nixon de Tarnowsky [Althea Murphy]. The baby has been named Althea Oakley. One of little Althea's maternal uncles, Lt. Clyde Murphy, has been at home on a week's leave from Pensacola, Fla., where he has been head of the navy's navigation school.

In their nursery in Winnetka, Hallie Hyde, Conrad Austin, and Howard Austin Will Jr. are awaiting the homecoming of their new brother, Frederick Austin Will. The fourth child of the Howard Austin Wills [Marietta Gillette] was born Feb. 2 in the Evanston hospital.

On the Calendar.

The fashion show and cocktail party which the north shore and Oak Park-River Forest junior boards of the Northwestern university settlement are planning for March 10 in the 28 Shop at Marshall Field & Co. will have a special appeal to young women whose husbands are away on duty with the army and navy. Because of the early hour of the party—5:30 p. m.—a number of board members and their friends temporarily "sans escort" are planning to join forces and come in wholly feminine parties.

Serving as chairman will be Mrs. J. Hayden Macdonald for Chicago, Mrs. Howard Grimes for Evanston, Mrs. Bernard Mooney for Winnetka, and Mrs. Burton H. Doherty for the western suburbs. Mrs. James J. Callahan, who heads the west suburban group, is in Temple, Tex., visiting Maj. Callahan at his army medical post.

Russian Relief Society Work Praised at Tea for Edward C. Carter

The members of the Russian War Relief society who gathered for tea yesterday at the Ambassador East hotel to meet Edward C. Carter, president of the society, heard their work praised by him as one of the great psychological influences, over and above lend-lease, which gave the Russian leaders faith in the backing of the American people in a new era of American-soviet relations.

Mr. Carter said that on his visit to Russia earlier this winter he found all of that country mobilized—on the war front, in the factories, and on the farms. He described the flow of material to munitions factories as a surprising and unexpected triumph of Russian organization. "There is no diminution of morale or purpose," he assured his listeners.

In reply to his question, "Are the supplies we send what you need to win this war?" he said the Russians had given him three answers: First, gratitude; second, pleas to continue sending clothing and certain medical supplies and surgical instruments in even greater quantities, and, third, enthusiasm for the packages sent by American families to Russian families.

The Chicago War Relief society's quota of used clothing to be shipped to Russia this year is 1,000,000 pounds and of kits, 150,000.

Mrs. Andy H., Chicago—My can of corn syrup comes to the rescue when I have to give my small children or baby a crushed tablet or powder. A bit of corn syrup will do wonders to take away any unpleasant taste.

Kitty G., Racine, Wis.—I hope after the war we can have at long last extra stoppers furnished with all vinegar bottles so that one can pour vinegar out, drop by drop, in making salad dressings. Most recipes advise this drop by drop method, and I have often thought such stoppers would be a help.

Mrs. Amos H., Springfield, Ill.—I freshen plush hangings by using a chamois wrung out in tepid water. If you try this methods be sure to use a rotary wiping movement.

Thru the Looking Glass

Have you seen the self-mailer correspondence card with good steel razor blades mounted on the inner panel. It is an inspired buy for the man in service. This practical idea differs from a lot of the notions that have been promoted as being just what the boys want.

This combines two things that the boys want and will continue to want. Above and below the center panel on which the 10 blades are sturdily mounted is ample space for personal messages. It's mail from home—plus one of the necessities of life which are not G. I. and for which the boys have to shell out their own not-too-abundant money. And this month it can do service as a valentine. All you do to transform it into one is to inscribe your sentimental message or even a sketch on the space reserved for correspondence.

The whole card, decorated in red, white, and blue, can be mailed to service men anywhere, at home or abroad, for 6 cents in postage. The price is little more than you might be tempted to pay for a valentine more elaborate and much less practical.

The blades, so we're informed, are of excellent quality hollow-ground Swedish steel, and will fit any double-edge razor.

You can get these same blades in quantities of 50, too, in a mailing package acceptable to the postal authorities. But for your little thoughtful remembrance, to say "hello" or to send a sweet message, you'll like the mailing card, containing 10. The boys will like it, too.

Fetching Items Go on Block in Bond Auction

Very fetching in a gingham play suit, Mrs. Watson McLallen, 209 Lake Shore dr., an advertising executive, stood on the block at the Boys' Latin school at 1531 N. Dearborn pkwy. last night while Lester Winternitz, the auctioneer, droned "What am I bid?"

It was the war bond auction arranged by a group of near north side residents in support of the fourth war loan drive. Mrs. McLallen had agreed to polish the silver of the highest bond bidder.

When the bidding got to $200, Mr. Winternitz had an idea.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I'll tell you what. She'll polish your silver in shorts. Now what am I bid?"

Demurely, Mrs. McLallen dropped the skirt of her play suit and stood revealed in matching shorts.

Sam Workman, a ward committeeman, won her with a bid of $1,000.

Mrs. Homer Hargrave, the former Colleen Moore, movie actress, of 1320 N. State st., bid $5,000 in bonds for a gallon bottle of Scotch.

The services of William Murphy, patent attorney, as a truck washer, went to J. C. Hoskins on a bid of $2,000.

B. Harrison Newman, of the treasury's special events division, bought a ride on the aircraft carrier Sable for $10,000. Another ride went to H. P. Hodgkins, 1430 Lake Shore dr., for $8,000.

Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, whose husband is president of the Chicago Stadium, bid $100,000 for the agreement of a newspaper columnist not to write what he knows about her husband.

Others whose services were auctioned included Carl Staunton and Hugo Vogel, advertising executives; A. Bradley Eben, attorney; William C. Boyden, lawyer; J. C. Hemphill, banker, and Mrs. Otto Madlener.

Admission to the auction was $2 in war stamps. Reserved seats sold for one $25 war bond.

Writer Urges Warm Clothes for Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

She's 12 and doing everything the other girls do all along the way. Ordinarily she's healthy, but for two months she's had a cold which she cannot shake off. Could it possibly be, we wonder, because all thru the bitterest weather of the winter, even on the skating pond, her young legs from the thigh to the tops of her socks are uncovered?

If her grandmother says anything about it, she exclaims, "But, grandma, the girls in my grade all go skating with skating skirts and short jackets. Only the kids wear ski suits or have their legs covered."

Her grandma sighs every time the little group of girls comes in in the late afternoon actually shivering, and chilled to the bone, for Grandma has given up. Their mothers do nothing about it, and all these young girls go right on skating with the briefest of clothes, dressed without the slightest regard for the weather or their health.

Exposure like this is a drain on the vitality, and certainly lowers resistance to infections. It should stand to reason that the bodily warmth should be maintained, and the mothers of these children, if they showed enough concern and initiative, could easily swing the style away to something more comfortable and equally pretty.

This morning on my way to the city I passed a skating rink where two young girls of about 18 were practicing figure skating. They both looked charming and cozy, clad in trim crimson ski pants, warm white jackets, red caps and white skating shoes. Something like this would be fine, or, if the children's hearts belonged absolutely to flaring short skating skirts, they could dress that way but wear warm woolies underneath, long skating stockings and socks rolled down over their skating shoes.

In spite of all the pretty and warm clothes there are for girls to wear for sports, I still see far too many children with reddish purplish young bare legs blown upon by the wicked winds.

Map Plans to Raise 32 Millions for Aid of Jews in Europe

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7 (AP).—Plans to raise $32,000,000 this year to aid Jews in war torn Europe were outlined today at the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds as a part of a 12 point program for rehabilitation, resettlement, and relief of Jews now suffering under the heel of nazilism.

The fund, the largest ever sought by American Jews for any cause, will be used primarily to save 3,000,000 Jews in Europe "from extermination by the Nazis," William Rosenwald of Greenwich, Conn., honorary president of the national refugee service, said.

The 12 point program includes transportation of those reaching Spain, or reaching the Balkans, to Palestine or the western hemisphere; shipment of food and medicines to Polish refugees in Russia; increased aid to refugees in allied or neutral countries; acquisition of new land areas in Palestine, and economic and other assistance to refugees arriving in the United States.

U. S. BLACK LIST OF LIQUOR FIRM RULED ILLEGAL

Judge Holly Issues Writ Against Yellowley.

Federal Judge Holly yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining E. C. Yellowley, supervisor of the federal alcohol tax unit in Chicago, from enforcing a burocratic black list against John Roesing & Co., wholesale liquor dealers at 2101 Wabash av., which is charged with black market violations of the tax administration act.

E. C. Yellowley.

Judge Holly, ruling that the Washington conceived black list was wholly beyond the limits of the law, interpreted Yellowley's attempt to enforce it as "arbitrary."

Powers Exceeded, Judge Says.

In issuing the injunction, Judge Holly said:

"The administrator should administer law as it exists. It is true that greater precautions to curb the black market in liquor are necessary now, but in this case the administrator exceeded his powers. If more regulations are necessary congress should authorize them."

Before he issued the order, Judge Holly denied a government motion to dismiss the Roesing suit on the ground the government had not been properly served and in that it failed to name the government as a respondent.

Judge Holly told Kenneth Nathan, an assistant United States attorney, that the suit had been properly brought against Supervisor Yellowley only "because Mr. Yellowley had committed an arbitrary act." He emphasized that such arbitrary action "could do injury to some person merely charged with an offense."

Points to Three Letters.

Atty. Harold L. Perlman, in the suit, charged that Yellowley blacklisted the Roesing company, after it had been cited to show why its permits should not be suspended for alleged violations of the tax act, by writing three letters, the first on Jan. 10, to distillers and rectifiers directing them to stop shipments to Roesing.

Perlman argued that by these letters Yellowley had attempted to accomplish indirectly that which he could not do directly under existing law. He branded Yellowley's move as "illegal, arbitrary, and wanton."

As a result of the black list, Perlman said the Roesing company, which had been able to purchase $450,000 worth of spirits immediately before Yellowley's letters went out, was unable to buy any supplies in a period of 20 days after Jan. 10.

"Program" from Washington.

Nathan attempted to defend Yellowley's action as based on orders contained in a "program" from Washington.

A hearing in the proceedings to suspend the Roesing company's permits will be held today.

The Roesing company, one of several companies blacklisted, also has been indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy, price violations, and perjury. Indictments returned Friday also accused John Roesing, 2920 Commonwealth av., president; his son, Robert B. Roesing, executive officer, and other officers, officials, and salesmen of the company.

McDonough Gaming Trial Is Deferred Until Feb. 21

Trial of Lt. Myles McDonough, suspended county highway policeman, on a charge of malfeasance involving gambling conditions was deferred until Feb. 21 yesterday by Judge Rudolph F. Desort in Criminal court, because Richard Austin and Alex Napoli, assistant state's attorneys, are engaged in conducting another prosecution. Judge Desort overruled a protest by McDonough's counsel, Emmet Moynahan.

ARMY AND NAVY SET UP PLAN FOR MUSTER OUT PAY

Application Offices Are Listed.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—The army and the navy have agreed on a plan to make mustering out payments to veterans discharged honorably since Dec. 6, 1941.

A veteran discharged or relieved from active duty after Feb. 4, date of approval of the law, will receive his payment without the necessity of filing an application.

The application form will not be printed by the army or navy, but the veteran may copy it or submit any facsimile from its publication in newspapers or elsewhere.

List Application Offices.

The offices at which applications must be made are as follows:

Officers discharged from the navy—bureau of naval personnel, navy department, Washington, D. C.

Coast guard officers—coast guard headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Marine corps officers—commandant of the marine corps, Washington, D. C.

Army officers—To one of a selected list of finance offices, army, the offices being the same as for enlisted men.

Navy and coast guard enlisted veterans—Field branch, bureau of supplies and accounts, Cleveland, O.

Marine Enlisted Men.

Marine corps enlisted veterans—Commandant of the marine corps, Washington, D. C.

Illinois army veterans, both officers and enlisted men, should write the finance officer, army, at Buder building, Market and 7th sts., St. Louis, Mo.

Rep. Boren [D., Okla.] said today he would suggest to the war department a mustering out payment application blank be attached to each discharge received by members of the fighting forces. Newspapers have protested that they have been "authorized" to publish such blanks, Boren said, because the army and navy departments are making no arrangements to do so, and this cuts further into newspapers' reduced supply of paper.

Hurley Promotion Given Confirmation by Senate

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP).—The senate today confirmed President Roosevelt's promotion of Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war and the President's personal ambassador to the near east, from the temporary rank of brigadier general to the temporary rank of major general in the army.

INQUEST SEEKS OFFICIAL STORY OF DRAKE CASE

The murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wife of a Washington diplomatic aid, who was shot by a mysterious gunwoman in the Drake hotel Jan. 19, will be thoroly aired for the first time under quasi-judicial conditions today when the inquest into her death is resumed.

The hearing is scheduled for 10:30 a. m. at the county morgue, with Coroner Brodie presiding, and assisted by his chief deputy, James Whalen. A previous hearing was perfunctory.

Tie Up Loose Ends.

Today's inquest is expected to be comprehensive, embracing virtually all developments to date, and presumably barring only those matters whose secrecy is essential to police investigation. All in all, it will be the first complete inquiry in which witnesses will be under oath, not in manner unlike a court hearing.

"Many loose ends in this case can be and should be cleared up," said Brodie last night. "We intend to put everybody, including police, on record, and get an official and accurate account of the case."

Call Two Daughters.

Among witnesses summoned are Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, a daughter of Mrs. Williams, who was with her when she was shot; Miss Elizabeth Born, another daughter; Edgar R. Born, former husband of Mrs. Williams, and the widower, Williams, who is coming from Washington.

Also appearing will be Thomas Rosenberg, a lawyer, who, with Born, beat police to the murder scene; Dr. T. J. Coogan of the Drake, who attended Mrs. Williams; Walter Shawke, E. E. Jantz, Mrs. Eva Fritz and Leo Andrews, Drake employes, and John D. Tierney and Ray Reilly, house detectives. In addition, half a dozen police who worked on the case, among them Supervising Capt. John Ryan and Capt. Frank Reynolds, are expected to appear.

Friend of the Yanks' Kin

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

[This department answers questions covering problems related to the social welfare of relatives of service men, both in the column and by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent with inquiries to Sally Joy Brown.]

Mrs. J. H. inquires: "My husband is a private first class in the army corps. He was sent overseas in August, 1943. He told me that after he left here I would receive $60 a month, instead of $50, as my allowance. Up until now, I have received my checks as usual, but they are for $50. Was he wrong about the difference in my allowance check?

ANSWER: If your husband expected that your family allowance would be increased merely because he was serving overseas, he was incorrect. The family allowance for a wife is set by law at $50 a month, and there is no increase because the soldier leaves this country. Service men receive a 20 per cent increase of their base pay when they go overseas, but that does not affect the family allowance. I would suggest that you write and ask him if he intended to allot an additional $10 from his salary. That would be the only way in which your income could increase.

L. V. K. writes: "Will you please tell me just how V-mail is sent overseas? Is it sent by air or by sea, and how often?"

ANSWER: V-mail is flown overseas. Other mail is sent by ship. It is not possible to say just how often such mail will go, but V-mail has priority over other mail.

Miss M writes: "Could you please advise me? Here is my problem. I would like to know what rating an enlisted man in the navy must reach before the allotment is discontinued and the family allowance starts. I recently read in your column that it changes when they become a first class petty officer but want to be sure."

ANSWER: I believe that you have the regulations confused. The terms are just reversed. Men in the lower pay grades, because of their small salaries, received family allowances. Up until recently, when men reached the rank of petty officer second class, that privilege was discontinued. However, the allowance is now available to all noncommissioned men, with the exception of warrant officers.

Mrs. G. D. C. writes: "My son, who is a technician 4th grade, has been sending his wife his allowance of $50 a month, $22 of which comes from his salary. His wife is an army nurse, stationed here in the states, while he is overseas. She has recently been told she is not entitled to this allowance, but our understanding was that all wives are entitled to receive it. Can you tell us whether she may continue to receive it or not?"

ANSWER: There is no reason why an army nurse may not receive a family allowance from her husband. Any legal wife is entitled to such benefits, regardless of her own financial position.

M. W. writes: "Can a mother who is an invalid get an allowance from a son in the army whether he wants her to have it or not? If so, how should she go about getting it?"

ANSWER: Service men cannot be compelled to provide family allowances for class "B" dependents. The mother in question may receive an allowance only if her son is willing to provide his share of it, which, if he has no other dependents, would amount to $22 a month. She must also prove at least partial dependency.

Seize Executive Accused of Con Game by Teacher

Ralph W. Smiley, 47, of 909 Elmwood av., Evanston, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Miss Louise Shipley, 617 Grove st., Evanston, a school teacher, that he had taken $1,900 from her on Jan. 31 in a confidence game. Smiley surrendered at the Evanston police station, and was placed under $2,500 bond. He is credit manager for the Busch Jewelry company, 1624 Sherman av., Evanston.

STATE WINDS UP CASE AGAINST 2 IN GAS MURDER

The state yesterday closed its murder case against Edward Damiani and Alvin Krause, on trial in Criminal court for the poison gas killing of Miss Agnes Olsen in a currency exchange robbery July 3. A letter written by Damiani to his wife in which he said he was feigning insanity in an effort to escape trial, was admitted as evidence.

When the state closed its case Harold Levy, attorney for Krause, moved for a directed verdict of acquittal for his client on the ground he had not been connected with the slaying except by one witness who was uncertain of his identification. The motion was overruled and the defense will start today.

Judge Ward permitted Assistant State's Atty. Austin to read the letter, obtained when Damiani tried to smuggle it out of jail, despite the protests of Levy and Leonard Steiger, defending Damiani. He told the all-woman jury, however, that the letter was not evidence against Krause.

One Paragraph Under Fire.

Levy asserted the letter was highly prejudicial to Krause and objected especially to a paragraph in which Damiani wrote: "Assistant State's Atty. Gordon Nash had promised me a 14 year sentence if I would testify for the state, so you see I am risking my life to save him. I would not be a rat."

"Don't you realize that they want to make an example of me and put me in the electric chair," Damiani wrote. "They have already indicted me for first degree murder. It is too late to turn back now. I have gone too far and they are mad at me. After you have copied the information I am going to give you burn this letter up. But when you give this information to my attorney don't let him know that I told you to."

Damiani then instructed his wife to tell his attorney that he had little knowledge of mechanical refrigerators [in his confession he had said the gas used in the robbery was refrigerator gas]; that he never went beyond the second year of high school and had failed in chemistry and physics, and to conceal the fact that he had attended college.

Drops Insanity Role.

Warden Sain testified that after the letter was intercepted Damiani dropped his insanity role and his actions became normal. Dr. William J. Haines, director of the Criminal court behavior clinic, testified that when he examined Damiani in October he decided he was insane, but that after an examination in November, after the letter was found, he decided the prisoner was sane.

Nash denied that he had promised Damiani a short sentence.

NOVIKOFF PUTS HIS HARMONICA ASIDE TO SIGN

Makes Terms with Cubs by Phone.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There's no longer any use of withholding the prediction that the Cubs are going to be 1944 pennant winners. They can't miss. Lou Novikoff, the so-called Mad Russian, has laid aside his harmonica long enough to come to terms with the Chicago club which in the recent past he charged wanted him to play for peanuts. And he doesn't have a taste for the goobers.

Lou Novikoff.

Novikoff's signing was an act wisely devised to avoid repetition of his 1943 performance in which, after receiving his contract, he burst into print with a blast of belligerence entirely foreign to his sunny disposition that includes a fondness for breathing thru a harmonica.

Instead of getting a contract in the mail Lou was called into the office of President Clarence Rowland of the Pacific Coast league in Los Angeles and informed Vice President James Gallagher of the Cubs was on the wire. The great bench warmer agreed the offer was satisfactory, whereupon Rowland attended to the documentary details.

There's Another Angle.

It is possible that another angle is attached to the method in which the Cubs' expensive bench warmer was lined up for another six months of siestas, broken only by occasional appearances in the guise of an outfielder. Mr. Gallagher, now in New York for the major league baseball meeting, may have in mind a deal for Novikoff, and it is always easier to swap if what you are offering is already under contract.

The Giants expressed a desire for his services last December, but a deal was taboo at the time because the Mad Russian was under suspension for violating the winter ball ban. A few other clubs at one time or another have professed interest in the muscular athlete but this interest aroused the suspicions of the Cubs' officials. They didn't want to quit on the minor league slugger until certain they wouldn't get results. Supposedly they now have concluded the time to surrender has arrived.

Dizzy Dean Technique.

Altho Novikoff hasn't done much in an athletic way for the Cubs he has revealed a Dizzy Dean technique for getting into harmless jams. He was a holdout in January of 1941, but hadn't been in a Cub uniform. He repeated in the role last spring, demanding $10,000 and finishing with about $7,500 after dodging the first month of the season. This winter he invited the ire of Commissioner Landis by playing ball. In addition he has had himself under the care of a manager who was supposed to see that he didn't sign for peanuts. And that harmonica is an annoyance to Jim Wilson. When Novikoff hears a piano being played he joins in with his favorite instrument and forgets the midnight curfew.

Novikoff was purchased from Los Angeles in August of 1940, joining up after his holdout attack the following spring. He was widely ballyhooed as a batting terror but the major league brand of pitching slowed him down so quickly that he spent most of that season with the Milwaukee club. Since then the Cubs have attempted to polish him up, particularly as a defensive artist but the only noted improvement was as a harmonica tooter.

Emil Yde, Former Pirate, Named Sheriff in Florida

Tallahassee, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP).—Gov. Holland today appointed Emil Yde of Leesburg, former Pittsburgh Pirates baseball pitcher, sheriff of Lake county to succeed B. A. Cassady, who died last week.

New Yorkers to Enter Bid for Dodgers

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—A New York group is ready to attempt the difficult job of purchasing the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball club, it was learned today. Max Meyer, jeweler, heads the syndicate which is making attempts to negotiate with George V. McLaughlin, president of the Brooklyn Trust company, which is said to hold a $100,000 loan against part of the stock held by the heirs of late Charles Ebbets.

The Brooklyn stock is split into three general blocks, one of which, in turn, is broken up into many pieces. Fifty per cent of the shares belong to the Ebbets heirs, who have been forbidden by the court to dispose of their separate holdings unless a buyer appears for the entire bundle. It is this block that Meyer and his backers must have for complete control.

Woman Refuses to Sell.

Mrs. James Mulvey, who owns one-fourth of the stock, repeatedly has refused to sell, and Meyer is understood to have an option on the 25 per cent owned by the Ed McKeever estate.

Meanwhile, National league owners took a day off before gathering tomorrow for their annual schedule meeting and to discuss the complete pre-season picture and the recommendations made over the week-end by baseball's post-war planning committee. Will Harridge, president of the American league, called off today's session because all of the clubs were not represented.

O'Doul Refuses Braves' Bid.

The Lefty O'Doul for manager movement started by the Boston Braves blew up tonight when O'Doul, reached in San Francisco, declared he has turned down the post. O'Doul said he held Bob Quinn, president of the Braves, in high esteem, but that he has a life job as manager of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league.

Wtih O'Doul out of consideration, there was a possibility that the veteran Bob Coleman would be the new manager. Coleman was coach under Casey Stengel last season. Stengel recently resigned as the Braves' pilot. Others mentioned for the job are Bucky Harris and Pepper Martin, International league managers.

M'Spaden's 70 Beats Nelson in Golf Playoff

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 7 (AP).—Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia, the winter season's top golf money winner, added a $1,000 war bond to his earnings by shooting a 70 for a two stroke victory today over Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., in an 18 hole playoff to decide the Phoenix open.

Deadlocked yesterday at the end of 72 holes with 273, 11 strokes under par, Nelson and McSpaden were still even and still shooting better than par golf at the turn today.

Nelson, recent winner of the San Francisco Victory open, in which McSpaden was runnerup, picked up a stroke on the 16th when McSpaden got into trouble and took a bogie. But the match reached the turning point on the 17th where McSpaden ran down a spectacular 35 foot putt for a birdie three.

Nelson's prize for second place was a $750 war bond.

TINKER SUFFERS RELAPSE FROM KIDNEY AILMENT

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP).—Joe Tinker, one of baseball's outstanding players for several years after the turn of the century, suffered a slight relapse today at a hospital where he has been ill with influenza and complications since Jan. 26.

Dr. Spencer A. Folsom, one of the attending physicians, said that "in a case like this one there are bound to be ups and downs, and this is one of the downs."

The physician said Tinker, famous as a member of the Chicago Cubs' Tinker to Evers to Chance double play combination, still is seriously ill, but his condition is not critical and it has not been necessary to put him back under an oxygen tent. He ascribed the relapse to a kidney ailment.

The hoodlum element, estimated at a few dozen, is again causing trouble at Chicago Blackhawk hockey games. . . . It is described by the management as the "amazingly vicious nitwits who throw pennies and marbles onto the ice." . . . Their only hope, it is alleged, is that some player, any player, will fall and break his legs, arms or head. . . . George Allen, recently out for three weeks with a wrenched leg, was victim of a penny thrower. . . . Trouble seldom comes single handed. . . . Pvt. Charles Fredericks, former Tribune sports employe, was watching a baseball game at Camp Chaffee, Ark., the other evening. . . . A bat swung loose from a hitter's hands and cracked Fredericks on the leg. . . . While he was lying on the ground writhing in pain a batted ball hit him in the mouth, loosening his favorite bicuspids. . . . Pete Cawthon is telling one and all in Texas and Alabama that the Bears are lucky Sammy Baugh was unable to play 60 minutes in the championship game. . . . It is said that Don Kolloway, former White Sox second baseman, will depart from Camp Grant about the same time the athletic program is abandoned there—destination not announced.

Wistful Wishing.

Her face . . . it shone with smiling pride,
A picture etched upon my heart . . .
A son and mother side by side.

Terminal.

Have you ever watched the ebb and flow
In, say, the Grand Central station,
Or in any other vast terminal
Here and there thruout the nation?
A train call rings out and some who have sat
Arise and hurry away,
While others continue to sit there,
They still have time to delay.

Another call and another crowd
Stand up and take their places
There at the gates, thus making room
For still more new waiting faces;
Every one waiting there for a call,
But the call not for all the same,
It's something to think of just watching them,
A never palling game.

Isn't life a lot like such a place,
All of us waiting our call,
For some it's this hour, for others that,
And none of us can forestall;
When our turn comes we, too, fare forth
To stand waiting there at life's gates,
Another step in the journey of life
To whatever, wherever awaits!

BOXER CRAVES GOLDEN GLOVE AND A UNIFORM

Charley Kucharz Has Four Brothers in Service.

Gloves Schedule

TONIGHT.
Milwaukee Journal semi-finals.
Minneapolis Star-Journal, second round.
Muncie, Ind., Star, semi-finals.
Oklahoma City Oklahoman, second round.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The window of the Kucharz home at 2127 W. Cullerton st., out on Chicago's near southwest side, carries a service flag with four stars. Before another Golden Gloves season rolls around, however, they will be augmented by a fifth star, same being for the baby of the family, 17 year old Charles. But, before Charley dons a uniform, as he expects to, come his 18th birthday in September, he has another important objective—the winning of a Golden Glove.

This large pawed youngest of seven brothers will make his first serious move toward a prize in amateur boxing's greatest show next Monday night, when the Chicago city championships are conducted in the Marigold Gardens, 817 W. Grace st. Charley will have an immediate reason for winning his bout in the 175 pound open division against Billy Love, south side light heavyweight representative from the Savoy A. C. In their only other meeting, Kucharz's third big league bout, Billy won a decision and Charley's out to even matters.

Member of Madison A. C.

The black haired young Polish-American will lead a delegation of three boxers from the Madison Athletic club, the other pair being Jackie Boyd, flyweight in the open class, and Pete Gorman, who will battle in the 112 pound novice division.

Kucharz learned his boxing A-B-C's, as so many other lads in his neighborhood, under the tutelage of Eddie Javer, himself a former Golden Glover and now director of the Union League Boys' club at 19th and Leavitt streets. Last fall he joined the Madison A. C. team, where his teacher is the veteran Pop Howard. He entered last winter's Catholic Youth organization's tournament and won the 175 pound championship from Willie Wilson in the finals at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium. Monday night he will represent the north side in the Chicago city light heavyweight final against Love, aiming to make the local team in the Tournament of Champions, to be held in Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28 and 29 and March 1.

Works in Sash Factory.

The Kucharz physique, unusual for a 17 year old, has been developed for the last year in his work at the Pacific Mutual Door company, 2141 South Troop street, where he rustles doors, sashes, and craes with the ease of a mature man. He is daily subjected to considerable joshing by his fellow workers, but when the gong sounds at Marigold next Monday, Charley is assured of the enthusiastic support of these same friendly hecklers, Al Stryck, Alvin Weidig, Frank Clark, Joe Heft, and Ernie Westfall.

Four of Charley's brothers are in the service, one of them, Bruno, already having landed in Italy. Of the others, Walter, who did a deal of boxing himself, is a military policeman in Great Falls, Mont.; Stalley, the eldest, is stationed at Camp Lee, Va., and Joey aparently is en route overseas. Charley hopes to join them, but not until he has finished the job of supporting his mother and sister, and winning that Golden Glove.

Babe Ruth Hits 50th—Year; Play by Play of His Big Day

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Bambino still can cut the cake. He did it today, literally, on his 50th birthday, just a few seconds before it slipped from the table to land frosted side down with a squashy plop on the floor of the little den lined with pictures and souvenirs of the days when Babe Ruth was making baseball history with home runs.

He's a gentleman of unwanted leisure now, restless as a caged bear and filling in his days with bowling and innumerable appearances at bond rallies which have left his voice a hoarse croak. He'd love to go overseas to entertain the service men, but he says half a dozen doctors told him he'd die before he got there.

So he does the best he can in war work and uses bowling in winter and golf in summer as an outlet for his nervous energy. He's a 165 average bowler, but can't bowl more than four games of an afternoon.

Babe's Down to 240, but He Still Has a Middle Bulge.

"My knees give out on me," he explains. Babe weighs about 240 pounds, less than he did when he was playing for the Yankees, but in his blood red lounging pajamas he still looks like he had been invited to a pot luck supper and swallowed the pot. He saw only four or five baseball games last year, as he had to take his daily golfing exercise.

Sure, he'd like to be back in baseball in some capacity. He'd have more privacy, for one thing. He has his silent telephone number changed about every two months, but still the hero worshippers track him down.

"We thought they wouldn't bother Babe when he left baseball, but it's worse than ever now," says Mrs. Ruth. "Babe tries to see as many as he can." The phone rang.

"I'm not in," Babe croaked.

"It's so and so; they want to wish you a happy birthday," said Mrs. Ruth. "Let them do the talking, now. Your voice . . ."

Babe lumbered across the room in that familiar spraddle legged stride.

"I'll shake my hand," he grunted. He returned shortly. "Better order more cheese for tonight," he said. "I suppose 40 or 50 will show up for the party."

His New York Apartment Is a House of Memories.

The spacious Ruth apartment is almost a baseball museum. Trophies and gifts from the days he was setting the record of 60 home runs in a year and compiling a total of 714 circuit smashes, not counting 15 in world series competition, are everywhere.

"Show them that little cigar lighter made like a bowling pin you got the other day," Mrs. Ruth suggested.

"Don't know where it is," he replied. He was comfortable in an easy chair and puffing contentedly on an ornate pipe—a 44 year old pipe, he explained.

"Why, it's in that suit you wore," Mrs. Ruth insisted, and as Babe heaved himself to his feet and barged across the room with shoulders hunched, "And straighten up."

The big guy is just human, after all.

Happy Birthday!

KENTUCKY WINS FROM ILLINOIS QUINTET, 51-40

Camp Grant Whips Dow Five, 56-39.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 7 [Special].—The Great Lakes Bluejackets won their 23d basketball game of the season tonight, defeating the University of Wisconsin Badgers, 63 to 40.

The superb shooting of Herman Schaefer and Paul Armstrong was too much for the Badgers, the former scoring 20 points and his running mate 15. Against this combination, the Badgers could offer little defense and the fast breaking sailors won easily after the first 11 minutes of play.

Badgers Start Fast.

The Badgers made a battle of it for the first 10 minutes and held leads of 6 to 4, 10 to 6, and 12 to 9, before the Great Lakes boys started hitting the hoop with monotonous regularity to give them a 27 to 16 lead at half time. The Badgers after their fine start, lost a lot of their drive and their shooting fell below par until the last few minutes of the second half.

After the Badgers had taken their 12 to 9 lead, the sailors cut loose with a barrage of baskets that sent them ahead, 27 to 12, Schaefer scoring three field goals and Armstrong a pair.

In the second half, Schaefer dropped in five field goals in the first 8 minutes of play while Don Smith the former Minnesota star, hit with three as did Chuck Joachim.

Patterson Gets Five Goals.

The Badgers battled back gamely in the final 10 minutes and Ray Patterson scored five field goals in the stretch drive, but he had little help from his mates. Patterson's 13 points paced Wisconsin with Des Smith having 13.

The Badgers return to Big Ten competition Friday and Saturday when they face Indiana at Bloomington. The lineups:

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Kentucky Wildcats clawed their way to an avenging 51 to 40 victory tonight over the University of Illinois before a capacity crowd of 4,000. After going into the intermission on the short end of a 25 to 21 count, Coach Adolph Rupp's Wildcats got hot in the second half to rack up 30 points to 15 for Coach Doug Mills' visitors.

High scoring honors for the night went to Big Stan Patrick, Illinois forward, whose one handed shots produced six field goals and seven free throws for 19 points.

LEW HANBURY K. O.'D IN THIRD BY ARMSTRONG

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Henry Armstrong, one-time owner of three world boxing titles, knocked out Lew Hanbury, Washington hopeful, in the third round of a scheduled 10 rounder tonight. Armstrong weighed 139 and Hanbury, who was counted out while on one knee in a corner of the ring scaled, 197.

Armstrong, in the course of his third comeback attempt hit Hanbury, a former sparring partner, with a vicious right hook after an exchange of jabs which opened the third round.

5 COLLEGES TO DRAW PREP V-5 NAVY ENLISTEES

10 Football Captains in Group to Be Assigned.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Several score high school athletes, including 10 boys who captained football teams in the Chicago territory, and who are enrolled in the navy's V-5 aviation program, will be assigned to five colleges and universities, four of them located in the midwest. This information was received yesterday by the navy aviation cadet selection board.

These 17 and 18 year old athletes, who complete high school courses in midyear and who have been enrolled in navy aviation since Jan. 15, will be sent to college for eight months. After that, if the current program of advancement is continued, they will go to De Pauw or Monmouth for three months and eventually enter the Iowa City preflight course. When they matriculate now they will be placed in classification called V-12 A.

Five Schools Selected.

Notre Dame, Wabash, St. Ambrose, Indiana State Teachers' college at Terre Haute, Ind., and Newberry college, S. C., are the schools selections for these navy aviation trainees. The list will be compiled by the Chicago board and will be announced approximately 10 days before March 1 when they will report at these schools.

This procedure, it is understood, applies to boys who enlist in the navy aviation program before entering college. If a boy enters a university having a V-12 program—Northwestern, Purdue, and Michigan are conference schools with such programs—and then enrolls in navy aviation, it is reported he may remain at the university of his choice.

Capt. Otto Graham of Northwestern's basketball team, who is in naval aviation, will play his last game Saturday night in the Stadium against Camp Grant. Graham and Alex Kapter, Northwestern football guard, will be honored that evening. Dal Marvil, president of the N Men's association, will award them their varsity blankets after the Camp Grant game. K. L. Wilson, director of athletics, and Lynn Waldorf, football coach, will participate in the ceremonies. Lt. Henry Penfield of the cadet selection board, will present the athletes with their orders.

Illinois to Meet De Paul.

It is not known now whether Graham and Kapter will be ordered to DePauw or Monmouth. Graham's last conference game will be against Illinois Friday night in Champaign. The Wildcats were toppled from a share of the conference leadership last Friday in an overtime game at Wisconsin but have won five contests.

The Illini will return with Northwestern's players after Friday night's contest as Illinois meets De Paul in the second contest of the Stadium double header the next evening. This pair of games apparently will be one of the best of the Stadium presentations. The Warriors' excellent quintet certainly ranks at least on a par with the Wildcats and Illinois' squad, steadily improving, hopes to be the first conference team to upset De Paul. The Demons have beaten Purdue, Indiana, and Chicago and have subsequent games with Wisconsin and Ohio State.

NORTH PARK IS BEATEN, 38-22, BY UNIVERSITY

North Park and University High divided a double header last night in the North Park gymnasium.

The home club took the lightweight decision, 21 to 8, and the visitors the heavyweight, 38 to 22, with Johnny Sharp leading the scoring with 16 points.

REMIND OWNERS PAYMENT DUE ON RACE NOMINEES

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Some 200 owners of 1,406 thorobreds nominated last November for six of the most important stakes at the Arlington-Washington Park meetings this season, have been notified that additional entry money is due by Feb. 15 to keep their horses eligible.

These early closing stakes are the American Derby and the Arlington Classic, both for 3 year olds, and each worth $50,000 added, and four juvenile stakes, the $25,000 Arlington and Washington Park Futurities, and the $15,000 features for fillies, the Arlington Lassie and the Princess Pat.

Both Meetings at Washington.

The two meetings again will be held at Washington Park, due to its accessibility, the Arlington meeting opening June 21 and continuing until July 31, and Washington running from Aug. 2 to Sept. 6. One week of the Arlington Park meeting, July 3 to July 7, again has been set aside for a charity meeting sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities.

The Arlington Classic has drawn 144 entries, the Derby, 141 nominees, both fields including virtually every 1943 juvenile of prominence. William Helis of New Orleans, whose recent purchases included Pericles, the $66,000 colt, leads all other owners in nominations, putting up 27 for each of the Futurities and 16 in each of the filly fixtures.

Warren Wright's Calumet Farm named 11 colts for the futurities, 13 fillies for the Lassie and Princess Pat. They include three sons and four daughters of the distinguished stallion, Blenheim II, sire of the great Whirlaway. Blenheim II., with 16 offspring among the futurity nominees, heads the list of 135 stallions with sons and daughters eligible for those two rich juvenile events.

Mayer Enters Six

Other prominent stallions with large numbers of representatives in the two futurities are: Menow, 11; Sir Gallahad III., 10; Bull Dog, 9; Mahmoud, Rhodes Scholar, Johnstown, and Pharamond II., 7 each. Seabiscuit is represented by six of his sons nominated by Owner Charles S. Howard.

Of special interest are three sons and three daughters of the great Australian sire, Beau Pere, entered by Louis B. Mayer for the juvenile events. These youngsters are from Beau Pere's first American crop.

Hawks Home; Defend Fourth Against Bruins

The Chicago Blackhawks, who scored three of a possible six points in the recent three game road trip, returned to their home base yesterday to prepare for Thursday night's battle with the Boston Bruins in the Stadium.

In their recent spurt, the Hawks wrested fourth place from the Bruins and must stay there to qualify for the Stanley cup finals. Boston is only two points behind the Chicagoans, which puts Thursday's game somewhat on the crucial side. In fact, the Bruins may be tied with the Hawks for fourth when the teams face off as they play the National Hockey league leading Montreal Canadiens tonight in Boston. If they win, the Bruins will have 34 points, which will match the Hawks' production to date.

Bill Mosienko was the Hawks' top performer of the week. His two goals and two assists sent him ahead of his line mate, Doug Bentley, who accounted for two scores on the road. Mosienko went into third place and Bentley into fourth in the standings. Leading scorers:

Hawkeye Duo Near Scoring Lead in Big 10

Altho Tommy King of Michigan successfully defended his Big Ten individual basketball scoring lead by contributing 28 points to the Wolverines' double defeat of Indiana over the week-end, the real honors of the week went to a pair of freshmen from Iowa.

The duo, Dick Ives of Diagonal, Ia., and Dave Danner of Iowa City, combined to score 75 of their team's recording shattering 103 to 31 rout of Chicago and climb into the second and third spots in the scoring, despite having played in three less conference games than King. Ives disposed of two of Andy Phillip of Illinois' conference marks by firing 19 baskets and five free throws for 43 points while Danner scored 32 before leaving the game on four personal fouls.

As a result, King's 137 points barely wards off the totals of 134 and 125 of Ives and Danner, respectively. Meanwhile, Don Grate of Ohio, a former leader, remained within striking distance with a 118 figure that shared fourth place with his teammate, Arnold Risen. Leading scorers:

BY MARK COX.

A week ago Paul Elias of Parker High school didn't even rate the top spot in his own south section scoring tabulation. Then his former coach, Ed O'Farrell, completed navy boot training at Farragut, Ia., and came home to watch his former proteges play. Paul wanted to make the coach's leave a happy one and used his favorite left hand fade-away shot with such skill against Englewood and Harper that today he rules Chicago's junior scoring set with 102 points.

A senior, playing his third year with the juniors in just slipping under the 5 foot 7 inch requirement, the stocky youngster engages in the game the year round at the Englewood Y. M. C. A.

Grafner Jumps into Lead.

Pete Grafner, the little Waller star who drives in after many of his own misdirected shots to take the rebounds for numerous points, bounded into the north section lead with 92 points over Bob Hutmacher of Lake View.

In the City league senior group the west section continued to furnish the top two in Walter Mroz of Wells and Bill Mann of Austin, with 142 and 135, respectively. Don Rehfeldt of Amundsen extended his north section lead to 132, while Frank Schaffer of Tilden, in the central section, and George La Rochelle of Morgan Park, in the south, again ruled with 105 apiece.

Dawson Has 94 Points.

Ed Dawson continued his tip-in tactics to carry on in the Catholic league with 94. Dick Malm of Glenbard expanded his total in the West Suburban to 133, Wally Horvath of Thornton High of Harvey jumped to 103 in the south suburban, and Glenn Schlichting's 86 again dominated the Suburban for the league leading Proviso High of Maywood quintet.

Woods Beats Parsons in Marigold Ring

Sgt. Lou Woods, Camp Grant welterweight, outpointed Bill Parsons, former Danville, Ill., Golden Gloves champion, in a fast 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens last night. It was Woods' eighth straight victory and his 27th in 28 starts.

Woods scored a nine count knockdown in the second round and then kept the 1,487 spectators, who paid $2,641, guessing the rest of the way as to whether Parsons would finish.

In the ninth Woods knocked Bill out of the ring and then followed him into the press row. Woods returned at the six count and Parsons at nine. Just before the last round ended Woods scored his second knockdown.

Doll Rafferty, Milwaukee junior welterweight, floored Isadore Miner four times and then knocked out the former Catholic Youth organization boxer in the sixth and last round of a supporting match.

Alex Jimenez, Detroit featherweight, defeated Willie Moon in a six round bout which followed the main bout.

Johnny Jones, Pittsburgh 164 pounder, and Stanley Jordan, 141 pounds, also of Milwaukee, scored victories in four round preliminary contests. Jones beat Bishop Murphy and Jordan conquered Eddie [Kid] Carson.

INDUSTRY LOAD STILL HEAVY IN NEW TAX BILL

Appeal Is Provided on Renegotiation.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Myriad stipulations affecting business and industry—dealing with war profits, tax discriminations, and tax loopholes—are embodied in the new tax bill that congress today tossed on President Roosevelt's desk.

However, the 2 billion 315 million dollar second war time revenue measure makes little change in the overall tax burden on business and industry.

Principal interest in the legislation's commercial aspects centers on these four major points:

1. The 40 per cent normal and surtax rate on corporate income is not changed. The treasury proposed that the rate be made 50 per cent.

Rate Increased 5 Per Cent.

2. The excess profits tax rate is raised from 90 per cent to 95. However, a large part of the additional 5 per cent would have been recovered by the government anyway thru the war contract renegotiation law. Corporations will get a postwar refund of 10 per cent of the amount they pay under the excess profits tax.

3. The social security tax is frozen at 1 per cent each for employer and employe. The rate on pay rolls had been scheduled to rise to 2 per cent each on Jan. 1.

4. The war contract renegotiation law is amended to permit contractors the right to appeal to the United States Court of Tax Appeals, if they are dissatisfied with the findings of renegotiators. However, this does not affect renegotiation cases already closed.

The renegotiation section embraces standards for determination of what are excessive profits. All items permitted as deduction for income and excessive profits tax purposes are to be permitted the contractor as items of cost.

Exemptions Are Provided.

The definition of subcontractors is unchanged, but certain contracts and subcontracts are exempted from renegotiation, including:

Subcontracts for office supplies;

Contracts and subcontracts for certain raw materials which have not been processed beyond the first form in which they are suitable for industrial use;

Contracts and subcontracts for agricultural products which have not been processed beyond the first form in which they have a general established market;

Contracts for construction of buildings and other facilities, entered into as a result of competitive bidding;

Contracts and subcontracts for standard commercial articles may be exempted from renegotiation at the discretion of the renegotiation board established under the legislation.

Review Is Permitted.

Members of the board are representatives of government departments and agencies, such as the war and navy departments and the maritime commission, concerned with renegotiation. It has the power to review the determinations of excessive profits made by these departments and agencies.

Renegotiation is required to be conducted on a yearly basis, rather than on a separate contract basis, unless the contractor requests otherwise.

If the contractor's negotiable business does not exceed $500,000 for the year, he is exempted from renegotiation. Under the present law the exemption in this regard is $100,000.

Other new provisions:

1. Losses may not be deducted if they result from purchase of cor-

Wagner Tells of New Pipe Line Progress

The Chicago corporation's 50 million dollar natural gas pipe line project providing another link between Texas gas fields and eastern war production centers, is proceeding on schedule and in some phases of construction is ahead of schedule, it was learned yesterday.

Richard Wagner.

Richard Wagner, president of the corporation, said that work is under way at four points along the main line of the 1,228 mile 24 inch pipe line from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Cornwell, W. Va., at seven river crossings, and on feeder lines in Texas. Construction has begun on three of the seven projected compressor stations and on the Texas dehyration plant.

Since last Oct. 1, a construction and engineering staff of 400 has been operating from Houston, Tex., construction headquarters of the Tennessee Gas and Transmission company, in which Chicago corporation acquired a controling stock interest.

Has Planned Finance Setup.

Wagner said the Chicago corporation had paid the costs of the Tennessee company's construction operations to date, has assured sufficient funds to complete the project, and will arrange permanent financing later, on the terms and conditions most advantageous at the time.

The entire project is scheduled for completion before the end of 1944, and the line will begin operation with an initial capacity of 207 million cubic feet of natural gas daily. Contracts for distribution of the gas have been signed with the two principal distributors of the Appalachian area, Hope Natural Gas company, part of the Consolidated Natural Gas company system, and United Fuel Gas company, a unit of the Columbia Gas and Electric system.

Serve Appalachian Area.

Chairman Nelson of the war production board emphasized the necessity of this new source of gas supply over the week-end when he warned that a shortage of natural gas in the Appalachian area threatened to curtail war production there. The project has been given the highest priority ratings.

At the line's eastern terminus, the gas will be piped into distribution systems serving Toledo, Cincinnati, Columbus, and Cleveland, O., Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, Pa., and other industrial cities of the Appalachian area.

Bank of Canada Reduces Rediscount Rate 1 Pct.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Bank of Canada today announced its rediscount rate to chartered or savings banks, which controls credit policy, would be reduced tomorrow to 1½ per cent from 2½. Graham Towers, governor of the bank, said the step was designed to assure continuance of the central bank's low interest policy.

BITUMINOUS COAL RESERVE LOW, ICKES WARNS OF A CRISIS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Reserve stocks of bituminous coal constitute less than a 30 day national supply, Secretary of the Interior Ickes reported today, with a warning that further economies are necessary to avert a crisis.

Industrial and domestic bituminous reserves totaled 56,692,000 tons Jan. 1, the lowest national stockpile since April, 1940, and January consumption probably cut the reserve supply below a 30 day margin, Ickes said.

Coal consumption in December ran 3,387,000 tons more than the month's production. Production all thru January was above normal but did not maintain stockpile reserves, Ickes said. He also reported an acute shortage of domestic sizes of bituminous coal. An increasing number of householders have been forced to burn run of mine or industrial sizes.

STOCKS DECLINE FRACTIONS, BUT RAILS ARE FIRM

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Attempts to revive the stock market met with scant success today and, altho a few rails and specialties did fairly well, leaders generally finished down fractions to a point or more.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off .4 of a point at 49.7. Transfers totalled 572,576 shares, compared with 600,420 last Friday. It was the smallest aggregate for a full session since Jan. 3.

BONDS CONTINUE RISE.

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—The bond market resumed its advance with the start of the new week today but lost some of its advantage to profit taking before the close. Several reorganization and other type rail bonds ranged from small fractions to more than a point net higher and there were isolated cases of wider movers. Most industrials and utilities held about steady with the aid of selective investment demand.

CHICAGO LIST MIXED.

Price changes on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday were mixed, but most of the volume leaders were firm. Chicago corporation, which led in activity, gained a small fraction. Wisconsin Bankshares, Adams Oil and Gas, and Northwest Bancorporation set 1943-'44 highs.

LITTLE CHANGE IN HOG PRICES; RECEIPTS DROP

Hog receipts in the stock yards were held slightly lower yesterday than on Monday of last week. Arrivals totaled 42,000, including directs to packers, compared with 42,742 a week earlier.

Practically no changes occurred in the general price level compared with last week's close, altho a larger share of the "government weights" reached the $13.75 a hundred pounds floor.

A two way market developed for cattle. Weighty steers were weak to lower. Stronger prices prevailed for yearlings. A heavier run of heifers lowered prices 15 to 25 cents.

Frankfurter Renews High Court's Feud

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Justice Frankfurter added fresh fuel today to the controversy among Supreme court justices over the interpretation of constitutional law by asserting that his colleagues were resorting "gratuitously" to a "wholly novel doctrine of constitutional law."

These were practically the same words Justices Black and Murphy used a month ago in criticizing Frankfurter's views on utility rate making.

Dispute Over Jurisdiction.

The latest tiff developed over the court's decision that a federal bankruptcy court, rather than state courts, has exclusive power to fix fees for attorneys who represented in the state courts a corporation undergoing reorganization under the federal bankruptcy act.

Frankfurter agreed with all the other justices that in this particular case the bankruptcy court should determine the fees but vehemently expressed opposition, in a concurring opinion, to the grounds on which the Supreme court based its finding.

The case involved the reorganization of the Reynolds Investing Co., Inc., in the federal District court for New Jersey. Three attorneys' acting for the debtor filed suit in the New York courts to collect certain claims. Before judgments were returned, the attorneys' services were discontinued. Thereupon, under New York state judiciary law and in conformity with an arrangement in the reorganization proceeding, the three sued in the state courts to obtain fees for their services, and were awarded $100,000.

Justice Douglas' opinion declared that under the bankruptcy act, congress had conferred "paramount and exclusive" jurisdiction on the bankruptcy court.

Held Explicitly Authorized.

But Frankfurter asserted that from the beginning congress had permitted federally created rights to be enforced in state courts "not only by the general implications of our legal system but also by explicit authorization."

He declared that the Constitution does not give the bankruptcy act supremacy over the right of states to determine what shall be litigated in their courts, and under what conditions.

"And certainly such a wholly novel doctrine of Constitutional law should not be resorted to gratuitously when the case before us can be disposed of on the conclusive ground that the litigation conducted in the New York courts was conducted under an arrangement consonant with New York law," he said.

CASH RYE SALE SENDS FUTURES MARKET HIGHER

A report that 300,000 bushels of cash rye, presumed to have been taken in on December contracts, were sold yesterday to an elevator interest resulted in a rally of 1⅛ cents a bushel in futures prices on the Chicago Board of Trade after an early slump. Closing prices, altho slightly below the top, were at net gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cent. Wheat declined ⅛ to ⅝ cent. Oats were sold by commission houses and professional traders on prospects of a rollback in ceiling prices and finished ¼ to ⅝ cent lower. Barley was off ⅛ to ⅞ cent.

A price equal to 4½ cents below May, or a full carrying charge from now to May 1, was understood to have been obtained for the rye.

Tenders for Over 1 Billion in Treasury Bills Taken

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 [Special].—The treasury announced today tenders for $1,085,560,000 of 91 day treasury bills to be dated Feb. 10 and to mature May 11 have been accepted at an average price of 99.905.

SUPPORT RIGHT OF TRUCKER TO MEET RAIL RATE

High Court Balks at ICC Ruling.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Supreme court today balked at approving an interstate commerce commission order which the court said extended to motor carriers the same rate making policy that has long governed volume shipments by railroads. The decision affected truck rates between the east and the midwest.

Justice Rutledge.

In effect, the court said the commission had laid down as a rule of law that lower rates for large shipments by motor carrier could be justified only when a reduction in operating costs is achieved. The ICC case as presented lacked basis in law, the court ruled.

Other factors, such as competition between the motor carriers and railroads, should be taken into consideration, the court said in returning the case for further study.

Termed of 'Great Importance.'

The court termed the matter of "great importance," affecting shipments of various commodities and the motor carriers and even other carriers as well. It asserted it was unable to pass upon it until the ICC had set forth further reasons for its action. The court emphasized this did not mean that it would not eventually uphold the ruling.

Specifically, the court's 6 to 3 decision by Justice Rutledge set aside the commission's rejection of rates proposed by the Eastern-Central Motor Carriers association of New York on linoleum shipments between points in the east and the midwest. The association's schedule established lower rates on shipments of 30,000 pounds, which represents a railroad car lot, but exceeds a truck load. These rates, the ICC said, were designed to meet the rail carriers' carload rates.

The commission had ruled that since two trucks were required to handle a 30,000 pound shipment, there was no reduction in costs.

Cannot Transplant Principles.

"Each form of transportation presents its own problems for the function of rate making," Justice Rutledge said. "And each, by virtue of competition with others, presents additional complications arising from the varied circumstances of their operations. Hence, in such situations, principles previously established for application with a single form of transportation cannot always be transplanted without consequence unduly harmful.

"In short, the very fact that a railroad carload is 30,000 pounds and a truckload 20,000, with rates tied to these weights, may make a life or death difference in the competitive struggle."

The high court refused to review a federal trade commission order directing the Wholesale Dry Goods institute to discontinue an information service to its members which dealt with selling policies of manufacturers and wholesalers.

In addition, the court refused to review a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the New York "redevelopment companies law" adopted in 1942, providing for the incorporation of companies to rehabilitate slum areas. Its validity was challenged on the ground that New York courts erred in holding that condemnation of land for a housing project was for a public use.

'L' Turns Down 11 Million Bid; Mayor's Outlook Pessimistic

Troubles which have been developing for a week among the negotiators seeking an acceptable price at which the city would purchase Chicago's surface and elevated lines were brought into the open yesterday when city council members disclosed that the L investor groups had rejected the offered 11 million dollars for their property.

Mayor Kelly, after a conference in his office, said, "It doesn't look so good, but we will play it out to the end."

Part of Plan for Merger.

The mayor's plan is to purchase the two rail companies and the Chicago Motor Coach company and merge them into a single system to operate under municipal ownership. The bid for the surface lines was 75 millions, with the lines' investors also being permitted to keep 8 millions of free cash now in their treasury. The city, however, would take over 27½ millions in the surface lines' renewal and equipment fund.

Mention of the L price came up at a meeting of the council committee on local transportation after the chairman, Ald. Quinn [50th], suggested that the companies be given an extension of time to consolidate under a 1941 ordinance, without municipal ownership. [This proposed plan was rejected by the Illinois commerce commission.]

Ald. Lindell [9th] held that the companies should be notified that the council was tired of making extensions of time, and Ald. Duffy [19th] said such action seemed useless as the L investors had refused to sell to the city. Later it was disclosed that the rejection was not final.

Balk at Debt Payments.

It was learned that the L people objected to the price because the company would have to pay off debts aggregating $7,700,000, mostly back taxes, and this would leave little to be distributed to bondholders.

There were reliable reports that the surface lines' negotiators had encountered unexpected troubles in trying to agree on a fair division of the price to be paid, as well as in consideration of the adequacy of the city's bid. It was regarded as certain that the holders of 72 millions of first mortgage bonds would demand 100 per cent payoff, leaving little to share among junior security holders.

The negotiators are to report progress Friday to Judge Igoe of the federal District court, in charge of the receivership of both lines.

Gen. Motors Lifts Dividend to 75c a Share

Directors of General Motors corporation yesterday declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock, compared with 50 cents paid in the last quarter of 1943.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman, said the increased payment did not reflect any important change in the basic trend of corporation earnings, either now or in the immediate future, but was solely a matter of financial policy.

International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., declared a dividend of 40 cents on common stock, a 10 cent reduction in the quarterly rate in effect since 1937.

BEEF AND PORK FAMINE IS NEAR, EXPERT WARNS

Blames U.S. for Lag in Production.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—A civilian "famine" in pork and beef within 60 or 90 days was predicted today by a live stock authority, while the agriculture department reported that food supplies, including meat, will be about the same this year as last.

P. O. Wilson.

The prediction came from P. O. Wilson, executive secretary of the National Live Stock Producers' association, who asserted the shortage is developing because "ill advised" government policies are forcing farmers out of livestock production.

"Within 60 days this country will be practically on a famine basis with respect to supply of beef," Wilson said. "By the end of 90 days, the pork supply will have shifted from a feast to a famine basis."

Lag Until Fall Predicted.

Wilson told reporters it will be late fall before "anything like adequate supplies of beef" will be available.

The agriculture department said that despite an expected increase in food production, heavier military and lend-lease demands will keep civilians from having more food than they had last year. In fact, the department's bureau of agricultural economics said, the civilian share may be "somewhat smaller."

The department predicted meat production will total approximately 25 billion pounds in 1944, or 8 per cent more than 1943, but requirements other than civilian will take a larger chunk of it.

Eight Pound Drop Estimated.

The department estimated the supply for each person will be 123 pounds against 131 pounds in 1943.

The department said military food purchases last year increased about 75 per cent over 1942 and accounted for about 13.3 per cent of the total production. It said lend-lease and other exports showed a 57 per cent increase over 1942 and amounted to about 12 per cent of the total.

Civilians last year consumed a record amount of chicken eggs, fluid milk, margarine, potatoes, and dried peas, the survey showed, while consumption of fish, butter, cheese, deciduous fresh and canned fruits, and fresh and canned vegetables was below the 1942 level.

Surely it is the duty of a newspaper to take issue, if need be, with those who are more active in promoting their own political fortunes than in preserving America's birthright to everybody.

The Times-Herald will continue to call a spade a spade and to use it against those who are masking behind the wartime exigencies of 1943 their efforts to strangle the personal freedoms won in 1776.

Individual Independence, Personal Freedom, Self Reliance

[A MESSAGE TO CONNECTICUT MUTUAL POLICYHOLDERS FROM PRESIDENT JAMES LEE LOOMIS]

● Your company is taking its part with other life insurance companies in an educational effort urging the American people, among other things, to buy United States Bonds, pay their debts, and carry adequate life insurance, for the purpose of lessening as far as possible the hazards and ills of inflation. High officials of the federal government have heartily commended this effort. There are, however, other advantages equally important in pursuing the action recommended. Benefits will result to the whole as an increasing portion of the population acquire a more lively appreciation of the value of individual independence, personal freedom and self-reliance.

U.S. WOULD WEAN CUBAN ALCOHOL FROM GIN USES

Acts to Divert It to Arms and Rubber Programs.

Chicago liquor brokers yesterday disclosed the United States and Cuban governments are endeavoring to reach agreements which would provide millions of gallons of alcohol for synthetic rubber and explosives production. As a result, however, Martinis, Tom Collinses, and other gin drinks may become harder to get and more costly.

These brokers said that in order to obtain the alcohol that Cuba uses in Cuban gin, the war production board has drastically curtailed shipments of gasoline from this country to the island. At the same time "coöperation" by the alcohol tax unit in declaring that Cuban gin is not gin has resulted in lightening buying pressure from this country.

Raise Bars to Shipment.

Indication that representatives of the United States and Cuba were far from agreement was seen yesterday when it was learned that further impediments to shipments of Cuban gin, or rum from Cuba had been ordered. The board of economic warfare was said to be preparing an order that no barrels, drums, bottles, or other containers in which shipments might be made were to be returned to the island.

One informant explained: "The WPB has proposed to Cuba that it divide its annual output of alcohol for the duration into three equal parts, to sell this country one third, to put the second third into carbarante, a mixture of gasoline and alcohol used in Cuba for motor fuel; and to put the remaining third into beverage.

"Liquor dealers in the United States have been importing Cuban gin for more than a year; in fact, ever since the shutdown on beverage alcohol in this country. Some six months ago the WPB asked Cuban distillers to sell it the alcohol that was being made into gin in order to divert it to rubber and explosives use. The government offered a price, but apparently it wasn't enough.

Curtail Gas Shipments.

"Then gasoline shipments to Cuba were curtailed. The normal price of carbarante is 45 cents a gallon, and it is approximately a 50-50 mixture of gasoline and cane alcohol. By last November the price had risen to 60 cents a gallon. In January it was $1 a gallon. And it's now pure alcohol, no gasoline in it.

"A few weeks ago the alcohol tax unit stepped in. It held that some 5 million dollars of Cuban gin already in this country is not gin at all under the law and that it may not be labeled as gin but only as 'distilled spirits produced in Cuba from cane products and flavored with aromatics.'

"That has effectively tied up Cuban gin. Importers feel the public wants to see a gin label when it asks for gin. They also know they can't get the price as 'spirits' they could get if it were considered imported gin. They are holding it all, waiting for some break."

An agreement between the two governments on the future output of Cuban alcohol might bring such a break, it was indicated.

SHAPING OF WPB TO MEET CIVIL NEEDS ADVISED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Reorganization of the WPB's executive branch to give greater weight to civilian production requirements has been recommended by Arthur D. Whiteside, retiring vice chairman for civilian requirements.

In a memorandum to Chairman Nelson, Whiteside said civilian production can be expected to expand greatly as war requirements decrease. He asked Nelson to name two vice chairmen, of equal authority, one to be in overall charge of civilian requirements and one to be chief of all war requirements.

Walgreen's January Sales Set New Record

Permits Court Appeal on Renegotiation.

porations with current, past, or prospective losses, deficits or unusual excess profits credits, for the purpose of reducing income or excess profits taxes.

"Hobby" Losses Not Deductible.

2. Deductions are disallowed for so-called hobbies where the taxpayer, by operating an enterprise such as a farm or racing stable, has sustained losses in excess of $50,000 for each of five successive years.

3. Organizations exempt from income taxes, if the President signs the bill, henceforward must file with the government statements of their annual income. Labor unions are included. This new stipulation also would permit a reëxamination of tax exempt organizations competing with tax paying concerns, such as coöperatives.

4. The so-called "second" windfall provision in the pay-as-you-go tax law, which abated the 1942 tax only to the extent of a tax on normal income plus $20,000, with the taxpayer electing to select 1937, 1938, 1939, or 1940 as his "normal" year, is eliminated.

"Relief" Clause Retroactive.

5. "The inventory relief" in the 1942 act is made retroactive to 1941.

6. Shareholders may liquidate a corporation and take over the property in personal ownership without having to pay a tax on the appreciation in the value of the property realized upon liquidation.

7. The percentage depletion allowed in mining operations amounting to 15 per cent of gross income from properties, is extended to certain new minerals, including flake graphite, vermiculite, potash, beryl, feldspar, mica, lepidolite, spodumene, talc, and barite.

8. Special excess profits relief is granted in the case of coal, iron, timber, and natural gas operations, particularly with reference to new coal and iron mines.

9. Duty free importation of standard newsprint is extended to lighter weight newsprint [30 pounds or more per ream of 500 sheets] [in reels of not less than 16 inches or more in width] for the duration of the war emergency.

HOW TO FIGURE EARNED INCOME CREDIT FOR '43

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Every taxpayer is entitled to a special deduction called the earned income credit, in computing the normal tax, but not in computing the surtax. If the taxpayer files on form 1040 he must make the deduction himself. If he files on the short form 1040A the deduction is taken care of automatically in the tax table on the form.

The rules for determining the earned income credit are confusing, largely because of the similarity in certain terms used. Subject to certain limitations, the earned income credit is 10 per cent of the "earned net income," but not in excess of 10 per cent of the "net income."

Earned net income for most taxpayers is the figure entered as item 1 of the 1040 form, after subtracting earned income deductions described in last Saturday's article. Briefly, earned income consists of wages, salary, and other compensation for personal service. After deducting ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with such earnings, the net figure represents earned net income.

Compensation for Business Work.

A parent who reports as income the earnings of a minor child would not be entitled to an earned income credit on such earnings, since they do not represent compensation for personal services of the parent. On a joint return of a husband and wife, however, the earnings of both would be used in computing the credit.

If the taxpayer is engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are essential, a "reasonable" allowance as compensation for services actually rendered by the taxpayer, but not in excess of 20 per cent of his share of the net profits, shall be considered earned income.

Net income, as distinguished from earned net income, is simply the figure entered as item 1 on page 4 of the 1040 form.

The earned income credit is computed in schedule J as follows: If net income [item 1 on page 4] is $3,000 or less, the taxpayer uses only the first section of the schedule, but if net income is more than $3,000 he must use section 2.

Net Income Analyzed.

If the net income is not more than $3,000, the credit is 10 per cent of such net income. The entire net income not in excess of $3,000 is considered "earned net income," even tho derived solely from dividends, interest, rents, annuities, or other investment income.

If the net income is more than $3,000 the credit is either 10 per cent of such income, or 10 per cent of the earned net income, whichever is the smaller, but in any case it is at least $300. The $300 minimum, it should be remembered, applies only if the net income is $3,000 or more.

The maximum earned income credit is $1,400. This maximum occurs only when both the net income and the earned net income amount to $14,000 or more.

[Tomorrow's article will be on the victory tax.]

COUNCIL GROUP APPROVES PAPER MILK CARTONS

The committee on health will recommend to the city council tomorrow that the milk ordinance be amended to permit the legal sale of milk in paper containers in Chicago. Members of the committee, of which Ald. Gillespie [29th] is chairman, unanimously voted for the recommendation yesterday.

Milk has been selling in paper containers in Chicago under the protection of an injunction obtained three years ago by the Dean Milk company against enforcement of a city ordinance prohibiting this type of container. The Illinois Supreme court last month upheld the city's authority to legislate against paper bottles.

William J. Guerin, director of the city dairy inspection service, told the health committee that the paper containers now in use comply with standards of the United States public health service. The paper shortage has not lowered the quality, he said.

The committee's recommendation, to be presented to the council, was written by Ald. Moss [5th].

Paul Potter, secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, said the dealers will continue to give the public a choice of glass or paper bottles.

Baby 6 Weeks Old Found Abandoned in Hallway

A boy about 6 weeks old was found abandoned yesterday in a hallway at 4103 Gladys av. by Mrs. Blanche Linhart, who notified Fillmore street police. Sgt. John Coughlin found a note pinned to the baby's suit saying, "Daddy is dead. Take care of the baby."

THE QUESTION.

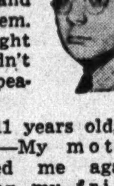
Did you ever regret not heeding the advice of an elder?

WHERE ASKED.

Washington st. at Wabash av.

THE ANSWERS.

Michael Ewoski, 14 years old, 3725 Division st.—I was eating a big bag of salted peanuts. My mother said it would make me sick if I ate too many of them, but I didn't believe it and ate every one of them. I was so sick I thought I'd die and I didn't want any more peanuts for two days.

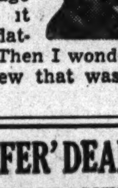


Sybil Wuletich, 11 years old, 545 Garfield st., Gary—My mother warned me against visiting my friend when she was sick in bed with the mumps, but I said I wouldn't get close to her. A few days later I came down with the mumps. I was sorry enough then that I hadn't heeded her advice, but I felt even worse when my twin sister got them, too.

Georgiana Wuletich, 11 years old, 545 Garfield st., Gary—I begged my father to let me ride on the roller coaster at the amusement park, but he said he thought it wasn't a good way to start the day. We rode anyway and before we were halfway around I screamed to be taken off. It made me so sick I couldn't enjoy the rest of the day.

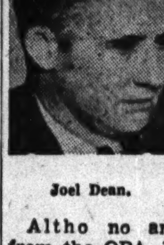
Robert J. Vargo, 13 years old, 653 E. 90th pl.—When my mother gave me my weekly allowance I got small change so I'd have a pocketful of money. My mother told me I should not carry it all with me or I might lose it. I lost more than I spent and regretted having to pay for a lesson like that out of my own little allowance.

Jerry Fitzgerald, 13 year old, 6038 Columbia, av., Hammond—Whenever I'd put my bicycle in the garage my father would tell me it would be safer in the basement. I didn't think it mattered until the garage man crashed into it with the car and flattened two wheels. Then I wondered how my father knew that was going to happen.



'LET 'EM SUFFER' DEAN, OPA FUEL RATIONER, RESIGNS HIS POST

Joel Dean, who recently refused fuel oil to those whose supply had been exhausted, called them "improvident users," and said, "Let 'em suffer," has resigned as chief fuel oil rationer for the Washington office of price administration, it was disclosed yesterday in letters from Dean to Chicago distributors.



Joel Dean.

Altho no announcement came from the OPA, Dean told the local industry leaders, men who served on a fuel oil panel with him, that both he and his assistant, Larry Vass, had quit. "We have submitted our resignations, but agreed to stay on a few weeks to help our successors," Dean's letters said.

The former assistant professor in the school of business at the University of Chicago gave no reasons for his resignation. Men in the industry, however, said it was not unexpected, and that Dean apparently had been angered because his superiors "went over his head" during a recent cold snap controversy with fuel oil users thruout the middle west.

Period 4 and 5 coupons were made valid immediately and those to whom Dean had refused oil got it.

Dean was author of the fuel rationing program that caused a storm of protest all over the country when it was inaugurated last winter.

MARINES RADIO KIN'S MESSAGES TO SO. PACIFIC

Greetings Limited to 100 Words.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Relatives and friends of United States marines in the South Pacific have been invited by the marine corps to send messages free to their favorite leathernecks. Messages will be relayed thru the short wave broadcast, "Tell It to the Marines," now nearing its 300th transmission to the South Pacific. Personal messages are accepted, but they are limited to 100 words. They should be addressed to the public relations officer, United States marine corps, 1 Montgomery st., San Francisco, Cal. Sender's full name and address should be included.

The army's radio service has disclosed the type of entertainment it is providing for men overseas, thru radio transcriptions, specially erected stations, and public address systems. The following is a percentage breakdown:

Popular music	38.3	Classical music	5.6
Comedy-variety	25.1	Quiz shows	4.8
Lgt. conc't music	10.8	Sacred music	2.5
Drama	6.9	Sports	1.2

First preference, of course, is for news. That, however, cannot be provided in recorded form; it must be transmitted "live."

Lansing Hatfield, Metropolitan Opera baritone, on a broadcast the other day, told of the fondness of little Arthur MacArthur, 6, son of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for music. Hatfield sent the lad recordings of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf." Subsequently Hatfield met Gen. MacArthur, who took him aside and said: "We hear 'Peter and the Wolf' night and day. In fact, I could stand up in front of an orchestra and conduct the blamed thing myself."

Studio notes—Alec Templeton will give "The Barber of Seville" a musical shave on his broadcast Wednesday evening. He will present "Largo al Factotum a la Cab Calloway." . . . Eileen and Elsa Nilsson, harmonizing twins of the Bob Burns show, are now 20, but they have been singing on Kansas stations since they were 9. . . . A North African soldier fan of Jeri Sullivan, the CBS songstress, has dubbed her "the girl with the pin-up voice." . . . Green Valley, U. S. A., a dramatic series about life in a typical American community, will bow in on Mutual on Sunday, Feb. 20. Santos Ortega will play the leading role.

BUTTER FROM ARGENTINE ON ITS WAY TO U. S.

New York, Feb. 7 [Special].—The latest shipment of Argentine butter en route to the United States totals 1,800,000 pounds. The size of this third consignment, which has been the subject of much speculation in the trade the last week, was disclosed today by Leo T. Crowley, head of the foreign economic administration. The shipment will increase to 23,800,000 pounds the total imported from Argentina since January, 1943.

Large quantities of Argentine butter were offered recently to the baking trade by the war food administration. The WFA made it plain much of the butter was suitable only for baking because of its stale, musty, or "barny" flavor.

Last week the WFA announced the nation's supply of allocable butter would total 2,046,000,000 pounds.

HUSBAND FREED IN WIFE'S DEATH FOLLOWING SPAT

A coroner's jury yesterday returned an undetermined verdict at an inquest into the death of Mrs. June Reich, 19, who was killed in a plunge from a third floor porch near her apartment at 6126 Ingleside av. early yesterday.

Mrs. June Reich [top] and Raymond J. Reich.

The jury ordered the release of her husband, Raymond, 35, a machinist, who has been held for the inquest by Woodlawn police.

Reich testified he and his wife had quarreled during a visit to a tavern over a kiss his wife had given a service man. He left the tavern and went home, he said, later being aroused from sleep by a policeman who told him his wife lay dead outside.

Police testified Mrs. Reich had broken a pane of glass to open the apartment door. Written with a finger in the dust of the four panels of the kitchen door was a message beginning: "Ray, it's best." "Close door" was written on a second panel, "Tell your troubles," on a third. The fourth was signed "June."

COURT REJECTS INDIANA PLEA IN POLLUTION SUIT

The United States Supreme court yesterday denied a motion by Indiana to dismiss Illinois' request for an injunction to restrain Indiana from discharging sewage into Lake Michigan.

Att. Gen. Barrett hailed the high court's action in not releasing Indiana from responsibility for the pollution.

"The suit will now proceed on schedule," he said. "Indiana tried desperately to extricate itself from the action on grounds that were not proper—claiming that it had nothing to do with the sewage disposal plants of East Chicago, Hammond, Gary, and Whiting, and thus was not a party to the suit."

The Illinois petition asks that the four cities be enjoined individually, in addition to the state of Indiana. Indiana maintained that the cities alone were responsible. The four cities have filed answers in various ways. East Chicago has pleaded that numerous war plants would have to be closed if the sewage dumping were stopped. East Chicago and Whiting have argued that disposal plant construction is held up by the war. Gary has denied that its sewage pollutes the lake.

ACCUSED SON'S DEATH AN ACCIDENT.
A coroner's jury yesterday held accidental the death of William J. Allen, 28, of 1657 Monroe st., who died Friday of an overdose of a sedative administered by his father, Robert H. Allen, before he was taken to Felony court. Young Allen was charged with tampering with an automobile.

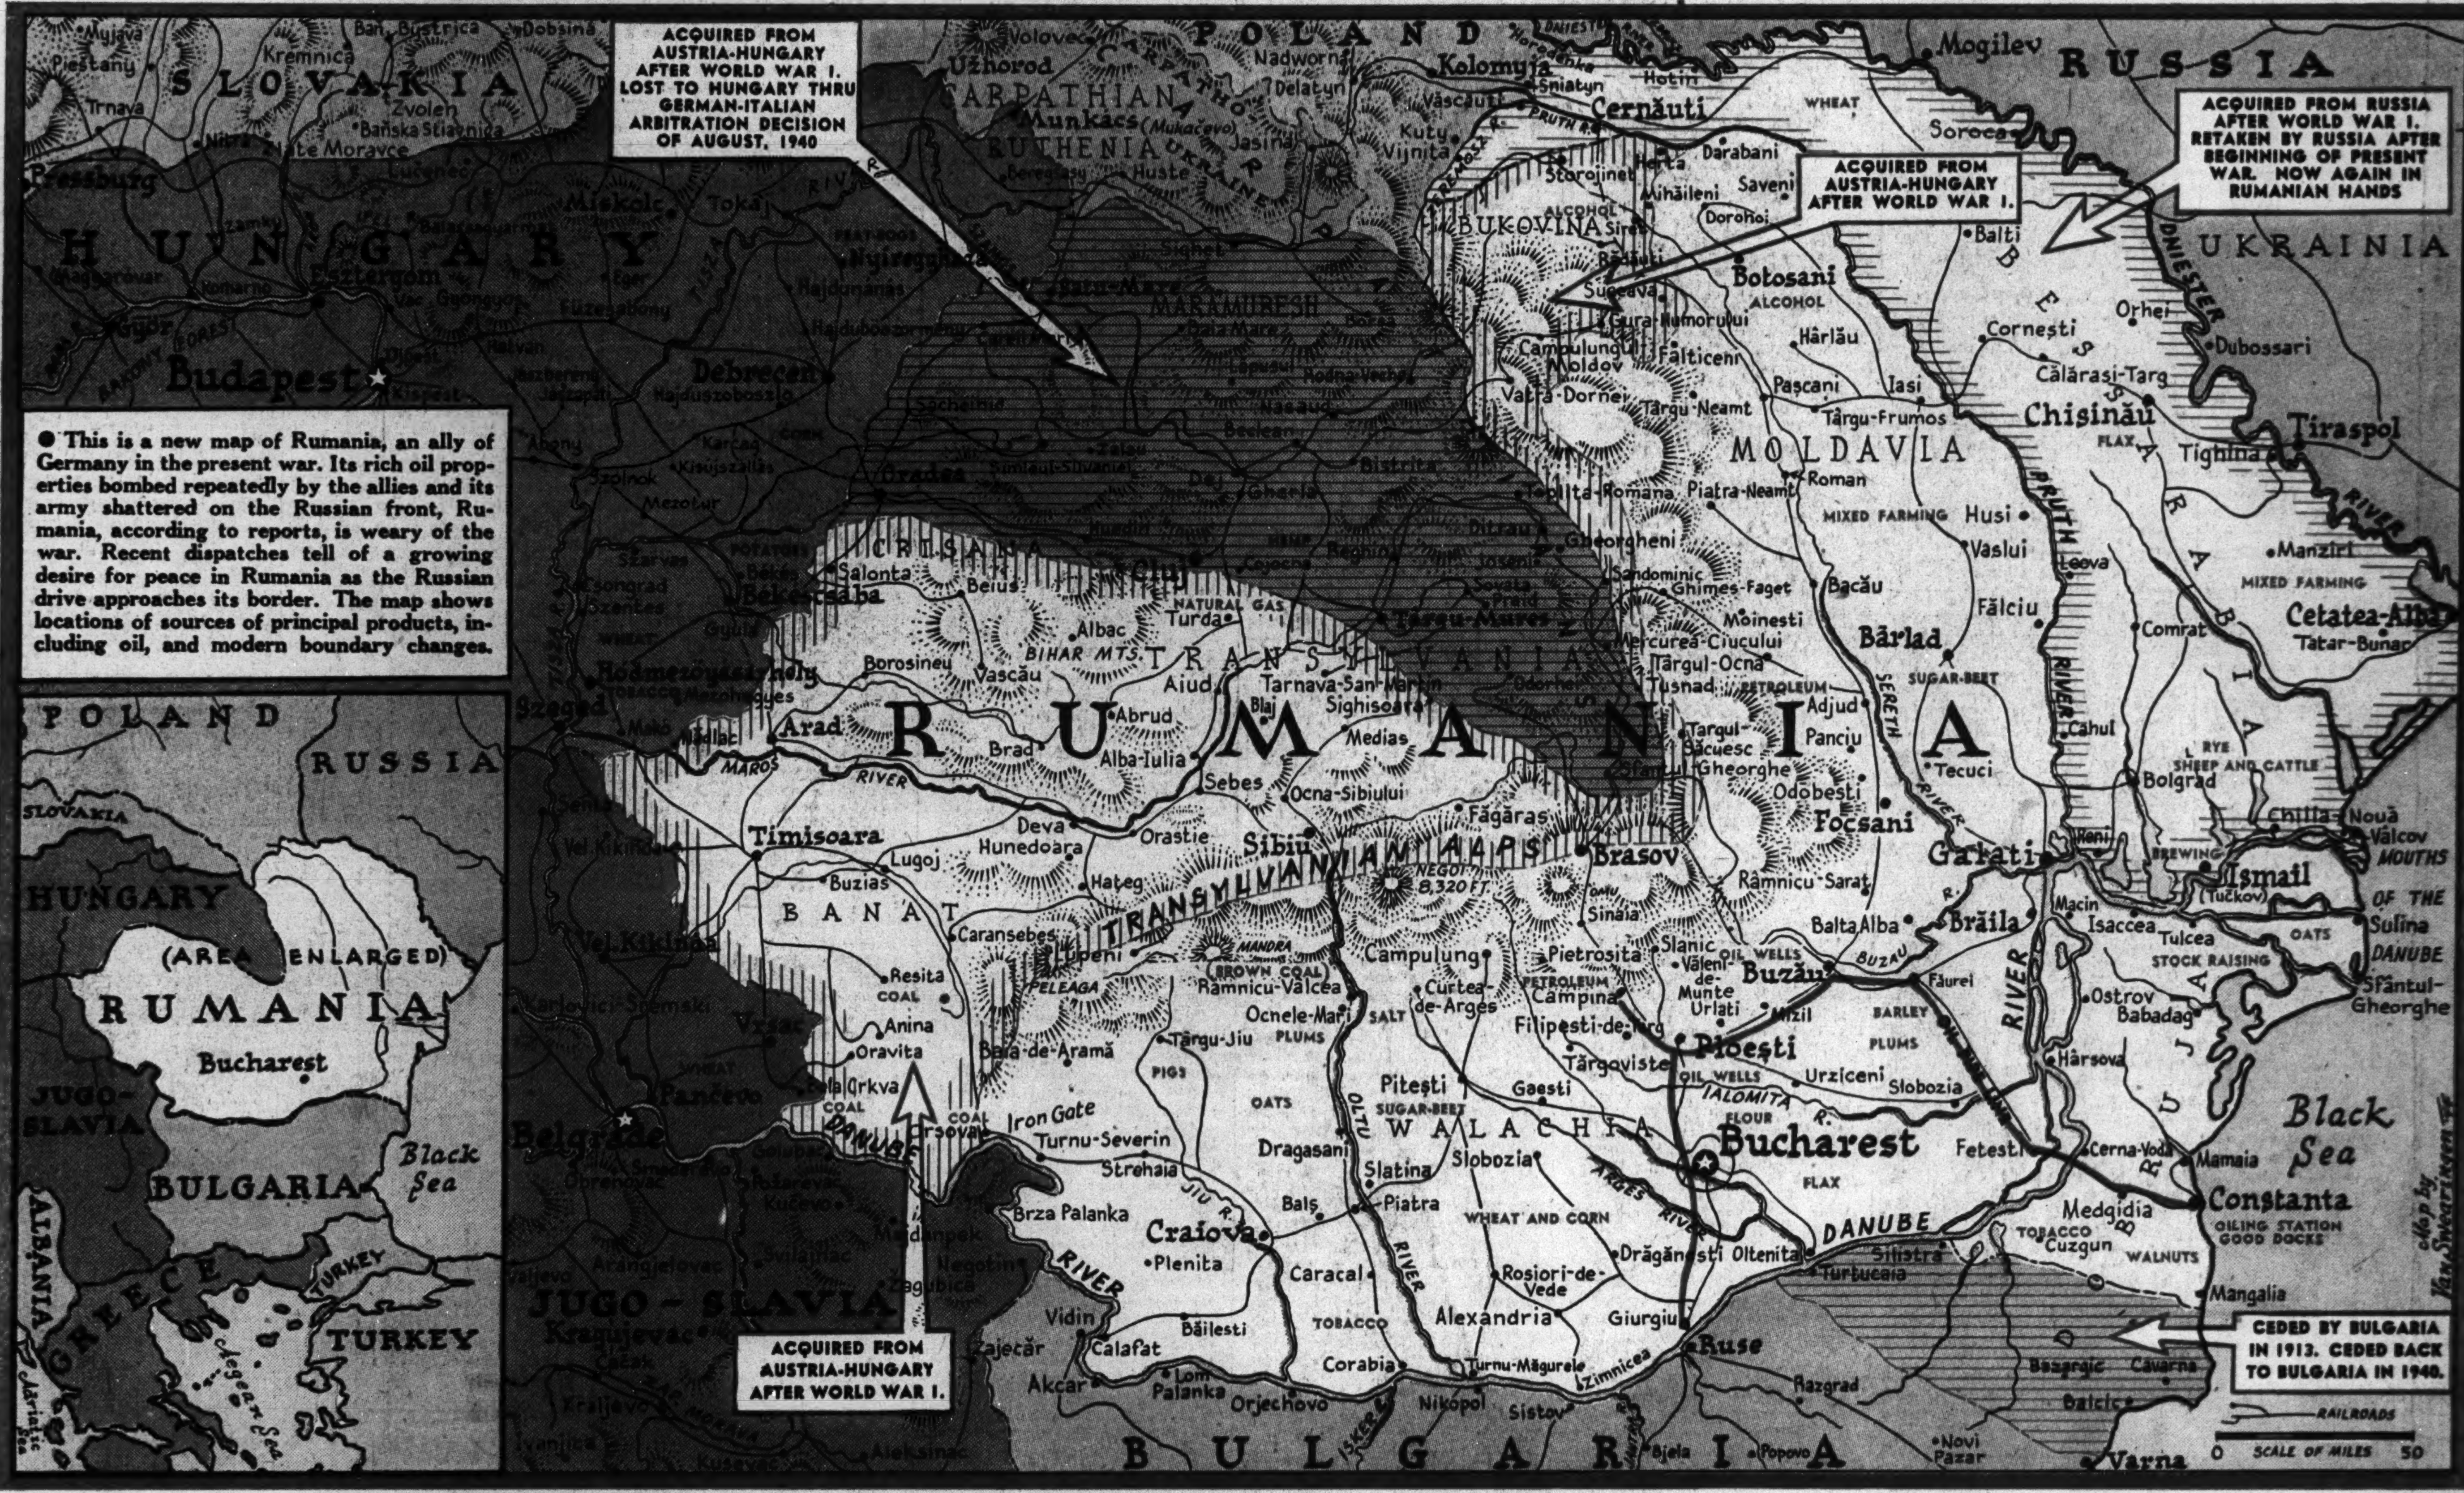
RUMANIA—AILING ALLY OF HITLER



● This is a new map of Rumania, an ally of Germany in the present war. Its rich oil properties bombed repeatedly by the allies and its army shattered on the Russian front, Rumania, according to reports, is weary of the war. Recent dispatches tell of a growing desire for peace in Rumania as the Russian drive approaches its border. The map shows locations of sources of principal products, including oil, and modern boundary changes.
